ADVERTISEMENT.

The scientific publications of the United States National Museum consist of two series, the Proceedings and the Bulletins.

The Proceedings, the first volume of which was issued in 1878, are intended primarily as a medium for the publication of original, and usually brief, papers based on the collections of the National Museum, presenting newly acquired facts in zoology, geology, and anthropology, including descriptions of new forms of animals, and revisions of limited groups. One or two volumes are issued annually and distributed to libraries and scientific organizations. A limited number of copies of each paper, in pamphlet form, is distributed to specialists and others interested in the different subjects as soon as printed. The date of publication is recorded in the tables of contents of the volumes.

The Bulletins, the first of which was issued in 1875, consist of a series of separate publications comprising chiefly monographs of large zoological groups and other general systematic treatises (occasionally in several volumes), faunal works, reports of expeditions, and catalogues of type-specimens, special collections, etc. The majority of the volumes are octavos, but a quarto size has been adopted in a few instances, in which large plates were regarded as indispensable.

Since 1902 a series of octavo volumes containing papers relating to the botanical collections of the Museum, and known as the Contributions from the National Herbarium, has been published as bulletins.

The present work forms No. 105 of the Bulletin series.

WILLIAM DE C. RAVENEL,
Administrative Assistant to the Secretary,
In charge of the United States National Museum.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18, 1919.

PREFACE.

This catalogue of United States postage stamps, stamped envelopes, specimen stamps, and proofs is published with the view of acquainting philatelists with what the Museum desires the Government collection of United States stamps to represent when completed. An asterisk (*) has been placed after each item already installed in the exhibition frames, so that the catalogue shows exactly what portion of the collection has been already acquired and what has yet to be added to complete the exhibit.

The catalogue is designed to be of educational service to all philatelists in forming a comprehensive collection of United States stamps; it notes all the important varieties and shades. The extreme specialist will find that the very minor varieties have been omitted and that only the marked and important shades of color have been listed. In almost every stamp printed there are many variations of shade of color which are of no especial interest except to the extreme specialist.

The catalogue is not intended as a philatelic primer, so that no description of the designs of the stamps is given. Philatelists are generally very well acquainted with all the various designs, but a short description is given of the distinguishing features of the various varieties of type noted.

No list is given of the numerous coil stamps issued by various vending and mailing machine companies. They are merely private perforation varieties and have no place in the Government collection.

The collection as installed is of unused stamps, with the exception of a few rarities, such as postmasters' provisionals and carriers, 1851; 1c. Type III, 1869; inverted medallions, 1870; grilled 12c. and 24c.; and 1895, revenue paper 6c. and 8c. Such items are hardly ever to be acquired unused.

The imperforate stamps, with the exception of the 1851 issue and the 90c. 1861, August, are in blocks of four or horizontal pairs.

At the beginning of 1908 the subject of philately, at the United States National Museum, was illustrated by only a small miscellaneous collection of domestic and foreign stamps, numbering about 2,500 specimens, and principally donated by Mrs. Spencer F. Baird. In 1908, however, through the munificence of the late David W. Cromwell, of New York City, the Museum received a fine collection of about 20,000 specimens, representing the United States and nearly all foreign countries. In 1912 the Museum obtained by transfer the more essential parts of the large exhibition of the Post Office Department, comprising as its most valuable feature the stamps, stamped envelopes, and post cards of all the nations of the world, to the number of nearly 200,000, and since that time there has been a constant accretion from this and other sources.

There have been many methods of exhibiting postage stamps, but the scheme adopted by the United States National Museum is without doubt an improvement over any other, especially in the matter of detail. The principle is the same as that followed by the British Museum and as exemplified in the former cabinet of the Post Office Department—namely, a series of vertical sliding frames in which the specimens are mounted. The two plates accompanying the text of this publication show the character of the installation of the stamp collection which is located in the northwest court of the older building of the United States National Museum. This is an interior court, lighted entirely from overhead, with no direct light ever falling upon the exhibits installed therein. It is an ideal place for a stamp exhibit, the lighting being very nearly perfect, and it is only in the late afternoon hours of the dark winter days or upon exceedingly dreary stormy days that artificial light is necessary, which is then supplied by high arc lights directly over the stamp cases.

The cabinets that have been built, and in which the United States Government collection is now installed, may be briefly described as follows: There are two cases, each 20 feet 2 inches long, 6 feet 7 inches high, and 2 feet 8½ inches deep, constructed in three sections for convenience in moving. They are made of hard cherry with dull mahogany finish, a cornice and simple trimmings giving an exceedingly rich appearance; the interior is of white pine, except as otherwise stated. The lower part of the case is arranged for storage and provided with doors. The upper part, measuring 3 feet 2¼ inches from a counter shelf to the top of the cornice, contains the sliding frames, of which there are 185 in each case, or 370 in all, a number that may of course be at any time increased by adding to the case length.

The individual frames, made of hard cherry with dull mahogany finish, measure 31¼ inches high by 29¾ inches deep on the outside and 27¼ by 21¼ inches in the opening; the thickness of the frames is ¼⅜ inch, and when fully drawn out they are exposed to a depth of 23¼ inches, with an extension into the case of 6½ inches, which provides the necessary leverage. Both sides are used and are glazed with Belgian negative glass. The frames slide on cherry strips, fixed to the top and bottom of the interior space of the cabinet, and their upper and lower rails are grooved to within an inch of the front. In the lower groove are mortised four brass trunk rollers, projecting one-eighth inch, to raise the frame above the bottom strips, but the upper groove contains only one such roller, placed about 1 inch from the back to prevent friction as the frame is started in drawing out. On the front edge of each frame is a bronze-finished bar drawer pull, a label holder, and a numbered disk. The frames are doubly secured in the case by a hinged cornice at the top and a wooden flap at the bottom, which are fastened by locks at each end. They are released for inspection by unlocking the flap, being stopped at the proper place by a square strip of wood attached at the top of the frame.

Summarizing the principal merits of these cases, especially with reference to their use by the public, it may be said that the frames run so smoothly that they are instinctively pushed back into place, which is an important matter as operating against an unlimited exposure of the stamps and their consequent more rapid fading; as it is the specimens are in no more danger of being light struck than are those on the pages of a collector's album; while, furthermore, the frames are all in a single row and center at a height of about 4 feet 10 inches above the floor, which places each display easily within the range of vision of the ordinary standing visitor, no back-breaking stoop to examine the stamps at the bottom of a frame, no pulling or stretching of neck cords to see those at the top.

The display faces of the frames are filed with a dark gray mat having four openings, each 8 by 10 inches, there being 1 inch of mat between the openings, $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches at top and bottom, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches at each side. The stamps are mounted on heavy linen paper sheets with faint gray quadrille ruling; the headings and descriptions are typewritten upon the sheets in black gothic type, throughout the collection; they give the country, date of issue, method of printing where and by whom printed, watermark, and perforation, and if an issue is commemorative a note is made of the event commemorated. The sheets are attached to the back of the mat, over the openings, by strips of gummed paper, and are backed with cardboard and a layer of beaver board filler.

The installation, instead of according with the usual stereotyped alphabetical arrangement of countries throughout, begins with the United States, followed by the foreign nations in alphabetical order, the stamps of the colonies being grouped together geographically under each respective mother country. Spaces have been reserved for all of the primary varieties lacking, which it is expected to procure from time to time as occasion and opportunity offers. In general the mounting is of single stamps of each issue, but when necessary to serve a particular purpose, pairs, strips, blocks, or even complete sheets are displayed.

Philately is now on a permanent basis at the United States National Museum, and it remains for philatelists themselves to display the proper interest necessary to the rapid advancement of the Government collection, and to realize that as the property of the Nation it belongs to all philatelists collectively.

CONTINENTAL BANK NOTE COMPANY:

Distinguishing marks of the Continental Bank Note Company printings:

- 1c. There is a small dash in the pearl at the left of the numeral 1.
- 2c. There is a small diagonal line under the scroll at the left of U. S.
- 3c. The lower part of the tail of the left ribbon is heavily shaded.
- 6c. The first four vertical lines of shading in the lower part of the left ribbon have been strengthened.
- 7c. Two small semicircles have been drawn around the ends of the lines which outline the ball in the lower right corner.
- 10c. There is a small semicircle in the ball of the scroll at the right end of the upper label.
- 12c. The balls of the figure 2 have been cut to crescent shape.
- 15c. Two lines have been made heavier in the lower part of the triangle in the upper left corner, forming a V.
- 24c. This stamp was discontinued two years after the Continental Bank Note Company took over the printing and the best authorities are now agreed that there are only National Bank Note Company printings.
- 30c and 90c. No new plates were made for these denominations and they are to be distinguished from the National Bank Note Company printings only by the shade.

Types of 2c:

- Triangle I. The horizontal lines of background cross the triangle and are the same thickness within it as without.
- Triangle II. The horizontal lines of background cross the triangle, but are thinner within it than without.
- Triangle III. The horizontal lines of background do not cross the triangle but stop at the inner frame and are thinner within than without the triangle. There is a white space between the inner and outer frames of the triangle.

Types of $1:

Type I. The circles inclosing $1 are concave where they meet the curved line beneath One Dollar.

Type II. The circles inclosing $1 are complete.

Both types of the $1 are on the same plate and exist in unsevered horizontal pairs. The collection contains a plate proof of a complete sheet of 200. The 2c, 3c, 6c, 10c, and 15c are known on a very thin, almost pelure, white paper.

Imperforate horizontally.

STAMPED ENVELOPES.

This catalogue is of cut square specimens only, therefore does not note the various sizes of entire envelopes. The shade of paper is merely a general notation, in the early issues buff covering the range of salmon, yellow buff, orange buff, and brown buff. The object of this catalogue is to list all the varieties of die on a broad general classification of paper.

No listing is made of "specimen" stamped envelopes, as in the majority of cases the word was printed on the envelope and did not affect the design for cut square copies.

GEORGE F. NESBITT.

There are 20 types of head medallion used with the various frame dies.

Types of frame:

Die A. Three in narrow curved label 13 mm. wide at top.

Die B. Three in narrow straight label 15½ mm. wide at top.

Die C. Three in narrow straight label with octagonal ends.

Die D. Three in wide straight label 20 mm. wide at top.

Die E. Three in medium wide curved label 14½ mm. wide at top; letter T has a long top.

Die E2. Three in medium wide curved label 14½ mm. wide at top; letter T has a short top.

Die F. Six in narrow straight label.

Die G. Ten in narrow straight label.

Die H. Ten in wide straight label.

There are numerous minor varieties of some of the above major frame dies. All have been properly described in copyrighted articles by Dr. Victor M. Berthold.

MERCANTILE CORPORATION.

1916-17:

- 1c. Die A. U and E of UNITED and POSTAGE close to numeral circles. D of UNITED and S of STATES close together. All letters thick and stubby.
- Die B. U and E of UNITED and POSTAGE further from numeral circles than in die A. D of UNITED and S of STATES further apart. C of CENT open. All letters thinner.

1916-1917—Continued.

- 2c. Die A. Circles, letters and numerals very thin. U of UNITED broad and far from left circle. Wide distance between D of UNITED and S of STATES and S of STATES and P of POSTAGE. NT of CENTS wide at base. The rejected die.
- Die B. U of UNITED close to numeral circle. NT of CENTS close at base. S of CENTS very short at upper end. Wide distance between D of UNITED and S of STATES. First accepted die.
- Die C. Die A recut, making circles, letters and numerals thick.
- Die D. U of UNITED has a decided upward slant. D of UNITED is near S of STATES. C of CENTS very close to numeral circle and open. EN widely spaced. TS close at base.
- Die E. Small head. U of UNITED long, narrow, and close to numeral circle. D of UNITED close to S of STATES. EN and TS of CENTS close. NT wide at base.
- Die F. Small head. U of UNITED some distance from numeral circle. D of UNITED and S of STATES close. Base line of left 2 slopes strongly downward and is not in alignment with right 2. N of CENTS is narrow. NTS of CENTS very wide at base.
- 3c. Die B. Similar in every way to die B of 2c, but with numerals 3.
- Die C. Similar in every way to die C of 2c, but with numerals 3.
- Die D. Similar in every way to die D of 2c, but with numerals 3.
- Die E. Similar in every way to die E of 2c, right 3 tipped forward.
- Die F. Similar in every way to die F of 2c, but with numerals 3.
- Die G. C of CENTS tipped slightly forward. NTS widely spaced at base. Left numeral 3 tipped backwards.

There are two types of the head of Franklin used in the 1c. There are five types of the head of Washington used in the 2c and six types used in the 3c.

CONFEDERATE STATES.

Postmasters' provisional issues of the Confederate States are entirely lacking in representation in the collection. As the authenticity of some has never been clearly established no list is published in this work.

The general issues of the Confederate States are at present attracting considerable interest, and much progress is being made in researches concerning their issue and method of printing. The list that follows is solely of specimens represented in the collection, as the research work has not progressed to a point where it is positively known just what is lacking in representation.
