The SHIS series publishes and distributes translations, bibliographies, indices, and similar items judged useful to individuals interested in the biology of amphibians and reptiles, but unlikely to be published in the normal technical journals. Single copies are distributed free to interested individuals. Libraries, herpetological associations, and research laboratories are invited to exchange their publications with the Division of Amphibians and Reptiles.

We wish to encourage individuals to share their bibliographies, translations, etc. with other herpetologists through the SHIS series. If you have such items please contact George Zug for instructions on preparation and submission. Contributors receive 50 free copies.

Please address all requests for copies and inquiries to George Zug, Division of Amphibians and Reptiles, National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington DC 20560 USA. Please include a self-addressed mailing label with requests.
INTRODUCTION

This bibliography of children’s literature and educational resources is for both educators and scientists. Often in an attempt to stimulate and facilitate learning, we encourage students to read. This bibliography offers young readers, their parents, and teachers a selection of excellent books from which to choose. For the scientists called into schools or nature centers to share her/his knowledge, this compilation provides a list of resources to help bridge the gap between the presentation and the classroom program.

Section I is a list of 135 children’s books (primarily nonfiction). Entries are alphabetical by author and numbered sequentially. Those entries followed by an asterisk* are judged particularly useful and accurate. The indices following the bibliography provide cross-reference by grade level and taxonomic group and direct the user to specific books by their numeric code. Section II provides an additional list of resources to assist teachers in their classroom activities.

This bibliography is not all inclusive. I offer it as a starting place to assist educators and scientists in their interactions with young readers and novice naturalists. I hope that it will stimulate further interest in the study and conservation of amphibians and reptiles.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Marianne O’Callaghan (Interlibrary Loan Librarian, St. Norbert College) and Laura Hemming (Associate Academic Librarian, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay) worked diligently to obtain copies of many of the works included in the bibliography. Dr. Mary Alyce Lach, S.S.N.D. (St. Norbert College) taught me the value of children’s literature and provided the initial inspiration for this compilation.

All items have been annotated. These materials can be obtained at many academic libraries or through interlibrary loan services.

Notes: Instructional unit for grades 4-6. Teacher and student pages provide illustrations and information about snakes in a variety of formats. References and answer key provided.

Notes: Article encourages activities with live animals, especially snakes. Offers some suggestions for care and feeding.

Notes: These articles will be useful to classroom teachers. Life history information. Tips on feeding, housing and care needs. Safety concerns addressed where appropriate. Some suggest classroom activities.

Notes: Grades K-8. Many teaching activities. Includes reproducible handouts and background information for students and teachers. Relatively inexpensive.

Notes: "Food for thought" for all educators teaching about animals.

Notes: Uses frog lore as the basis for enrichment in language arts, science, social studies and the arts. Useful list of reference books included.

Notes: Four work sheets for practicing math skills.

Notes: Art, writing and science activities with live snails, lizards, frogs and toads. Nice approach to integrating subjects.

Notes: Describes techniques using live animals to stimulate understanding of life cycle concepts for hearing impaired individuals. The suggestions here are valuable to all teachers, not just specialists!
