INTRODUCTION TO THE 3rd PRINT EDITION

This bibliography is intended to serve as a guide for both small and large zoo/aquarium libraries. The books, serials, CD-ROMs, and databases that should be available in every zoo/aquarium library, have been marked with ★. Although more and more CD-ROM reference sources (not indexes) are available, they have not yet become critical to zoo/aquarium library collections. However, a few are mentioned throughout the document.

This list is divided into several broad subject categories such as Invertebrates, Fishes, Animal Behavior, Veterinary Medicine, etc. The order of the subjects loosely follows the Library of Congress classification scheme. Under some of the subject headings, there are more specific headings, like Birds--Geographic Regions.

Prices are included in this list whenever possible for both hard and paperbound copies. Many book prices were found in the 1994-95 edition of Books in Print. Although some of the periodical prices are in Ulrich's International Periodical Directory, 1994-95, most were found in the current issues of the journals because prices change so quickly. Prices are listed simply to give zoos/aquariums a general idea of what the books and serials cost. Check with the publisher, vendor, book store, etc., before purchasing anything. Prices increase and some publishers may charge additional money for mailing.

The original edition of this bibliography was published in 1987 and the second edition was published in 1991. In this updated version, Steven P. Johnson, Bronx Zoo/Wildlife Conservation Park, was instrumental in updating the electronic section; Laura Jenkins, Librarian, John G. Shedd Aquarium, added material in the aquarium-related sections (Fishes, Aquaculture, etc.); and Linda Coates, Librarian, San Diego Zoo; Suzanne Braun, Librarian, Indianapolis Zoo; and Jill Gordon, Librarian, St. Louis Zoo, made invaluable contributions with their comments and additions.

B. Indexes and Abstracts--Electronic

1. Indexes and Abstracts--Electronic--Internet Databases

Internet--accessible Online Public Access Catalogs (OPACS) and other information systems.

Access to Online Public Access Catalogs (OPACS) via the Internet provides zoo and aquarium librarians with a new method for inexpensively locating bibliographic records and searching databases by author, title, subject and keyword. Some Internet accessible OPACS are particularly rich in natural history and conservation related references. Only a computer, modem, communications software and telephone line are needed to access most Internet-connected systems. Several systems are listed here as examples in a widely growing field. Many Internet access providers include library catalogs as a menu category on their systems. If your local college, university, or museum library catalog is available on the Internet, or via direct dialup, you should become familiar with it.

Library of Congress Information System (LOCIS). Available directly via Telnet to LOCIS.LOC.GOV or 140.147.254.3. Also accessible via Hytelnet and many gopher systems. In addition to bibliographic records, LOCIS includes copyright records and serials files and organization files.

Smithsonian Libraries Information System (SIRIS). Accessible by Telnet to SIRIS.SI.EDU or 160.111.4.22; WWW access available at www.siris.si.edu. No logon or password is required. Use the 3270 flavor of Telnet if it is available to you. Includes holdings of the National Zoological Park Branch of the Smithsonian Institution Libraries and also the archival records of the National Zoological Park.

Florida State University System. Accessible by Telnet to LUIS.NERDC.UFL.EDU or 128.227.212.14. Login as: luis. Includes catalog of the University of Florida in Gainesville; rich in conservation and natural history related titles.

University of California Melvyl System. telnet to 132.239.50.16 which is the University of California San Diego Infopath site. Access is to the entire University of California library catalog. The Marc format which is a display option is great for people who do their own cataloging.

University of Wisconsin - Madison. telnet to LEGO.ADP.WISC.EDU or 144.92.104.51. No login required. Includes the holdings at the library of Wisconsin Regional Primate Research Center.

Uncover. Telnet to DATABASE.CARL.ORG or 192.54.81.18; also available via the WWW at www.carl.org/uncover/. Also listed on many gophers and menu systems. Although the Carl Corporations' Uncover database serves as part of a document delivery service, special accounts are not required to purchase document delivery or search the database. The database includes table of contents information from thousands of journals. There is no charge for searching; you pay only your normal connect time fee (if any) for Internet access. The Uncover database is not as complete as many commercial databases, but it is often enough to answer a question or identify a reference at much less expense than a search in commercial databases.

4. Indexes and Abstracts--Electronic--CD-ROMs

In addition to dial access via modem from major vendors such as Knight Ridder (formerly DIALOG), OCLC, and H.W. Wilson, many bibliographic databases are now available in CD-Rom format. The cost is all represented in the initial purchase of the index. No online time is charged. The advantage is that the library user can often search without an intermediary and always search without fear of unpredictable costs. Public access CD-ROMs have appeared in the reference rooms of public, college, and university libraries. Zoo and aquarium librarians can draw on these resources by becoming familiar with their availability in local libraries and referring patrons as the need arises.
