The annual Smithsonian Folklife Festival brings together exemplary practitioners of diverse traditions from communities across the United States and around the world. The goal of the Festival is to encourage the vitality of these traditions by presenting them on the National Mall so that tradition-bearers and the public can learn from one another and understand cultural differences in a respectful way.
The 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival
2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival

Produced by the Smithsonian Institution Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage

Co-sponsored by the National Park Service

The Festival is supported by federally appropriated funds; Smithsonian trust funds; contributions from governments, businesses, foundations, and individuals; in-kind assistance; and food, beverage, recording, and craft sales. General support for this year’s programs comes from the Music Performance Fund, with in-kind support for the Festival provided by Motorola, Sprint Nextel, WAMU-88.5 FM, WashingtonPost.com, Whole Foods Market, Pegasus Radio Corp., Icom America, Thermador, Propex Inc., and the Folklore Society of Greater Washington.

The 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival has been made possible through the generosity and support of the following donors and partners.

MEKONG RIVER: CONNECTING CULTURES

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION PARTNER
Smithsonian Women’s Committee

PARTNERS
The Ministry of Culture and Information of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam
The Ministry of Culture of the Kingdom of Thailand
The People’s Government of Yunnan Province of the People’s Republic of China
The Ministry of Information and Culture of the Lao People’s Democratic Republic
The Ministry of Culture and Fine Arts of the Kingdom of Cambodia

MAJOR DONORS
Rockefeller Foundation
Ford Foundation
Henry Luce Foundation

DONORS AND SUPPORTERS
McKnight Foundation  American Express  Asian Cultural Council

IN-KIND AND COLLABORATIVE SUPPORT
Aid to Artisans  Amrita Performing Arts
China Yunnan International Culture Exchange Center  Connecticut College
Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn Anthropology Centre  Vietnam Museum of Ethnology
NORTHERN IRELAND AT THE SMITHSONIAN

LEAD PARTNERS
Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure of Northern Ireland through the Arts Council of Northern Ireland and Rediscover Northern Ireland

Donors to Rediscover Northern Ireland

MAJOR DONORS
Titanic Quarter Ltd.
RBS

DONORS AND SUPPORTERS
BT  Diageo  Glen Dimplex Group  Grafton ESP  Norbrook Resource
Bank of Ireland  BDO Stoy Hayward  Delta Print and Packaging  First Trust Bank
Henderson Foodservice  McCabes  McAleer & Rushe Group  McLaughlin & Harvey
Northern Bank  Seagate  Ulster Carpets  Belleek  FireIMC  Harrison Photography
Northbrook Technology

ROOTS OF VIRGINIA CULTURE

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION PARTNER
National Museum of African American History and Culture

LEAD PARTNERS
Jamestown 2007: America's 400th Anniversary
Kent County Council

Supporters of Jamestown 2007: America's 400th Anniversary

MAJOR DONORS
Norfolk Southern Corporation
Colonial Williamsburg Foundation
Verizon
Anheuser-Busch Companies

DONORS AND SUPPORTERS
AirTran Airways  Dominion  James City County  Philip Morris USA
SunTrust  Wolsley PLC/Ferguson Enterprises Inc.
Contents

The 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival
The 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival

Rinzler Concert

National Museum of African American History and Culture

The Mekong Region: Diverse Heritage, Shared Future
- Pots and Jars Along the Mekong
- Naxi Culture
- Textiles Along the Mekong
- Khmer Music Along the Mekong
- The Mekong Flows into America

Northern Ireland at the Smithsonian
- Northern Ireland: A Short History
- Music in Northern Ireland
- The Irish Language in Northern Ireland
- Introducing the Ulster Scots Language
- Traditional Crafts in Northern Ireland
- Trades and Occupations in Northern Ireland
- Sport in Northern Ireland
- Food and Food Culture in Northern Ireland

Roots of Virginia Culture: The Past is Present
- Virginia Indians
- The Garden of England: Kent, Yesterday and Today
- Africans, African Americans, and the Roots of Virginia Culture
- Blue Ridge Folklife: Thirty Years of Fried Pies and Other Delights
- Virginia Folklife Apprenticeship Program: Passing on Tradition

Staff

Sponsors and Special Thanks

Festival Participants

Festival Schedule

General Festival Information

Related Events

Site Map
Now in its forty-first year, the Smithsonian Folklife Festival continues an important tradition by featuring Roots of Virginia Culture, Mekong River: Connecting Cultures, and Northern Ireland at the Smithsonian.

The Roots of Virginia Culture program helps mark the 400th anniversary of the founding of Jamestown. The founding was a seminal event, although not for the reasons thought at the time. For the nation that subsequently emerged, Jamestown set in motion relationships among Native Americans, English, and Africans. They interacted through war, slavery, and strife, as well as through a growing economy and an unfolding democracy to define, in large measure, American culture and traditions. Musicians, artisans, cooks, boat builders, farmers, archaeologists, and genealogists from Virginia, England (mainly Kent County), West Africa, and Native communities throughout Virginia will demonstrate root traditions, cultural parallels, and the ways their expressions and those of later immigrants formed a dynamic American heritage. We are grateful for the work of many scholars and colleagues on three continents who enabled us to tell the story, and we thank our partners, including Jamestown 2007, the Kent County Council, and the Smithsonian’s National Museum of African American History and Culture, who supported and guided the program.

Among early immigrants to Virginia were Scots and Irish from Ireland—people who contributed mightily to the new nation. Northern Ireland at the Smithsonian, focuses on the cultural life of those “back home.” The Festival program comes at a very important time in the history of the island region. In just the last few months, leaders of the two major parties, Unionist (Protestant) and Republican (Catholic) have agreed to form a self-government to help surmount “The Troubles” that plagued the region. Music, crafts, occupational traditions, and culinary arts are flourishing. Cultural expressions, often means of resistance and conflict, increasingly foster understanding, reconciliation, and the economy. This is particularly evident in a massive arts effort, “Rediscover Northern Ireland,” which seeks to acquaint Americans with the region. Numerous scholars, cultural organizations (led by the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure and the Northern Ireland Arts Council), and civic-minded corporate sponsors came together to design and fund the program. Such public-private partnerships, increased American tourism, and economic investment will help guarantee reconciliation and stability.

Similar sensibilities have inspired Mekong River: Connecting Cultures, which brings together musicians, artisans, cooks, and other cultural exemplars from Cambodia, China, Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam. The program follows the 3,000-mile river from its highland origins on the Tibetan Plateau through the Yunnan Province of China to the delta of southern Vietnam. Many Americans are familiar with the region because of war. But beyond the conflicts are rich, interrelated cultures.
Although national identities are important and persistent, ethnic communities are distributed across national boundaries. Occupational and artisanal traditions, such as fishing, farming, and weaving, transcend citizenship. Religious beliefs have inspired a wide variety of performance and celebratory expressions. This is a politically, economically, and culturally dynamic area whose future is increasingly tied to global concerns.

Millions of Americans from the region now make their home in the United States—in the nation’s capital, in Virginia, in Maryland, and in many other states. Americans and other visitors to the Festival will learn more about this important region thanks to the governments of Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan Province, China; the Rockefeller, Ford, Luce, and McKnight foundations; and institutional colleagues such as Thailand’s Sirindhorn Anthropology Centre, Vietnam’s Museum of Ethnology, Cambodia’s Amrita Performing Arts, China Yunnan International Culture Exchange Center, and Connecticut College.

The traditions of Historic Black Universities and Colleges in Virginia include activities that link families and communities. On this evening, fathers escort daughters at the annual “Jabberwock”.

Roland L. Freeman is very pleased to work on the Roots of Virginia Culture program because his Freeman roots go back to Hanover and Caroline counties in Virginia. This year marks the 35th anniversary of his relationship with the Smithsonian Folklife Festival as research associate and cultural documentary photographer. In his forty-year career as a visual researcher, he has created iconic photographs of African American cultural life including arabbers in Baltimore, communities in Philadelphia, and quilters and their collectors. Out of this body of work, he has published six books and exhibited all over the world. In 1991, he helped form The Group for Cultural Documentation, Inc. (www.tgcd.org) of which he is president and through which he continues his documentation of the African Diaspora.
With all three programs, the Festival continues an institutional practice of the Smithsonian and an expected part of summer life in the nation's capital. At its inception over forty years ago, the Festival was conceived as an act of cultural democracy, a vehicle for cultural conversation, and a means of cultural conservation. Held on the National Mall around the Fourth of July, it provided an important forum where Americans and others could explain, express, demonstrate, and perform their cultural traditions. "Back home," the Festival would encourage traditions within practitioners’ communities; stimulate cultural research and documentation efforts; boost sales of crafts, music, and food; lead to public recognition by government leaders and the media; increase tourism and economic development; and inspire educational programs in schools. Survey after survey has demonstrated that Festival participants believe Festival programs play a key role in preserving cultural traditions in their own lives and in the lives of their communities.

The Festival model—the research and public presentation of cultural heritage with the close collaboration of those represented—has inspired university departments, programs, festivals, heritage centers, and activities within the Smithsonian, across the United States, and around the world. The Festival provided the template for and produced several presidential inaugural programs, cultural programs for various Olympics, the Black Family Reunion, the Smithsonian's own 150th anniversary celebration, the dedication of the National World War II Memorial, and the opening of the National Museum of the American Indian. It also inspired other ongoing festivals in Michigan and Kentucky and in Romania and India.

The Festival itself is the "tip of the iceberg," the most visible part of a larger effort by the Smithsonian Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage to safeguard cultural traditions—in an ethical and professional manner consistent with human rights—so they can flourish in a contemporary world. The Center's practice has been incorporated into the work of other Smithsonian units, including the National Museum of the American Indian, the National Museum of African American History and Culture.

The Mekong Delta is one of the most densely populated regions along the entire river. This photograph, taken in Dong Thap Province, Vietnam, shows a lively scene of workers, boats, and commerce. Photo by Nguyen Xuan Hoanh, Smithsonian Institution.
the Smithsonian Latino Center, the Asian Pacific American Program, and the National Museum of American History.

The Festival, the Center, and its staff have played a key role in the development of the 2003 UNESCO Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage, which was ratified in 2006. The treaty has now been accepted by seventy-eight member states but not, ironically, by the United States, a world leader in recognizing and promoting "cultural democracy." While I have my own questions about the treaty, its application, efficacy, and some of its technical details, it nonetheless reflects, in part, the impact of the Festival on encouraging respect for cultural diversity around the planet.
This year's Ralph Rinzler Memorial Concert will be a tribute to Bess Lomax Hawes. She is one of the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage's "Legacy Honorees." The honorees' portraits hang in our office suite with a brief description of their lifework. They are a group of twelve people who have been fundamental in shaping our mission and practice and who keep us grounded and ever aware of the importance of what we do.

In 1975, Bess came to the Festival to be the research coordinator for Regional America's California program (although she had contributed to many Festival programs before). At that time, she was a professor of anthropology at San Fernando Valley State, now California State University-Northridge. She left her academic position in 1976 to become deputy director for presentation during the gargantuan 1976 Bicentennial Festival, which showcased the best of American and world traditional cultures for three solid months.

One would think that after having no days off (not a weekend, not a holiday, not a sick day) for nearly a year, Bess would have liked a break. But there was too much still to do for such self-indulgence. In 1977, National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) chairman Nancy Hanks hired Bess to oversee a fledgling folk arts-funding category, which was embedded in other agency funding programs. By February of 1978, Bess had established the stand-alone Folk Arts Program, which had a dedicated budget. Her work over the next few years helped build a network of folk arts specialists around the country; develop folk arts-master apprentice programs in a number of states; and fund individual projects, such as festivals, tours, exhibitions, media documentation, and fieldwork.

Bess recalls that in her first conversation with Chairman Hanks, she was asked why the United States could not develop a means of recognizing folk and traditional artists similar to the Japanese Living National Treasures program. Twenty-five years ago, in 1982, the NEA National Heritage Fellowship program was established. It became the highest form of federal recognition for folk and traditional artists and one of Bess's legacies. To date, more than 300 artists have received NEA National Heritage Fellowships. The Ralph Rinzler Memorial Concert will feature recipients of this honor.
Bess has said of the Heritage Fellowships:

Of all the activities assisted by the Folk Arts Program, these fellowships are among the most appreciated and applauded, perhaps because they present to Americans a vision of themselves and of their country, a vision somewhat idealized but profoundly longed for and so, in significant ways, profoundly true. It is a vision of a confident and open-hearted nation, where differences can be seen as exciting instead of fear-laden, where men of good will, across all manner of racial, linguistic, and historical barriers, can find common ground in understanding solid craftsmanship, virtuoso techniques, and deeply felt expression.

Bess has enjoyed many professional lives, and much could be written about each of them. As a college professor, she was a model to many. As a performer, with Woody Guthrie, Pete Seeger, and the renowned Almanac Singers, she influenced legions. As a mentor, she contributed to hundreds of careers. Her careful work at the Smithsonian shapes our practice to this day. Her films are still sought by scholars. And, of course, her labors at the National Endowment for the recognition of traditional artists will affect generations to come.

Although never shy about standing up for important issues, Bess works in a quiet, unassuming way. The National Endowment for the Arts named one of its most prestigious awards for her, and in 1992 she received the National Medal of Arts, the highest award our nation bestows on artists and those who nurture them. The Festival is pleased to add its voice to the many that thank her for her singular contributions to American life.
The National Museum of African American History and Culture (NMAAHC), the newest of the nineteen museums of the Smithsonian Institution, is quite pleased and honored to continue its collaboration with the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage. Our partnership began with the 2006 Smithsonian Folklife Festival, when we crafted Been in the Storm So Long, a well-received concert series that highlighted musical traditions of regions in the American South that were devastated by hurricanes Katrina and Rita. By encouraging audiences on the Mall to tap their toes to New Orleans jazz, gospel music, and the sounds of southern rhythm and blues, we hoped to bring alive the culture that was nearly lost when the floodwaters rose.

As we launch the Museum, collaboration with the Folklife Festival is quite appropriate. For more than forty years, the Festival—a Washington institution—has helped millions of visitors remember and celebrate diverse cultures and traditions. I recall very clearly being moved and edified as a graduate student when I attended the Festival during its commemoration of the American Bicentennial. I was amazed and felt embraced by what would soon be called “multiculturalism.” The Festival has long illuminated all corners of American culture. Now, the NMAAHC joins the Festival in holding dear a commitment to remembering and understanding the fullness of the American experience. NMAAHC believes that part of its mandate is specifically to help people remember and revel in the rich culture that is the African American experience. In essence, the Museum seeks to present African American culture to help us better understand what it means to be an American and how much our national identity is shaped by Black America. Our collaboration is marked by a dedication to research, which leads to a firm understanding of how international connections affect our common history and culture.

Our shared purpose inspires this year’s Festival. NMAAHC is honored to support and be part of the Roots of Virginia Culture program, which will help acknowledge the anniversary of the English settlement in Virginia 400 years ago. The program will explore the changing culture of Virginia and its history, which has been informed by English, Native, and African cultures. Building on the work of scholars like Rex Ellis, this portion of the Festival will show how cultural accommodation and cultural conflict have played out during the past 400 years, from agricultural traditions to musical styles. The Museum is also fortunate that Dr. Ellis is a member of its scholarly advisory committee, which is chaired by John Hope Franklin.
While an ongoing presence at the Smithsonian Folklife Festival is central to our partnership, it is only part of the relationship that we have built with the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage. We also have a strong partnership with Smithsonian Folkways Recordings. Through the African American Legacy Series, we will support a number of reissues and new releases that will sweep the African American musical heritage. Our first recording is a wonderful reissue of the music of Paul Robeson, a true Renaissance man of the twentieth century. Robeson’s musical and artistic talents always served the struggle for fairness and equality in the United States, so we are honored to help make his music more accessible. We will also issue a new recording of the Paschall Brothers, an a capella gospel group with deep Virginia roots, who will perform at this year’s Festival.

Ultimately, the collaboration between the National Museum of African American History and Culture and the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage will allow us to make the African American experience and culture available and meaningful to a broad audience. Our work together will also fulfill another important, mutual goal: through our partnership, the Museum will be visible before its construction and will contribute to programs, exhibitions, and Web-based activities. By remembering and making African American culture more accessible, we will, together, help reconcile and heal American society.
In Yunnan Province of China, the northern section of the Mekong (Lancang in Chinese) is narrow and cuts through mostly uninhabited mountains. Photo courtesy China Yunnan International Culture Exchange Center.

One of the world’s great rivers, the Mekong begins in the melting glaciers of the Tibetan Plateau, in China’s Qinghai Province, and ends some 3,000 miles away, emptying into the South China Sea in southern Vietnam. Passing through Myanmar (Burma), Laos, Thailand, and Cambodia, the river traverses steep mountain gorges, daunting rapids, and immense alluvial plains in six nations. Its watershed encompasses 85 percent of Laos and Cambodia, one-third of Thailand, and smaller parts of Vietnam, Myanmar, and China.

More than 60 million people live in the Mekong basin—speakers of at least a hundred languages. Some of the region’s ethno-linguistic groups, such as the Khmer, Thai, and Vietnamese, number in the tens of millions, while others have populations of only a hundred or so people. Their livelihoods are as diverse as their ethnicities: the Mekong region includes tiny mountain villages of a dozen households, where people eke out a living from hillside rice fields, and densely populated plains and deltas, where the river’s waters flow into rice paddies, which are harvested three times annually. But the region also includes bustling modern cities of a million or more people and industries ranging from rubber plants and textile factories to high-tech production facilities. Unparalleled in the diversity of its fisheries, the Mekong region is not only the rice bowl of Asia, but also its fish basket.
The Mekong River can be divided into three parts. The Upper Mekong includes the headwaters of the river on the Tibetan Plateau in Qinghai and its course through Tibet and Yunnan in China to the border with Myanmar. Above the city of Qamdo, it is known by its Tibetan name, Za Qu; below Qamdo and to the border with Laos, it is known by the Chinese name of Lancang. The Middle Mekong flows from China and Burma in the north to the rapids at Kratie in Cambodia; its drainage takes in most of Laos, large parts of northeastern Thailand, and tiny corners of Chiang Rai Province in Northern Thailand and Dien Bien Province in northwestern Vietnam. Below Kratie is the Lower Mekong, where the river runs through great alluvial plains in Cambodia before splitting into nine channels to form the Mekong Delta of southern Vietnam. In Khmer (Cambodian), the river is known as Tonle Thom (Great River); in Vietnam, the nine channels of the delta are known together as Cau Long (Nine Dragons). A number of major tributaries feed into the river along its way, draining water from the melting snows of Tibet or rainfall from tropical monsoons farther south. Within the watershed is the huge Tonle Sap in Cambodia—1,350 square miles in area during the dry season and 5,600 square miles at the end of the rainy season.

The name by which the river is most widely known, “Mekong,” is a westernization of its name in the Thai and Lao languages in which it is called the Mae Nam Khong. The name itself tells us a lot about the cultural history of the region. According to many linguists, khong derives from the ancient Austroasiatic word khrong (river). In Chinese, that word became jiang, the ancient name of the Yangzi (Yangtze) River and the word generally used for “river” in southern Chinese dialects. In modern Vietnamese, the word sông for “river” derives from the same source. Khinhmu people in northern Laos or Thailand call the Mekong River the Khlong, which preserves the ancient Austroasiatic word. The first part of the Lao and Thai name, maenam, combines the word for “mother” and that for “water” to mean “river”; the word maen is also used to mean “great” or “primary.” So it would not be far off to say that the name simply means, “The River,” or the “River River,” or the “Mother of All Rivers.” But the history of the name also tells us that the region has always been one of great cultural diversity and exchange, a contact zone where peoples who speak different languages and practice different cultures profoundly influence one another.

How then to introduce this huge, diverse, and complex region to visitors at the Smithsonian Folklife Festival? How to select some two hundred people to represent tens of millions? How best to give Festival visitors a sense of the challenging cultural choices that confront the Mekong region and its inhabitants at the beginning of the twenty-first century? And how to mobilize the support of governments, funders, researchers, and communities to make the whole effort possible? Such were the questions that faced Smithsonian curators and their Mekong collaborators when they began planning the Festival program more than four years ago. The Smithsonian knew that the answers to such questions could not come from Washington. Instead, they had to reflect the perspectives and the collective wisdom of experienced cultural workers, scholars, and officials from the five featured countries. A unique and complex process of collaborative planning brought together a network of regional experts who shaped the program over several years in a series of consultative meetings, training workshops, and review sessions, made possible in large part by the Rockefeller Foundation.

The Mekong-region collaborators were as diverse as the region itself: Some were scholars with advanced degrees in anthropology or ethnomusicology; others were experienced cultural officials and administrators. There was a playwright, a dancer, a cartoonist, and more than one talented musician on the planning team. Many had themselves grown up in the Mekong watershed, while others represented national institutions based in capitals far from the banks of the river. Their first task was to identify several themes that would guide the research, planning, and participant selection and would later help Festival visitors gain a coherent sense of this vast and complicated region.

The first theme was that of the Mekong River itself—of water as the sustainer of life. The second theme examined rivers and water as the focus of shared symbolic meanings and artistic expressions for the peoples of the Mekong region. The third theme considered the Mekong and its tributaries not only as channels of communication and commerce, but also, in places, as daunting barriers that inhibited contacts between neighbors. Finally, the fourth theme took up the tremendous diversity—geographic, environmental, ethnic, and cultural—that characterizes the Mekong region. Throughout, the organizers and several dozen Mekong-region researchers, who carried out the fieldwork leading to the Festival, were guided by the fundamental understanding that certain core cultural values were shared among the peoples of the Mekong region, despite the great diversity of their languages, religions, and histories. This essay will trace the four themes as they came to life during field research.
Water is, of course, fundamental to life, but those of us who live in cities, where water comes from a tap and food comes from a supermarket, can easily forget how heavily human life depends on a regular supply of water. In the Mekong region, water from rainfall or diverted from rivers into irrigation systems sustains rice fields, vegetable gardens, fruit plantations, and bamboo groves. The immense plains of Northeast Thailand, much of Cambodia, and the Mekong Delta of Vietnam are the world's rice bowl. The peoples living in the region have sculpted the surface of the land to bring water to rice crops. Upriver, this may mean constructing elaborate irrigation systems with waterwheels to bring water out of rivers and into paddies. Downriver, it may involve constructing immense reservoirs like those that once sustained the great "hydraulic civilizations" of Angkor Wat in Cambodia or Wat Phou in Laos. Or it may mean dredging channels and building dikes, as in the Mekong Delta, to handle the immense floods that inundate the area in the rainy season.

Important as it is to agriculture, water is equally vital for countless varieties of fish, mammals, crustaceans, mollusks, and amphibians that, together with the staple rice, are mainstays of the diet of Mekong residents. Before rice is planted, the flooded paddies teem with small fish, snails, crabs, and frogs, and children are often sent out to the fields to catch the evening meal. In streams, ponds, and rivers, larger fish are caught in all kinds of nets and a dizzying variety of traps. Recent decades have seen intensive aquaculture in the region. This may be carried out in a hand-dug fishpond next to a rice farmer's house or in a shrimp pond carved out by

POTS AND JARS ALONG THE MEKONG

Potters are at work in villages all along the Mekong River and its tributaries. Women potters make earthenware—porous pots used for cooking directly over a flame without shattering or for cooling drinking water by evaporation. Men make stoneware—nonporous jars valuable for long-term storage. Mainland Southeast Asia is one of the few regions in the world where both kinds of pottery are still made and used in the context of everyday life.

A hypothetical village household along the Mekong may serve to demonstrate uses of earthenware and stoneware. Despite the rapid pace of modernization elsewhere, this home is not yet connected to electricity or running water. It is built of wooden boards, has an earthenware tile roof, and is raised high above the ground on a grid of posts. The enclosed second floor, reached by a staircase, provides living space, while the open area below, shaded and cool, serves for working (including women's weaving and earthenware production), visiting with neighbors, storing tools and household supplies, and sheltering farm animals.

Around the edges of the house, several barrel-shaped stoneware vats are positioned below the roof's edge to collect rainwater and store it throughout the dry months. A storeroom beneath the house contains stoneware jars made with double rims, specially designed for transforming giant earthmovers from a former rice paddy. Or it may take the form of bamboo cages, planted in the middle of small mountain streams or constructed underneath a floating houseboat in the delta. The latter method is especially important in parts of Cambodia and Vietnam, where a small bamboo house may float atop a cage that can hold a ton or more of catfish, fed by the plankton-rich waters of the Mekong and supplemented by rice husks, food scraps, and commercial feed.

Small fish and salt into the dietary staple of fermented fish. A lid rests in the depression between the outside and inside rims, and that space is filled with water to make it impermeable.

At the foot of the stairway, a freestanding post supports a round-bottomed earthenware jar at a convenient height. Anyone—household member, visitor, or passerby—can use the metal cup inverted on the jar's lid to scoop a refreshing drink of cool water. The kitchen is located on the veranda at the rear of the house. A medium-sized stoneware jar holds water for cooking and washing. Just inside the door, a large stoneware vat contains a supply of husked rice. This household eats sticky rice as its staple grain, so the kitchen has a stoneware bowl for soaking the rice grains in water and a long-necked earthenware pot, into which a conical bamboo basket fits, for steaming the rice over boiling water. Smaller, lidded pots are used for preparing soups and stews, and a still smaller pot is kept on hand for steeping herbal medicine. A conical stoneware mortar is paired with a wooden pestle for preparing food staples, such as green papaya salad, that involve grinding or mashing ingredients together. A squat stoneware jar with ventilation holes on the shoulder keeps small fish in water, ready to prepare for the evening meal.

When a festival approaches, a stoneware jar is brought out to prepare beer by fermenting cooked rice with yeast. A pair of earthenware pots composes a still for distilling liquor, which is stored in a stoneware bottle with lugs for a carrying strap.

The women of this household, engaged in textile production, use earthenware "steamer" pots for simmering silkworm cocoons and extracting the silk thread. Other earthenware pots simmer dyestuffs. Inside the house, large stoneware jars store woven textiles, safe from dust and insects.

Among her personal possessions, the grandmother keeps a palm-sized stoneware grating dish, used for grinding turmeric root into a beautifying skin lotion and received as a courtship gift. When a member of the household dies, some of the cremated remains are placed in a new earthenware pot and wrapped in a white cloth for burial.

In recent decades, many of these earthenware and stoneware vessels have been replaced by metal, plastic, or glass. Water can now be drawn from a tap and chilled in a refrigerator. Home distilling is illegal in many places. The last mainstays of village-based ceramic production are stoneware mortars and small earthenware pots for simmering medicine or burying the dead. While earthenware is marketed by foot or by truck, the Mekong's enduring role as a "highway" for distribution of goods has helped maintain communities of stoneware-jar makers in Laos, Northeast Thailand, and northeast Cambodia. Traces of older kilns surrounding these living communities map the continuity of technology over centuries.

Louise Cort is Curator for Ceramics at the Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery, Smithsonian Institution. She is the author of Shigaraki Potters' Valley (1979, reprinted 2000). She received with Leedom Lefferts a grant from the Nishida Memorial Foundation for Research in Asian Ceramic History to document village-based production of earthenware and stoneware ceramics in mainland Southeast Asia.
Where there are fish, there are fish traps. And the greater the biodiversity of a fishery, the greater the variety of traps, each one specialized to a particular species or habitat. When the diversity of fish is reduced by environmental change, folk knowledge is threatened. The Mun River, the largest tributary of the Mekong, was one of Thailand's richest rivers, supplying a large part of Northeast Thailand. A complex riverine ecosystem, consisting of rapids, islands, channels, underwater caves, and wetland forests, it was home to more than 250 different fish species. Many of the fish species migrated along the Mun River, its tributaries, or the mainstream of the Mekong at different times of the year. Communities along the Mun relied on the river for food. The cultural life of the region was defined by a complex network that managed communal fishing activities and exchanges of fish among communities.

Villagers along the Mun River have over seventy kinds of fishing gear: nets, hooks, and bamboo fish traps in every shape and size. The sophisticated knowledge and skill in making and using each type of gear are a rich heritage of the Mun River fishing communities. The most spectacular is a giant bamboo trap called tum pla yon, which can be up to fifty feet long and is used for catching yon, a catfish species.

The building of the Pak Mun Dam beginning in 1991 took away the pride and joy of the villagers. "Our lives have been destroyed by the dam," one villager told researchers for the Smithsonian Folklife Festival. The ecology of the river was turned upside down, and fish migration was severely disrupted. Today, the number of fish species has dropped to just forty-five. Some 200 villages were also profoundly affected by the dam, so their residents mobilized to defend their local heritage and their very livelihoods. After lengthy protests and negotiations, the Royal Thai Government agreed to open the dam gate four months each year, a decision vindicated subsequently by the partial return of the fish and recovery of the river ecology. The tum pla yon traps—if not the full 40–50-foot size—began to reappear.
In Dong Thap Province in Vietnam's Mekong Delta, Festival researchers encountered other environmental changes that affected local fish-trap traditions in two villages of Hoa Long commune. Until recently, farmers planted two rice crops a year, according to the natural cycles of low and high water. When rice paddies were flooded, they also provided a home to aquatic life—fish of many kinds, crabs, shrimp, frogs, and snails. Villagers fashioned a wide variety of traps suited to the small animals and shallow waters of the flooded paddies. But a socioeconomic development project brought many changes to the local rhythm of life: A large canal was dug to bring water to the area throughout the year. Every year, farmers now plant three rice crops, resulting in larger harvests and increased family income. But with the natural cycle disrupted, paddies no longer stay flooded as long between plantings; the diversity of fish and other aquatic life has been reduced. Farmers now work the paddies year-round rather than seasonally, which leaves little time for catching fish. And with the reduced biodiversity, villagers no longer fashion the variety of fish traps they once did.

Adaptable people, they have taken advantage of the changed circumstances to develop their trap-making skills into a thriving cottage industry. Instead of making a dozen different kinds of traps, families in Long Ban village have specialized in making one: the lor; villagers in nearby Long Dinh have specialized in a different trap, the lop. These products, made by families who organize their labor so each member produces one piece of the trap, are now sold throughout the Mekong Delta, even if they are hardly used anymore in the two villages.
Considering the vital role that water plays in sustaining their lives, we should not be surprised to learn that the peoples of the Mekong have developed elaborate systems of beliefs and rituals to influence the natural forces that surround this essential element. In the animist belief systems common to many Mekong residents, every stream and rivulet is animated by a spirit, whose aid can be enlisted to ensure safe passage or plentiful fish. The heavenly spirits can be appealed to for sufficient—but not excessive—rains. For many ethnic groups, animist beliefs are reinforced by Brahmanist or Buddhist cosmologies. When the rainy season has overstayed its welcome, Khmer people send singing kites of bamboo and paper high into the sky to summon the hot winds and chase away the rain clouds, so people can get on with the work of planting the year's crops. Lao and Thai send rockets skyward each year to ensure sufficient rain and plentiful harvests. They ornately decorate the rockets with the heads and scales of the sacred naga, a mythical dragon-serpent that is the master of the waters. During the annual rocket festival, which is intended to ensure fertility of rice fields and humans alike, the phallic imagery of the rockets is mirrored in ribald verses, obscene props, cross-dressing, and other rites of inversion.

Graceful yet powerful images of nagas and majestic naga heads decorate important monastic architecture, such as ordination halls or vihara (halls for Buddha images). Veneration of nagas is important to Lao, Thai, and, especially, to the Khmer. When Khmer people marry today, they invoke the mythical marriage of Prah Thong and Nagi Soma, a female

NAXI CULTURE

Yunnan Province

The Naxi people are descendants of the ancient Qiang tribe, which inhabited the Huanghe and Huangshui valleys in northwest China and then migrated south to their present-day location at the juncture of Yunnan Province, Sichuan Province, and the Tibet Autonomous Region. Today, approximately 300,000 Naxi live in China, most in Lijang City in Yunnan. Despite their lack of material wealth, the Naxi people have created a very rich and distinctive culture rooted in the Bon religion of Tibet.

The indigenous Naxi religion, known as Dongba (literally “wise man” in the Naxi language), features more than thirty rituals related to various aspects of daily life. The Naxi people pray to the heavens, mountains, forests, rivers, stars, ancestors, gods, and spirits for a peaceful life, good family relations, and an abundant livelihood. “Dongba” also refers to Naxi priests and their language and places great emphasis on maintaining a balance between human beings and nature.

In northwestern Yunnan Province a Naxi Dongba priest performs at the sacred Baishuitai Springs, revered as the birthplace of Dongba culture. Photo by Frank Proschan, Smithsonian Institution.
The bride gives areca (palms) to the groom as Princess Soma did to Prince Thong. She must also give him a silk sampot hoi (tube-skirt), whose tie-dyed motifs evoke the scales of the naga and recall how Prah Thong donned the guise of a naga to pass safely with his new bride through the kingdom of the nagas. As the newlyweds enter the bride’s room, the groom must hold onto the end of her scarf, as Thong did Soma’s. Wedding musicians play the song, “Prah Thong and Nagi Soma.”

The seven-headed naga, which sheltered the Buddha from rain, serves as a gateway to Wat Phnom in the center of Phnom Penh, Cambodia. Photo by Slim Paeply, courtesy Smithsonian Institution

Only fifty or so Naxi Dongba priests can read the approximately 2,000 pictographs that make up the Naxi Dongba script (see translation below). There are efforts, however, to teach younger priests and even children in the schools. Courtesy Smithsonian Institution

A Naxi person, Sai ma nee chei mi, lets a red tiger act as his riding horse, lets a white stag act as his farm cattle, lets wild pheasants and white pheasants act as his cockcrow

The pictographic writing used by the Naxi people, known as the Dongba script, is one of the few pictographic systems still in use. Consisting of more than 2,000 separate characters, Dongba pictography has been used primarily to record what is read or chanted at Dongba religious rituals. But the pictographs have also been used to document history and culture—creating a virtual encyclopaedia of the Naxi people. Because the pictograms are so distinctive, Dongba texts have been collected and preserved by many museums and libraries around the world since the 1920s. An estimated 20,000 unique texts are said to exist.

Yang Fuquan is currently Professor and Vice President at the Yunnan Academy of Social Sciences. He is an expert on Chinese ethnic history with a focus on Naxi studies. He has also held positions at Cologne University in Germany, the University of California-Davis, and Whitman College.
Throughout the Mekong basin, rice is the major crop and staple diet. People offer rice—cooked or dry—to appease the spirits and restore health and well-being. Spirits and other non-human entities that have power to influence nature and human destiny need to be fed just as human beings do. Common, especially in the Lao and Thai-speaking communities from southern Yunnan into northern Cambodia, is the ritual offering called bai-si or bai-si. This is basically a cooked-rice offering presented in a banana leaf container, elaborately decorated with flowers and often topped with a boiled egg.

A common occasion for offering a bai-si is a ceremony for calling the khuan, a life essence that breathes vitality into a body. When a person needs some physical or moral strength, such as when departing on a long journey, moving into a new house, getting married, or suffering from illness, a bai-si su khuan ceremony is performed to bind his or her life essence securely to his or her body. During the ceremony, the subject of the ritual and members of his or her family or community sit around a bai-si offering. The ritual is led by a khuan master, usually an elderly person regarded as a specialist in communicating with the life essence, who chants traditional texts inviting the khuan to reside in the body. The master of the ceremony binds the khuan by tying a piece of cotton thread around the wrist of the person in need of strength; the master then ties the wrists of other guests, who in turn tie the wrists of the ritual’s subject.

Generally, women make the bai-si offering. Some offerings are simple; others, highly elaborate, made from tiny pieces of banana leaves rolled tightly into little cones and attached to bamboo or wooden frames to form several tiers. Larger and more elaborate offerings are usually for important celebrations and require a lot of time and several hands to complete.

Two women from the Lathin Temple in Lampang Province, Thailand, make a bai-si offering of banana leaves and flowers. The offering takes the shape of a krathong, a small structure with three, five, seven, or nine tiers. Photo by Panita Sarawasee, Sinndhorn Anthropology Centre.
Women from uplands and lowlands along the Mekong River and its tributaries produce some of the world’s most beautiful and technically sophisticated weaving. The interaction between weaver, loom, and yarn results in textiles that are artistic treasures suitable for daily life.

Many weavers from cultures of the Mekong region use back-tensioned looms. The weaver sits on the floor or ground, while her back, extended legs, and feet place tension on the warp for inserting the weft yarn into the shed. The upright loom came to Southeast Asia about 1,000 years ago when members of Tai cultures migrated from southern China. The wooden frame of this loom creates tension for the weaving elements suspended within it, which gives the weaver enough flexibility to create long pieces of cloth.

Traditional fibers include hemp, homegrown cotton, and silk from silkworms raised in villages. Today, some weavers use durable synthetic yarn, however, local, naturally dyed yarns are returning to the Mekong region as consumers request them.

The traditional dress for men and women of most cultures in Southeast Asia was a wraparound skirt and a separate shawl to cover the chest. Lowland women made men’s skirts of higher quality silk than they used in their own skirts. Men of the hills tended to wear loin cloths. Local women carefully designed and wove tailored clothing was more common among the Chinese of the northern Mekong, the Vietnamese, and recent immigrants to the Mekong region, such as the Hmong, Akha, and Nung, who were heavily influenced by Chinese practices. The blouses, shirts, and tailored trousers found throughout the region today are garments adding inspired by Western definitions of modesty and modernity.

Often the simplest Mekong River textiles are the most treasured. They include the robes of Theravada Buddhist monks, the elegant textiles of the Cambodian and Thai rulers and elite, and the garments worn by ordinary people to religious services. These textiles can be difficult to produce because they require high quality yarn, subtle dyes, and complex weaving.

At the other extreme, decoration on mainland Southeast Asia women’s skirts and shawls can be very intricate. Today, these designs continue to employ some of the extra-ordinarily complicated weaving techniques found in older textiles of the Mekong region. The patterns range from subtle “pinstripes” of twisted yarn to dazzling compound designs that incorporate tie-dyed yarn, continuous supplementary warp striping, and continuous and discontinuous supplementary weft. Such textiles show off the weaver’s accomplishments and the wearer’s prestige.

The women of the Mekong continue to weave beautiful textiles amidst the proliferation of shoddier products that sell cheaply. Discerning buyers directly support the continuation of a great regional textile tradition.

Leedom Lefferts is Professor of Anthropology, Emeritus, Drew University, Madison, New Jersey, and Research Associate, Department of Anthropology, Smithsonian Institution. He has researched in mainland Southeast Asia since 1970, initially focusing on the peoples of Northeast Thailand and, after 1990, on those throughout the Mekong River area.
Along its length, the Mekong grows from a small river threading its way between steep mountains to a huge torrent passing over a vast alluvial plain, where, at flood season, one cannot easily see from one bank to the opposite. In its upper reaches, there is no question of navigating the river—its rushing waters and twists and turns make boat travel impossible. Farther downriver, long stretches are navigable by boats and barges, but they are interrupted periodically by formidable rapids that impede travel over longer distances. In Cambodia and Vietnam, the Mekong remains a primary highway for moving people and freight. The rice that grows in the fertile floodplain of the Mekong Delta begins its journey to world markets, not on trucks or trains but on barges or large boats. The main tributaries that flow into the Mekong up and down its length are also vital arteries for moving goods and passengers. Even smaller streams may be navigated by the swallowtail canoes characteristic of the Lao and Thai, by dugout canoes in the highlands, or by the plank boats of the Vietnamese.

For centuries, peoples in the Mekong region traveled along the rivers to get to and from markets on the riverbanks, to carry goods to waiting customers, and to seek better farmland or new economic opportunities. Along these routes, history has seen sometimes-massive migrations that have shaped and reshaped the ethnic landscape of the region over the millennia. At other moments in history, large tributaries and, especially, the mainstream of the Mekong have served as barriers to travel. Where today bridges span the Mekong, travelers once relied entirely on ferries that might range from simple canoes to large vessels with room for trucks and buses. A natural boundary, at times the Mekong has served to separate peoples with very similar cultures and traditions. Today, the region is increasingly integrated economically; huge highway- and bridge-construction projects tie the countries together as never before. The third theme of the Mekong program considered the river and its tributaries as channels of communication and commerce, focusing particularly on the recent economic dynamism of the region.

Earthenware pottery has a long history in Andong Russei, Ban Chkol, and other villages in Kampong Chhnang, an hour’s drive northwest of the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh. Potters fashioned simple but striking utilitarian ware: cookstoves, cooking pots, jars for storing water and food, and jars for making the famous Khmer fermented fish paste, prahok. Using an ancient technique of hand-shaping pots with a paddle and anvil, village women took advantage of the rich clay deposits on nearby Krang Dei Meas Mountain to develop a craft industry that gained a reputation beyond Phnom Penh. Although women are the producers, their husbands and brothers carry the pottery to market, loading oxcarts high before setting out on selling trips that might take them to the farthest corners of Cambodia, the region, and the world. Some enterprising families now truck several cartloads of pots to buyers. Vendors return weeks later with news of the outside world, ideas for new products, and feedback from customers so that ongoing production can respond to market demands.

*Chev Un of Kampong Chhnang was recognized by the Royal Academy of Cambodia in 2004 as Proeudthacar Vappakthor Sellapak Khmer (Emeritus Artist of Khmer Arts and Culture).*

Photo by Korakot Boonlert, courtesy Smithsonian Institution.

Pottery villages have recently been recipients—but not passive ones—of international development assistance. A German aid organization introduced foot-kicked potter’s wheels to supplement the traditional paddle and anvil technology. The first wheels were built according to expert German specifications. But villagers quickly concluded that Cambodian potters’ bodies were not built according to German specifications, so they began adapting the wheels to Cambodian women. They also made an important decision as a community: Before beginning to learn how to throw pots on the wheel, young villagers would first master the traditional paddle and anvil technique. Only after they had gained experience working the clay in the age-old manner could young potters try their hand at the new potter’s wheel. Village potters took a similar pragmatic approach to the introduction of kilns and new products suggested by the Germans. They stuck with some, abandoned others, and designed still others to respond to the tastes of their ever-increasing network of customers.

One textile tradition in Laos offers another example of the far-reaching ties of commerce in the Mekong region. In northeastern Laos’s Xieng Khouang Province, near the provincial capital Phonsavan, Hmong embroiderers in Ban Khangdong practice the distinctive paj naub (flower cloth) needlework, which calls for cross-stitch embroidery and reverse appliqué. Even thirty years ago, this might have been done on handwoven cotton or hemp fabric, but today the needleworkers buy industrially woven cotton, synthetic fabric, or blends in Phonsavan market, along with embroidery thread from China or Thailand. Beside their racks of needlework-adorned wedding or festival dresses, Hmong shopkeepers display pleated skirts decorated with bank (wax-resist) patterns. Villagers in Ban Khangdong no longer make the time-consuming batik skirts, preferring those made by Hmong and Miao across the northern border in Guangxi and Yunnan provinces of China. Their own needlework products are sold locally, transported to Vientiane’s Morning Market to sell to international tourists, or shipped to Hmong relatives in Minnesota or California. While textile collectors prize the indigo-dyed hemp fabric and naturally dyed embroidery threads, Hmong prefer and find convenient the brighter, chemically dyed, and ready-made polyester-cotton fabric.
As researchers prepared for the 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival, they were reminded time and again of how diverse the Mekong region is—geographically and environmentally as well as ethnically and linguistically. Relations among its peoples were not always generally friendly and peaceful as they are today. Only four decades ago, much of the region was engulfed in war. Peace returned to some areas only in the last fifteen years. Although ethnicity was rarely the main cause of strife, many conflicts had ethnic dimensions. One ethnic group aligned against a neighboring group, or a single ethnic group divided along regional, clan, or familial lines.

The ethnic landscape of the region is partly the result of conflicts, which, over the centuries, gave rise to large-scale migrations as ethnic groups fled from war or turmoil to seek new homes, sometimes hundreds or thousands of miles from their former land, or were taken in large numbers as prisoners of war or as conscripts. Over time, such immigrants often crafted new identities. The Lao Song communities in Central Thailand, for instance, can trace their ancestry to the Black Tai homeland of northwestern Vietnam, the area now known as Dien Bien Phu, but have created a new ethnic identity since their arrival in provinces to the southwest of Bangkok at the end of the eighteenth century. The Hmong, Mien, Lisu, and other groups, who now live in the highest mountains of Yunnan and northern Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam, migrated into the Mekong watershed in the wake of the Taiping Rebellion that engulfed much of southern China in the mid-nineteenth century, during the Qing Dynasty. The Cham weavers who come to the Smithsonian Folklife Festival from Chau Phong in Vietnam’s Mekong Delta have counterparts north of Phnom Penh in Cambodia and as far away as Bangkok. In the 1950s, Jim Thompson relied upon the skilled hands of Cham weavers to build his now-famous Thai Silk Company.

[Left] Some Phu Tai people migrated from Laos to Northeast Thailand roughly two hundred years ago and brought with them a variety of weaving traditions. Mrs. Pael from Ban Phone, Kalasin Province, is a weaver of the phrae wa textiles that are popular throughout Thailand. Photo by Supara Maneerat, courtesy Smithsonian Institution.

[Upper right] The instruments in this Khmer ensemble represent the confluence of Indian, Chinese, and indigenous influences. Photo by Robin A. Kent.

[Lower right] Wherever you find Khmer people, musicians—like these in An Thuan village, An Giang Province, in Vietnam’s Mekong Delta—are an indispensable part of weddings. Photo by Frank Pippichan, Smithsonian Institution.
KHMER MUSIC ALONG THE MEKONG

Khmer music is a vital aspect of Khmer life and culture, epitomizing Cambodia—its society, art, customs, and beliefs. Khmer music in Cambodia and in the Khmer communities in Thailand and Vietnam has been shaped by four very different influences: Indian, Chinese, European, and indigenous traditions. Hinduism and Buddhism inspired local religious music, the great Indian epic, the Ramayana influenced dance. The oboes and double-headed barrel drums of Khmer ensembles originated in India. The Chinese introduced two-stringed fiddles, hammered dulcimers, drums, and cymbals, the Europeans, musical notation.

Not surprisingly, ancient Khmer civilization, which reached its peak during the Angkor period from the ninth to the fifteenth centuries, had a great influence on all aspects of culture including music. In the cities of Angkor stand gigantic structures that symbolize the union of celestial beings with earthly ones. Carved on the walls of those great temples are figures of the apsara (celestial nymphs or dancers) and musical instruments, such as the pinn (angular harp), memm (suspended monochord), khse muoy (plucked monochord or musical bowl), sralai (quadruple-reed oboe), korng (large, double-headed barrel drum), skoryol (small, double-headed barrel drum), and skor thomm (large, double-headed barrel drum)—all still played today. Because instruments of contemporary Khmer music are similar to those on the bas-reliefs of Angkor, we have every reason to believe that present-day Khmer musical forms are the continuation of the ancient Khmer musical traditions.

Khmer music is still passed on orally from master musician to pupil, as it likely was in ancient times. Virtually every village in Cambodia has a group of these musicians. In these ensembles, female vocalists are the norm, however, women are rarely musicians.

The musicians have a melody in mind but do not play it straight; instead, they embellish it. This ornamentation is inherent to rendering Khmer music.

Khmer music is varied. Some is ritualistic, other music is primarily entertaining. Ritual music has the power to put a medium into a trance or please the spirits. Other less serious forms of music, such as that played at weddings, enliven the atmosphere and the mind. Music accompanies every Khmer from the cradle. It reflects the soul and character of the Khmer people.

Sam-Ang Sam is a Cambodian American ethnomusicologist and a MacArthur Fellow. As founder of the Sam-Ang Sam Ensemble, he has released several albums to stimulate interest in the various Cambodian performing arts. He now serves as dean at Pannasastra University, Phnom Penh.
In many parts of the Mekong region, ethnic groups straddle the borders of two or more nations, not because the people migrated but because international boundaries were drawn according to geography and political history rather than culture or language. Beyond the borders of Cambodia, more than one million Khmer live in Northeast Thailand and another million-plus in Vietnam’s Mekong Delta. The Lao people on the left bank of the Mekong in the Lao People’s Democratic Republic and the Thai Lao on the right bank in the Kingdom of Thailand share a language and many cultural traditions. At the same time, there is tremendous diversity even within a group that identifies itself as sharing a single identity. The Lao of the capital city Vientiane, those of the ancient royal capital Luang Prabang, those of downriver cities such as Savannakhet and Pakse, and those of Attapeu in the southeast or Sam Neua in the northeast are proud of their distinctive local foodways, musical styles, weaving patterns, and accents. The lam singing of Salavan and Mahaxay and the khap singing of the Phouan people or the Tai Daeng, all from Laos, have their counterparts in the lam singing of Northeast Thailand. All part of one grand tradition, each type of singing is quite distinct in style and instrumentation and is instantly recognizable to local audiences and international fans.

Where people of different ethnic groups live side by side, they often engage in specialized craft production and exchange their goods through complex networks. Thus, in northern Laos, Khmu are known for bamboo and rattan basketry, their Lao and Tai neighbors for cloth, and the Hmong for metalwork. At a highland market, Khmu artisans sell their sturdy and beautiful baskets and buy silk or cotton skirts from Lao or Tai Daeng weavers; the Lao weaver turns to the Hmong silversmith to purchase a bracelet or necklace, and the jeweler returns to the Khmu basket maker to buy a Hmong-style rattan back-basket. In Ban Chok village in Thailand’s Surin Province, Khmer silversmiths produce goods to appeal to local Khmer buyers, Cambodians, and urban consumers in Bangkok jewelry shops.
Festival researchers encountered an interesting situation in Binh An village in the Mekong Delta province of Long An, not far from Ho Chi Minh City. The village has been famous for its wooden drums for five generations, since the late nineteenth century when villager Nguyen Van Ty traveled to a nearby province and learned the craft. Today, villagers travel periodically to Ho Chi Minh City to buy water buffalo skins to cover drumheads. The buffalo are raised in the Central Highlands; hardwood for the drum bodies comes from the Central Highlands or from across the border in Cambodia. Although the drum makers themselves are ethnically Viet, their customers are Viet, Khmer, or Hoa (Sino-Vietnamese). The drums they make are as diverse as their customers. For Viet buyers, the Binh An drum makers fashion large barrel drums to hang in village schoolyards to summon children to classes or in local shrines and temples for use in annual agricultural rituals. They also make small single- or double-headed frame drums for musical performances or mediumship rites. For Hoa customers in Ho Chi Minh City or smaller cities and towns around the Mekong Delta, they make special barrel drums for dragon- and lion-dance teams. Khmer musicians come to Binh An from nearby provinces to order skor thom barrel drums, sampho double-tension drums, or goblet-shaped drums for the khmyam mask dance.

Today, the drum makers in Binh An village are busier than ever because of two seemingly unrelated policy decisions by the Vietnamese government. In recent years, increased religious freedom and reforms in cultural policy have encouraged a widespread revival of village festivals and family rituals in Vietnam. Simultaneous economic reforms have brought previously undreamed of prosperity to many, allowing them to spend money on festivals and rites and buy better-quality drums. A few widely known master drum makers command high prices, but some twenty households produce lower-priced drums for sale in shops in Ho Chi Minh City and the Delta. When the master drum makers get an order too large to fill themselves, they enlist neighboring families to share the work as subcontractors.

(Left to right) These novice monks in Tra Set village, Soc Trang Province, are part of the Khmer community in the Mekong Delta of Vietnam. The Tra Set Buddhist temple teaches young novices Khmer writing as well as Buddhist teachings. Photos by Le H. Lan, courtesy Vietnam Museum of Ethnology.

Many Lisu have migrated from Myanmar or southern China to northern Thailand in the past seventy-five years. These musicians still perform traditional songs but wear a mix of traditional and Western dress. Photo by Robert Field.

Dancing the drum helps to stretch the drumhead, which is made of water buffalo skin. After stretching, the drums of Binh An village, Long An Province, Vietnam, will resound loudly. Photo by Frank Pierson, Smithsonian Institution.
While preparing for the 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival, nearly 100 Mekong-region researchers fanned out across five countries (omitting Myanmar because of U.S. laws that would have made its participation impractical). The researchers visited mountain villages and lowland cities, from northern Yunnan to southernmost Vietnam. They visited rice farmers and fishing families, potters and weavers, woodcarvers and silversmiths to conduct hours of interviews and take almost 20,000 documentary photographs. All of the researchers were citizens of the five featured countries, and most were lifelong residents of the Mekong watershed. During their research, they were reminded time and again of the core cultural values that peoples of the region share and of the many ways in which they express them. Distinctions of language, foodways, clothing, and lifeways mark each environment, each locality, and each community.

The Mekong region is one whose citizens attach great importance to their cultural heritage; they relish the taste of home cooking and the sounds of familiar music. Even if many people proudly maintain age-old traditions, nowhere has time stood still. The region today is one of dizzyingly rapid socioeconomic change, as regional economic integration, rural development, urban migrations, and revolutions in communications bring huge changes to people’s daily lives. Many are experiencing a prosperity that they could not have imagined even a decade ago. But not all changes are positive, and developments that bring advantages in one direction—increasing the yields of rice paddies through improved irrigation systems, for instance—may diminish the variety of cultural traditions that characterizes the region. Dams on major tributaries or even the mainstream of the Mekong may be important to generate electricity to fuel the region’s economic growth, but they also diminish the diversity of fish and affect water levels upstream and downstream. Bridges and highways now span the Mekong region. They tie its peoples together, permit increased trade, and provide access to once-

THE MEKONG FLOWS INTO AMERICA

There are more than two million Americans who trace their ancestry to the Mekong River region of Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan, China. A vast majority of these immigrants and refugees arrived in the United States between 1975 and 1995.

The conflict known in the United States as the Vietnam War (1965-1975) caused the dislocation and death of millions from Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. During the uncertain years that followed the war and the barbaric rule of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, hundreds of thousands of refugees came to the United States, where government agencies, churches, and nongovernmental organizations settled them. While they have adapted to their new life in the United States, many of these refugees actively work to keep their cultural traditions alive. Buddhist temples, community cultural centers, and annual celebrations serve to pass on long-held community traditions to the second and third generations of immigrants. In the past decade, thousands of refugee families have returned to the region to reconnect with the villages and towns of their birth. Many of these new Americans have also developed economic and cultural ties with the countries they fled only decades ago.

Cambodian students practice at Vatt Buddhikarama, a Cambodian temple in Maryland. Communities retain identity and encourage pride among second-generation Cambodian Americans through dance and music classes.

Photo by Viseth Dy, courtesy Cambodian Buddhist Society, Inc.
isolated areas, but they may in the long run diminish local diversity as newly available industrial goods supplant locally produced, handmade products.

Visitors to The Mekong River: Connecting Cultures program will not hear the sounds of cocks crowing to welcome the rising sun or of kites soaring to chase away the clouds. They will not smell the pungent fumes of burning gunpowder as rockets in the shape of naga’s loft skyward to ensure sufficient rain or the heady odors of fish fermenting in pots to make Cambodian prahok, Lao phat, or Vietnamese mam ca. They will not see the pockets of fog settling into Yunnan mountain passes in the morning sun, the flood waters stretching from one horizon to the other at the end of the rainy season, or the verdant green of rice paddies as far as the eye can see. But we hope that the two hundred musicians, singers, cooks, craftspeople, ritual specialists, and dancers who have come to the banks of the Potomac from the banks of the Mekong will, nevertheless, give visitors a sense of the region and its remarkable people.

Frank Proschan is Program Specialist for UNESCO’s Intangible Cultural Heritage Section in Paris. He began his career at the Smithsonian Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage in 1975, serving as its first archivist (1975–1978) and as a staff folklorist (1980–1984 and 2000–2004). A specialist in the ethnology and folklore of mainland Southeast Asia, Proschan carried out his Ph.D. research with Khmu highlanders from Laos living as refugees in the United States.

Pattita Chalermprawat Ronanatukool is Director of the Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn Anthropology Centre in Bangkok, Thailand, a public organization that promotes data collection and research in anthropology and related human sciences. Her doctoral dissertation—written at Cambridge University in England—examined the shadow puppet tradition in southern Thailand. Her research interests cover performing arts, dance, and culture, cultural identity, anthropology of the body, indigenous knowledge, material culture, and local museums.

Northern Ireland

at the Smithsonian

The Northern Ireland at the Smithsonian program takes place at a seminal moment in Northern Irish history, following a ten-year period of relative peace and stability and the restoration of Northern Ireland’s political institutions. We are honored to have more than 160 participants from throughout Northern Ireland—the region’s finest performers, artists, craftspeople, cooks, athletic coaches, and occupational experts—join us on the National Mall to explain, demonstrate, and celebrate contemporary life in their beautiful, dynamic homeland.

This Festival program may come as a surprise to some of our visitors. Like so much else about contemporary Northern Ireland, day-to-day reality transcends assumptions and challenges stereotypes. Northern Ireland is changing rapidly: today, it is a sophisticated, forward-looking society with a booming post-industrial economy and a renewed sense of confidence in the future. Traditional culture, which in the past sometimes divided communities, now contributes to a shared future and fosters inter-community relationships.
Northern Ireland’s greatest strengths have always been the warmth, hospitality, and humor of its people. It is also one of the world’s most physically beautiful regions. Comprising 5,460 square miles, it is only slightly larger than the state of Connecticut. It has a population of approximately 1.7 million and five cities—each with its own unique character—and Belfast as its capital. It also has a large rural community that consists of a network of market towns and villages. Part of the United Kingdom, it shares a verdant island with the Republic of Ireland and is comprised of six of the nine counties of the ancient province of Ulster—Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone.

Few regions of the world have contributed more to the formation of modern American culture than Northern Ireland. Since the seventeenth century, a succession of immigrants from the region has had a profound impact on the development of the United States, heavily influencing culture, politics, education, science, religion, agriculture, and industry. At least seventeen of the United States’ forty-three presidents are claimed to have Northern Irish ancestry.

The cultural wealth and diversity of Northern Ireland has only recently begun to attract the international attention it deserves. We hope that the 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival program, as well as numerous ancillary events planned for the Washington, D.C.-area in the months preceding the Festival, will encourage Americans to rediscover Northern Ireland.

There is room in this program book to touch only lightly on the region’s ancient and complex cultures. Historians Jonathan Bardon and Paul Nolan provide brief but enlightening overviews of Northern Ireland’s history; singer/songwriter Colm Sands eloquently introduces its performing arts traditions; folklorist Linda Ballard discusses its traditional crafts; food critic and historian Harry Owens provides a taste of its culinary culture; and Richard McCormick comments on its sports culture. In addition to English, two other languages are spoken in Northern Ireland: Máiread Nic Craith introduces us to Irish and Mark Thompson to Ulster-Scots. We hope these experts’ articles will introduce Festival visitors to the fabled past, vibrant present, and exciting future of this beautiful place.

Nancy Groce, Curator of Northern Ireland at the Smithsonian, is a folklorist, historian, and ethnomusicologist. She holds a Ph.D. in American Studies and has authored numerous books and articles on music, folklore, and culture. In addition to this exhibition, she has curated past Festival programs on New York City, Scotland, and Alberta.
Human beings are relatively new inhabitants of Ireland. The oldest evidence of them, near Coleraine, dates to around 7,200 B.C.E. Celtic-speaking Gaels, skilled with horses and iron weapons, controlled the island by the beginning of the Christian era.

Ireland escaped Roman conquest and invasion by Germanic tribes. Not until the end of the eighth century did Ireland attract the attention of aggressive outsiders, the Vikings.

A century after they overwhelmed England, the Normans came to Ireland. They quickly overran much of the south and west, yet Norman hold of Ulster’s coastlands remained precarious. By the late fifteenth century, all Ulster, save the castle of Carrickfergus, had fallen outside the English Crown’s control.

The sixteenth century witnessed seismic change. England became a powerful, centralized state under Tudor monarchs. It also became Protestant, so its rulers could not afford to allow Catholic powers—Spain in particular—to threaten the realm from the west by making common cause with disaffected Irish. In the reign of Elizabeth, the Gaelic lords of Ulster, commanded by Hugh O’Neill, the Earl of Tyrone, led Ireland’s ferocious resistance. After a succession of humiliating reverses, the English finally succeeded in crushing the people of Ulster only by slaughtering their cattle and laying waste their cornfields. When O’Neill surrendered in the spring of 1603, Ulster was swept by a terrible man-made famine. Bitter religious division in Europe made Ireland’s defeat all the worse. The English conquerors left a dreadful legacy of resentment and suspicion to reverberate down the centuries.

The Gaelic nobles of Ulster found it impossible to adjust to the new regime. In September 1607, they sailed away from Lough Swilly in north Donegal, never to return. King James I, the first ruler of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, seized the opportunity in 1609 to embark on the most ambitious scheme of colonization ever undertaken in Western Europe—the Plantation of Ulster. The King’s British subjects—provided they were Protestants—were invited to colonize vast tracts of confiscated land in six counties. And come they did, eventually in the tens of thousands.

Built in 1177 by the Normans, Carrickfergus Castle has played a pivotal role in Ireland’s history for centuries.

Photo credit: North West Regional Tourist Bureau.
This grandiose project, however, was only partially successful. Colonists had been told that the natives had been largely wiped out by war and famine, but during the first decades of the Plantation, they found themselves everywhere outnumbered by them. The conquered Irish in turn faced an influx of planters, speaking an alien tongue, professing a religion they regarded as heretical, abiding by laws that were unfamiliar to them, and intent on dispossessing them. Political instability in England ensured that blood would flow for the rest of the seventeenth century. As Parliament prepared to wage war on Charles I, the Ulster Irish massed thousands of British settlers in 1564. Scottish troops and the forces of Parliament then exacted fearsome revenge. The ascendancy of a Catholic King, James II, in 1685, once again precipitated full-scale war in Ireland.

For a brief period, Ireland became the cockpit of Europe. Driven out of England by his nobles and William of Orange (ruler of Holland), James came to Ireland with a large professional army. The epic resistance of the colonists, who took refuge in the walled city of Londonderry, gave William time to bring a great multinational army to Ulster. William routed James near Drogheda by the Boyne River on July 1, 1690, and his army finally triumphed at Aughrin in the far west on July 12, 1691.

William's victories, celebrated by northern Protestants every year thereafter, were so complete that Ireland enjoyed a century of peace. Penal legislation deprived Catholics of political rights, access to public office, and employment in the legal profession. A law that prevented Catholics from buying land ensured that by 1780 Protestants (who formed approximately one quarter of the population) owned 95 percent of the land. Nevertheless, the island prospered, benefiting as it did indirectly from the expansion of colonial trade. The population rose from about two million in 1700 to over five million in 1800.

Ulster had been Ireland's poorest province. Now it flourished as never before, largely due to the development of the linen trade. Fearful of Irish competition, the Westminster parliament legislated to restrict exports of Irish wool and cattle. By contrast, linen was given official encouragement. Manufacture of linen in Ulster was at first essentially a domestic industry carried on, for the most part, by people who divided their time between farming and making yarn and cloth. The heart of the industry was the "linen triangle," which extended from Dungannon in the center of Ulster, east to Lisburn, and south to Armagh; then, as output increased, Newry was drawn in. During the second half of the eighteenth century, drapers bought cloth unbleached, thus giving weavers a quicker return for their work. In effect, these linen merchants became Ulster's first capitalists by investing their profits in bleach greens, where, with the aid of water power, they finished the cloth to the high standard required by the English market. The drapers, in short, made sure that Ulster had an important and early role to play in Europe's first industrial revolution.

In spite of the robust economy, many Presbyterians in Ulster grew restless and sought a better life across the Atlantic. Immigration to America commenced when Protestant Scots had almost ceased immigrating to Ulster. Irish Catholics had neither the resources nor the inclination to go to British colonies that were still overwhelmingly Protestant.

"The good Bargins of var lands in that country doe greatly encourage me to pluck up my spirits and make reedi for the journey, for we are now oppressed with our lands at 8s an acre." David Lindsay explained to his Pennsylvania cousins in 1758. By 1776, emigration from Ulster was reaching about ten thousand a year. Already accustomed to being on the move and clearing and defending their land, these "Scotch-Irish" were drawn to the "back country," there to push forward European settlement by frontier skirmishing with Pontiac and other Native Americans.

As the eighteenth century progressed, the Enlightenment made inroads in Ireland. Most of the Penal Laws were repealed, although Catholics still could not become members of Parliament. Inspired first by the American Revolution and then by the French Revolution, some Presbyterians in eastern Ulster campaigned for a representative Irish parliament (which in effect represented only the Episcopalian aristocracy and gentry). Some, calling themselves the United Irishmen, made common cause with the oppressed Catholic peasantry and prepared to fight with French help for an independent republic. Protestants in central and western Ulster, in contrast, formed the Orange Order in 1795 to defend Protestant rights.

When rebellion came in 1798, it began the bloodiest episode in modern Irish history—more than 30,000 met with violent deaths before the year was over.

The Westminster government responded to the insurrection in Ireland by deciding that the island must be ruled directly from London. The privileged, unrepresentative Irish parliament was caajoled and bribed into voting itself out of existence, and in January 1801, the Act of Union came into force. Now Ireland became an integral part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. The viceroy, Lord Cornwallis, observed that the mass of the Irish people did not "care one farthing" about the Union, for or against. He was probably right. But the "Protestant Ascendancy," the nobility, hated losing their exclusive parliament, and many Orange lodges—feared that the Union would bring with it "Catholic Emancipation" (the right of Catholics to attend Parliament)—petitioned against it.

The ensuing decades witnessed a radical change in opinion. The Union became a burning issue with profound consequences for Ulster, and it remains the single most important issue in Northern Irish elections to this day. Protestants found that the sky did not fall in after the Union: they retained privileged control of public services, elections, the legal profession, and local government. Catholics, generally in favor of the Union at first, turned against it because it did not allow them to attend Parliament. Emancipation had to be wrested from a reluctant Westminster government in 1829. Then, as nationalism spread, the demand for restoration of a Dublin parliament grew stronger. Daniel O'Connell led the movement in the 1830s and 1840s.
Irish politics became polarized along religious lines. Almost all Catholics of every class sought some form of Irish independence. The economy over most of the island had not fared well under the Union, and when potato blight struck in the 1840s, a million people died of hunger and disease, and over a million others immigrated, mostly to America. Apart from some high-profile men such as John Mitchel, Isaac Butt, and Charles Stewart Parnell, the great majority of Irish Protestants now closed ranks in support of the Union because they feared Catholics would dominate an Irish parliament. In the Northeast, where Protestants formed a comfortable majority, the Union had already been a striking success.

Belfast in the nineteenth century became the fastest-growing urban center in the United Kingdom. Its population, merely 19,000 in 1801, had reached 350,000 a hundred years later. Belfast's industrial revolution began with the production of cotton yarn by power-driven machinery. Then, in the 1830s, entrepreneurs adapted their machinery to the steam-driven manufacture of linen. During the American Civil War, when Lancashire was starved of supplies of raw cotton, Ulster's linen industry experienced an unparalleled boom. Belfast became—and remained for some time—the world center of linen production. The president of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce, H. O. Lanyon, made this estimation in 1865:

I find the length of yarn produced in the year amounts to about 644,000,000 miles, making a thread which would encircle the world 25,000 miles. If it could be used for a telephone wire it would give us six lines to the sun, and about 380 besides to the moon. The exports of linen in 1804 measured about 156,000,000 yards, which would make a girdle for the earth at the Equator three yards wide, or cover an area of 32,000 acres, or it would reach from end to end of the County of Down, one mile wide.

An engineering industry emerged to provide flax machinery. The deepening of the sea channel to Belfast docks led directly to the opening of the most remarkable chapter in Ulster's economic story. Shipbuilding began on an artificial island created from waste mud in Belfast Lough in the 1850s. Under the dynamic management of Edward Harland, iron and later steel vessels were constructed in a revolutionary manner. During the American Civil War, the Confederates purchased some of these ships in order to outrun the Northern states' blockade. Then, in partnership with Gustav Wolff, Harland supplied one of the world's largest shipping firms, the White Star Line of Liverpool, with all its transatlantic passenger liners.

By the beginning of the twentieth century, Belfast's shipyard built the biggest ships in the world. Belfast became Ireland's largest city and the port of third importance in the United Kingdom. The city also had the biggest linen mill, dry dock, tobacco factory, rope works, flax-machinery factory, spiral-guided gasometer, aerated-waters factory, fan-making, tea machinery works, handkerchief factory, and colored Christmas card-printing works in the world.

The people, however, were more sharply divided than before on Ireland's political future. When the British government decided in 1912 to give the island "Home Rule" (a devolved government in Dublin), Ulster Protestants pledged themselves to use "all means which may be found" to prevent it. By the summer of 1914, as rival paramilitary armies paraded the streets, the country seemed headed for civil war.

Civil war was postponed by the outbreak of the First World War. Catholics and Protestants in almost equal numbers enlisted voluntarily to fight in the trenches against the German Empire and its allies. A small minority of Republicans preferred to use the war to fight for independence. Their uprising during Easter week of 1916 was crushed in less than a week, but seeing that there was still no parliament in Dublin, Irish nationalists became disillusioned and sought complete independence.

The British government, eager to extract itself from the Irish imbroglio, decided in 1920 to partition Ireland into Northern Ireland, composed of the six northeastern counties, with a devolved parliament in Belfast, and Southern Ireland, made up of the remaining twenty-six counties, with a Home Rule parliament. That solution was quickly rejected by nationalists; they fought on and won independence (within the British Empire) in December 1921. Northern Ireland, despite ferocious intercommunal warfare between 1920 and 1922, survived intact as part of the United Kingdom. The British government's arrangement for Northern Ireland suited the Protestant majority very well.

Although peace returned in 1923, the economy continued to suffer. The First World War dramatically altered global trading conditions. Other countries, such as the United States, Japan, and Germany, were able to build ships more cheaply and rapidly than Belfast. Linen faced a rising challenge from cheaper cotton, changing fashion, and the first synthetic fibers. Around one fifth of the male workforce was unemployed in the 1920s, and following the 1929 Wall Street Crash, more than one quarter was out of work.
When world war came again in 1939, the efforts of Belfast's aging Unionist government to protect citizens proved woefully inadequate. The city suffered severely from German air attack during the spring of 1941: more citizens lost their lives in one night's raid on Belfast than any other city in the United Kingdom save London. Thereafter, Northern Ireland became an arsenal of victory as the shipyard, engineering works, and textile factories strove to meet the insatiable Allied war demand. While Northern Ireland played a crucial role during the Battle of the Atlantic, the twenty-six southern counties, known as Eire since 1937, remained neutral. The United States used Northern Ireland as its base in preparation for the North African and Normandy landings. The American servicemen (at one stage, they formed one tenth of the population of the six counties) received a warm welcome from all sections of the community.

During the peaceful, uneventful years after the war, all was not well in Northern Ireland. The Westminster government in effect had taken its eye off the ball since 1923. Blatant unfairness in local government elections, public and private appointments, and allocation of local authority housing did much to keep alive the resentment of the Catholic minority (around one third of the region's inhabitants). The civil rights movement in the United States, protests against the Vietnam War, and riots in Paris encouraged the growth of the Northern Ireland civil rights movement. Direct action on the streets dissolved into outright intercommunal warfare in the summer of 1969, and in 1972, Westminster decided to rule the region directly from London.

Governments and oppositions alike at Westminster agreed that the long-term solution was a new devolved assembly and government in which Protestants and Catholics would share power. But the violence raged on, making Northern Ireland's conflict the longest-running in Europe since the end of the Second World War. Both Republican and Loyalist paramilitaries called ceasefires during the fall of 1994. Although they were violated on many occasions, conflict did not return on the previous scale.

Warmly supported by British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Irish Taoiseach Bertie Ahern, and American President Bill Clinton, the Good Friday Agreement of 1998 gave cross-community backing to power sharing. The agreement wavered on several occasions, but no one doubted that Northern Ireland had turned a corner. In spite of surviving suspicion, which sometimes flared into vicious sectarian strife, the region entered the new millennium with a level of peace that would be the envy of many large American cities. Peace brought in its wake fresh investment, impressive reconstruction, and the near disappearance of mass unemployment, which had blighted life for many decades.

Born and educated in Dublin, Jonathan Bardon has been teaching in Belfast since 1964, most recently in Queen's University Belfast. His books on Irish history include A History of Ulster, Belfast: An Illustrated History, and Dublin: One Thousand Years of Wood Quay. He scripted A Short History of Ireland, 240 five-minute documentaries, which BBC Radio Ulster is currently broadcasting.
Music in Northern Ireland now takes place in myriad settings—kitchens, parlors, and pubs, as well as schools, festivals, and concert halls. Not infrequently, traditional forms of instrumental music—jigs, reels, marches, and polkas—attract dancers who happily spend evenings wearing the complex patterns of ancient Irish dances onto modern dance floors. And even as beloved old tunes are performed and sung for today’s listeners, tomorrow’s music continues to be created. Modern technology—recordings, radio, iPods, and cell phones—often helps spread the latest traditional-style compositions. Irish music, like other Celtic music, is enjoying a worldwide boom that few would have predicted only a few years ago. —Nancy Groce

Northern Ireland is a relatively new name for an ancient place with a wealth of music and song to celebrate both its youth and age. Luckily, the songs and tunes are light-footed travelers; they cross borders with ease. Indeed, were they not so light of foot, the whole island of Ireland might have been submerged years ago—weighed down by the sheer weight of glorious dance tunes and songs in praise of counties, towns, villages, parishes, and townlands. And that would be before we started counting the sad songs! Then, there is the story behind each song, which reminds us that the source of the music, even for those who write it, is always something of a mystery.

Not far from where I live in County Down, a man named Joe Brannigan sang a fine song called “The Maid of Ballydow.” When asked by a song collector where he had learned the song, Joe explained, “I was courting a girl one time, and I found it in her pocket.”

A quick search in the pockets of history reveals that in common with the north and south of the United States, the north and south of Ireland has a long history of overseas visitors. Some of them came well armed. They grabbed anything they could, wrote their histories in terms of battles won and spoils acquired, and raised monuments to themselves with the same lack of subtlety as their ambitions.

Others came, and still others come in search of better tunes. They bring with them new hopes, dreams, words, tunes, beliefs, and all those countless elements that melt into a culture’s livelihood. Their history lives in that place where the step of the dancer flies above the plod of the soldier, and the song of hope soars like a rainbow on a wet day. It is in this place of youth and age that there is a verse for everyone, from the old north and south of Viking and Celt to all the cultures that lie between and beyond today and tomorrow. In this space, there is a partner for every dancer, a listener for every musician, and, above all, a song for the future.

Colin Sands is a member of County Down’s well-known Sands Family and has toured and recorded with them as a solo performer in over thirty countries. He has released five albums of original songs (which have been recorded and translated by many artists), and he has produced over sixty albums in his own studio in Rostrevor. In 2000, he released a book of songs, Between the Earth and the Sky. For the past ten years, he has compiled and presented Folkclub, a popular weekly program for BBC Radio Ulster. He received a Living Tradition Award for his work on stage and studio.
Irish (also called Gaelic or Gaeilge na hEireann) is an Indo-European language that has been spoken in Ireland for over 2,000 years. It is the language of some of the world's greatest poetry, legends, stories, and ballads, and it has an extensive written literature that dates back more than a thousand years.

Irish is one of six Celtic languages currently spoken in Western Europe. It is closely related to Scots-Gaelic (Scotland) and Manx (Isle of Man). Other Celtic languages include Welsh (Wales), Cornish (Cornwall), and Breton (Brittany, France). One of the national languages of the Republic of Ireland, Irish is spoken with particular passion in Northern Ireland. Since the seventeenth century, English has been widely used throughout Northern Ireland; however, the census of 2001 established that over ten percent of the population in the region had some skills in the Irish language.

In recent years, the British government has promised to support the language in Northern Ireland. The Good Friday, or Belfast, Agreement (1998) committed the government to "recognize the importance of respect, understanding and tolerance in relation to linguistic diversity" of Irish and some other languages. Three years later, the British government placed Irish under the protection of the European Charter for Regional or Minority Languages. Of greatest significance has been the pledge in the St. Andrew's Agreement (2000) to introduce an Irish Language Act. Irish speakers are keen to maximize the opportunities this affords. In January 2007, Irish became an official working language of the European Union.

Associations such as GaelLinn and Cornhairle na Gaelscolaiochta are involved in the successful provision of "Irish-medium education" (all subjects taught in the Irish language) in Northern Ireland. In January 2007, over 4,000 pupils in Northern Ireland were studying through Irish in 42 preschools, 42 primary schools, and 3 post-primary schools. The University of Ulster and Queen's University of Belfast offer courses in Irish and Celtic studies. The demand for Irish-medium education is increasing.

BBC Northern Ireland currently broadcasts radio programs in Irish, including Blas (which explores topical affairs) and Caisealbar (a program of music from around the world). Radio Fáilte, a community radio station, broadcasts with great success in West Belfast. Some Irish-speakers in Northern Ireland can also tune into RTÉ Radio na Gaeltachta, an Irish-language radio station from the Republic of Ireland. Northern Ireland has no dedicated Irish-language television service, but TG4, the Irish-language television channel from the Republic of Ireland, is widely available. In 2004, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland announced the establishment of an Irish Language Broadcast Fund, which supports Irish-language television production in Northern Ireland. Lá, an Irish-language newspaper, is published on a daily basis. There are a number of very useful Internet sources for Irish-speakers such as Beo.

A number of organizations, north and south of the border, are involved in the protection and enhancement of Irish at all levels of society. These include Conradh na Gaeilge, Foras na Gaeilge, Gael-Linn, Pobal, and ULTACH Trust. These dedicated organizations work to increase the profile of the language in all sectors and encourage bilingualism from an early age.

Mairead Ni Ghaithn is Professor of European Culture and Society, and Director of the Academy for Irish Cultural Heritage at the University of Ulster.
In May 1606, one year before the British established Jamestown in Virginia, the Hamilton and Montgomery Settlement became the first permanent Scottish settlement in Ireland. The Ulster Plantation was not the first contact between Ulster and Scotland, but it marked the beginning of a century of large-scale Protestant migration that led to a shared Catholic-Protestant heritage in Northern Ireland.

Among the many traditions that the Scots brought to Ulster was their language, which shared the same ancient Germanic roots as English but developed independently to become the internationally recognized "language of Robert Burns." Ulster-Scots, the dialect of Scots spoken in Ulster, was rich in song, stories, and sayings. The late 1700s saw a stream of publications in Ulster-Scots by the Weaver Poets, a school of self-educated textile workers whose politically radical verse appeared in Ulster newspapers. The most famous of these men was James Orr (1770-1816), the Bard of Ballycarry, who is often called "the Robert Burns of Ulster." This "United Irishman" participated in the failed Rebellion of 1798, fled to the young United States, and eventually returned home to County Antrim.

When Ulster-Scots immigrated to America in the eighteenth century, they took their language with them. Publications such as David Bruce's Poems Chiefly in the Scottish Dialect, Originally Written under the Signature of the Scots-Irishman, which appeared in western Pennsylvania in 1801, and Robert Dunsmoor's Incidental Poems, published in New Hampshire in 1828, are the best examples of the language from the early days of the United States. Michael Montgomery's study, From Ulster to America: The Scotch-Irish Heritage of American English, documented nearly 400 Ulster-Scots words in contemporary American English, from aird (frightened) to young'un (child).

Today, Ulster-Scots is enjoying a revival in Northern Ireland. A language of the field, the heart, and the home, Ulster-Scots is a regional tongue with an international impact. Boosted by the tireless work of the Ulster-Scots Language Society, a grassroots organization, Ulster-Scots was officially recognized in 1992 in the European Charter for Regional and Minority Languages. (Its inclusion in the charter was endorsed by the U.K. government in 2001.) After centuries of marginalization and scorn, the situation has now turned full circle: there is an ever-increasing confidence and pride in the language. Linguistically, historically, and culturally, Scotland, Ulster, and the United States share a three-way and acquaintance that should never be forgotten.

Mark Thompson is Chair of the Ulster-Scots Agency, an organization established following the Good Friday, or Belfast, Agreement of 1998. He is committed to the mainstreaming of Ulster-Scots and to developing the cultural and economic potential of Ulster-Scottish identity. He works in the design and advertising industries and lives just a few miles from his childhood home on the Scottish-facing coast of the Antrim Peninsula in County Down.
Traditional Crafts in Northern Ireland

The crafts of Northern Ireland are historically related to those of the British Isles, especially western Scotland, and Europe's Atlantic coast as far north as Norway. Irish boatbuilding, basket making, and metalwork skills can be traced back at least 4,000 years.

Crafts have always related directly to everyday life, and in the past, were intimately connected to survival. In the pre-industrial age, many people were dependent on the skills available in their communities. Some crafts, such as sewing or basic woodworking, were known and practiced at every level of society to provide clothing and domestic necessities. Other crafts were more specialized, and people relied on the local smith, stonemason, cooper, or basket maker to meet those needs.

One characteristic craft, fine Ulster linen, arose in the eighteenth century, and large quantities were exported to the United States. In the beginning, linen production required a complex network of people to transform the flax plant into a commodity suited for the international marketplace. In the 1820s, Jacquard technology was adapted to the linen loom, and beautiful damask patterns became more common. Later still, powered looms were introduced and linen played a major role in the growth of Belfast as an industrialized port city. By the late twentieth century, linen production had sharply declined. Today, some firms are still in operation, including Thomas Fergusons Irish Linen of Banbridge, County Down, which continues to weave high-quality, double-damask linen.

Linen production on a large scale encouraged skills, such as hand embroidery and drawn-thread work. Women fitted these arts into their daily routines to earn often-vital family income. Fabric to be decorated by home workers was brought from the factory to a central point, often a shop in a provincial town, and craftswomen sometimes walked miles to deliver their completed work for payment. Lace making was also organized along semi-commercial lines, although women with enough leisure time also produced lace and embroidery for use in their own homes. Some lace styles, such as Clones, Limerick, and Carrickmacross, took their names from locations in Ireland.
Today, computerized sewing machines have greatly simplified the production of colorful Celtic embroidery for Irish dance dresses. Many of the patterns now considered “traditional” were originally drawn in the late nineteenth or early twentieth century to reflect contemporary fashion. Some embroiderers continue to work by hand, adapting ideas from old sources to produce new designs.

Although textile arts are particularly strong, numerous other crafts and art industries flourish in Northern Ireland. Fine porcelain from the town of Belleek in County Fermanagh was first made in 1857 and quickly gained an international reputation. Producing traditional and contemporary designs, Belleek now employs 600 people who craft, paint, and finish by hand delicate, highly prized china.

Today, specialized crafts continue to be practiced in ateliers and workshops throughout Northern Ireland, where many artisans produce work such as jewelry, ceramics, glass, and clothing on a commercial or semi-commercial basis. Some craftspeople specialize in making musical instruments, including uniquely Irish bodhrans, Lambeg drums, and uilleann bagpipes. Organizations, such as the Arts Council of Northern Ireland, Invest Northern Ireland, Craft Northern Ireland, and District Councils, provide support to artisans.

Some ancient, traditional skills, such as basketry and blacksmithing, which are seldom practiced today in homes and communities, are fostered at two of Northern Ireland’s National Museums—the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum (just outside Belfast) and the Ulster American Folk Park (near Omagh in County Tyrone). Northern Ireland continues to place high value on traditional craft skills and respects the creative link between past and present generations.

Linda Ballard is Curator of Folklife Initiatives at the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum. She has spent many years working on all aspects of folklore, folklife, and culture in Northern Ireland, including documenting and recording regional traditions. She lives on the coast in Bangor, County Down.
The winter wind that whips Belfast Lough forces the men who work in the Titanic Quarter to keep their heads down as they move from their site offices onto the moonscape where the giant earth diggers bulldoze piles of brick, soil, and glass—the detritus of former glories. One hundred years ago, as that same wind blew up the Lough, men stood under the shadow of the vast walls of the dry dock, looking up at ships so large they seemed to belong to some other world. It was here that the great White Star liners were built, ships with names like Olympic, Gigantic, and Titanic. Everything was on a grand scale. Belfast, which emerged from swamp in the second half of the nineteenth century, turned into one of the engines of the industrial revolution: here, the largest shipyard in the world, there, the largest rope works. When the evening sun settled, its light fell upon the red brickwork of the new engineering buildings and the tea- and tobacco-processing factories to convince the citizens that the dark, satanic mills were creating a New Jerusalem.

After the long process of deindustrialization, the cranes on today’s city skyline are clear evidence of a twenty-first-century boom. The developments on the old Titanic site are emblematic of the changes in the society as a whole. The developers in charge of the project claim it will be the largest mixed-use development in Europe and that it will employ 20,000 people over the next fifteen years. They will not have jobs that the horny-handed toilers of the old shipyards would recognize; instead, they will have service jobs in steel and glass cathedrals. Hotel and retail will dominate the new landscape. And when Belfast Metropolitan College moves into the Titanic Quarter—close to the forthcoming technology center of Queen’s University—the city will shift from a manufacturing to a knowledge-based economy.
Those who gather in the waterfront bars and eateries will be the accountants, real estate developers, and technology wizards of the new economy. They will have more in common with their colleagues from Bilbao or La Défense in Paris than they will with the industrial workers who once built ships and planes on this site.

The changes do not mean that the traditional factory and farm have disappeared. Northern Ireland has always been a rural society; more people work in agriculture, forestry, and fishing than they do in any other part of the United Kingdom. There are still 28,500 active, mostly family-run farms and another 400 food-processing businesses. Taken together, however, they account for only 5 percent of total employment in Northern Ireland. Given the amount of air time the agricultural sector gets on local radio stations, the casual listener might be forgiven for thinking that many people earn a living from farming and related businesses. But there has been a steady attrition of approximately 2 percent per year for the last fifteen years. The decrease in milk prices and the restructuring of the European Common Agricultural Programme do not offer much hope for the future.

Manufacturing continues to account for some 20 percent of the economy, but that percentage is now sustained through small firms rather than the big industries of old. Ninety percent of local firms employ fewer than ten people. The common term “small-to-medium enterprises” (SMEs) should perhaps be changed to “tiny-to-small enterprises” to describe the low-rise landscape of local manufacturing. Northern Ireland follows the general pattern of the U.K. economy in which manufacturing is increasingly outsourced to China, Eastern Europe, or India. The safe option for new workers is to enter the services sector, which accounts for 70 percent of employment in Northern Ireland.

Government officials are concerned about the struggling private and the highly subsidized public sectors of the economy. Presently, the economy amounts to approximately £22 ($44) billion per annum of which only £14 ($28) billion is raised locally. The other £8 ($16) million comes from the British exchequer.

There are, however, two comforting factors about new patterns within the workforce. Unemployment is now at the all-time low of 4.2 percent, lower than the U.K. average of 5.5 percent and considerably lower than the European Union average of 7.7 percent. The overall employment rate includes foreign nationals who drive taxis, work in poultry factories in mid-Ulster, and serve as health workers in hospitals and nursing homes throughout the country. The label of accents in every high street may seem odd to the locals, but it is evidence of the normalization of the Northern Ireland workforce, which has pulled itself from its own backwater into the European mainstream. Unionists and nationalists, anxious to detect any sign of bias, pay much attention to recruitment of officers into the new Police Service of Northern Ireland. When the service set quotas for unionist and nationalist officers, it never expected that Polish residents would account for 1,000 of 7,700 applicants. No other statistic could speak so eloquently of the changing face of local employment or the prospect of breaking decisively with a past in which jobs (or unemployment) were passed down the family line. Northern Ireland is now firmly part of the new, modern Europe, and so, too, is its workforce.

Paul Nolan is Director of Education (Undergraduate) at Queen’s University, where he oversees all lifelong learning programs. He is on the editorial board of Fortnight magazine. Previously, he was director of the Workers’ Educational Association in Northern Ireland.
Northern Ireland is an hour by car from Dublin and one hour by plane from London, which will host the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games. The country is approximately five thousand square miles, roughly the same size as Connecticut. Sport and physical activity have played a prominent role in Northern Ireland's largely rural culture.

Indigenous Irish games, some dating back thousands of years, are still an important part of contemporary Irish culture. Hurling (Irish hoomhach) was the favorite sport of the legendary Iron Age hero Cuchulainn. Played by teams of up to fifteen hurlers with wooden, axe-shaped sticks ("hurls," "hurleys," or camian) and a small hard ball (slitast), it is one of the world's fastest, most exciting field games. Camogie, the women's version, is also widely played.

Another indigenous game, Gaelic football, is best described as a combination of soccer and rugby. Opposing teams attempt to carry the round ball, which is slightly smaller than a soccer ball, across one another's goals. Handball and rounders (a team sport that is the ancestor of American baseball) are also popular Gaelic games.

Since 1884, Gaelic games and other forms of traditional Irish culture have been nurtured and regulated by the Gaelic Athletic Association (GAA). With over 2,500 clubs in Ireland alone (500 of which are in Northern Ireland), the GAA organizes Club, County, and All-Ireland Championships that generate enormous interest throughout Ireland, as well as from GAA clubs and fans throughout North America, Europe, and Australia. One of the highlights of the year is the All Ireland Gaelic Football Final held at Croke Park in Dublin, where crowds exceed 80,000.

International team sports have large followings throughout Northern Ireland. Rugby and football (American soccer) are played on amateur and professional levels. The Irish Rugby Football Union Ulster Branch, also known as Ulster Rugby, was founded in 1879. Ulster Rugby oversees the sport throughout Ulster—the six counties that make up Northern Ireland and three Ulster counties that are part of the Republic of Ireland.

Founded in 1880, the Irish Football Association (IFA) is the world's fourth oldest football-governing body. The IFA is an important member of the International Football Association Board, the sport's international rule-making body. Northern Ireland's most famous football player was the legendary George Best (1948–2005), who played for Manchester United in the 1960s. Recently, the Belfast City Airport was renamed in his honor.

Golf is played on world-class links golf courses, such as the Royal Portrush, the Royal County Down, and other beautifully-maintained courses throughout the region. Internationally respected Northern Irish golfers include Darren Clarke, Graham McDowell, and Rory McIlroy.

The large network of small country roads has helped popularize motor sports, including motorcycle, or “bike,” racing, rally car racing, and karting. They all seem to combine an ancient Irish love of horse racing with the region's long-standing aptitude for heavy engineering. “Rallying” is a type of motor racing held from point-to-point on public or private roads (temporarily closed for the event) rather than on purpose-built, circular tracks. Competing cars or bikes must be "road-legal." Many competing vehicles are standard, production-line models that have been modified in small, family-owned shops and garages.

The North West 200 bike race is Ireland's largest sporting event. Each May, more than 100,000 spectators line winding, two-lane roads along County Antrim's beautiful north coast to watch bike riders race through "The Triangle" of towns formed by Portrush, Portstewart, and Coleraine. The North West 200 is among the world's fastest competitions, with speeds exceeding 200 mph. Although some street signs are removed and hay bales are wrapped around lamp posts and telephone poles, the race is not without risk, and accidents sometimes occur. Motorbike racers are Northern Ireland's homegrown sports heroes; some become legendary, like the late Joey Dunlop, who won thirteen North West 200 races.

Individual sports and outdoor activities are also practiced throughout Northern Ireland. With a long, unspoiled coastline and many miles of rivers, water sports, such as fishing, rowing, surfing, and sailing, are very popular. Bicycling, hiking, hill walking, and mountain climbing are pursued throughout the region, and many local residents and tourists take advantage of Northern Ireland's many beautiful parks and spectacular wilderness areas.
Northern Ireland has been developing an unmistakable alimentary dialect for centuries—one that is rich in diversity, fiercely independent, and supportive of local produce. Although much of the cuisine is heavily inspired by English and, to some extent, European fare, a flair for culinary innovation and exceptional resourcefulness have allowed the province to develop an entirely unique food culture.

This culture is well established in one of Ulster’s most ubiquitous exports—the Ulster Fry. The Ulster Fry is similar in many ways to the Full English Breakfast but with an important addition—namely, potato bread, which embodies the enterprising nature of Irish cooking. Potato bread was invented in Ireland during the nineteenth century, when it was discovered that by substituting much of the wheat flour in unleavened bread dough with mashed potato (the staple of the Irish diet), leftovers from an evening meal formed a delicious breakfast food.

This resourcefulness continues today. A large proportion of the Ulster diet is based on locally grown vegetables (including champ, a stalwart that consists of mashed local potatoes mixed with chopped spring onions) and locally-reared meat, such as the renowned Finnebrogue venison. For the true connoisseur of the province’s cuisine, however, it is Ireland’s status as an “island nation” that is truly important.
Northern Irish fishermen, based in the province’s three main fishing ports, are in close proximity to some of the world’s richest fishing waters, and it is this proximity that makes Portavogie prawns, Glenarm salmon, and particularly, Dundrum Oysters famous. The fame of Northern Ireland’s oysters is celebrated at the Hillsborough International Oyster Festival, the home of the World Oyster Eating Championship, an annual event that attracts over twelve thousand visitors from around the world.

With the number of food savvy visitors increasing, thanks to events such as the Oyster Festival, and great immigration to Ulster in recent years, the province has hit a rich, European-inspired, epicurean vein. Although restaurants still make use primarily of local produce, influences from the expanded European Union allow greater creative freedom and help chefs recognize new ways to use the delicacies around them.

Despite external influences, Northern Irish cuisine remains distinctive. Whether you prefer the comfort of a home-cooked Irish stew or the elegance of some of the world’s best seafood, Northern Ireland has a dish to suit you.

Harry Owens is a resident of the seaside town of Bangor and is a lifelong lover of Northern Irish produce, particularly seafood. As a special correspondent to Bridgestone’s 100 Best Restaurants in Ireland and other publications, he shares his love of Ulster cuisine with readers.

www.tastefulster.org
A Taste of Ulster
www.dcalni.gov.uk
Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Northern Ireland
www.detni.gov.uk
Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment
Northern Ireland
European Charter for Regional and Minority Languages www.tyronegoodfoodcircle.com
Flavour of Tyrone
www.gaeilge.ie
Foras na Gaeilge (Irish-language information)
www.hillsboroughoysterfestival.com
Hillsborough Oyster Festival www.1fa.krawn.nl/mercator/regionale_dossiers/regionale_dossier_irish_in_northernireland.htm
Irish—The Irish Language in education in Northern Ireland (Irish-language information) www庆典inglocalhistory2006.co.uk
Library and Information Service Council
Northern Ireland
Northern Ireland Census 2001 Key Statistics www.discovernorthernireland.com
Northern Ireland Tourist Board www.pobal.org
Pobal: Umbrella organization for Irish language in Northern Ireland www.sportni.net
Sports Council for Northern Ireland
www.ultach.org
ULTACH Trust (Irish-language information)

Centuries old or recently penned, the diverse music of Northern Ireland's instrumentalists, composers, and songwriters evokes a profound sense of regional pride and growing confidence in a shared future. Introducing listeners to the powerful music of this beautiful, complex land, Sound Neighbours spans genres, generations, and geographic boundaries, featuring twenty vocal and instrumental tracks that celebrate the musical wealth of contemporary Northern Ireland.
When a group of 120 Englishmen set foot 400 years ago on what later became Virginia, they hoped for a quick route to riches. Instead, they put in motion the creation of something much more precious—a new culture and a new country, which was to become the United States of America.

This year, the Festival explores three "roots" of Virginia's culture—Native American, English, and African American. These groups supported the growth of a diverse, yet unified society in what would become Virginia. This summer, their descendants join delegations from Kent County, England (one of the counties from which the original settlers came and the burial place of Pocahontas) and West Africa (an area from which many enslaved Africans came to Virginia). By demonstrating and performing many parallel cultural traditions side by side, craftspeople, musicians, cooks, agriculturalists, and maritime experts prove that different cultures can have much in common and can borrow from each other to forge a nation.

Today's Virginians include people whose ancestors have always been here, descendants of the original Jamestown settlers, the progeny of the first West Africans, and more recent immigrants from Africa, Southeast Asia, and Central America. They live and work from Virginia's Atlantic coast to its Appalachian Mountains, from remote coal-mining towns in the southwest to bustling suburbs in the north. But no matter how deep their roots, Virginians strive with dedication and innovation to document and present their cultural heritage, adapting tradition to change and using the past to inform the present and future.
Many traditions in Virginia, Kent County, England; and West Africa remain "unbroken" within families and communities. Although today's cooks of Brunswick County, Virginia, prepare their rich stew over propane instead of an open fire and use chicken instead of squirrel, they still consider Brunswick stew a traditional dish. And Native American fishermen may no longer make their own nets to catch river shad, but their fishing techniques are still similar to those of their ancestors.

The ballad-singing tradition in southwestern Virginia has been well documented: Cecil Sharp (1859-1924), an English folk-song scholar, traveled to Appalachia to record traditional songs, which, in many cases, were better preserved in the mountains of Virginia than they were in their native Great Britain. Today, singers like Gin Burris from Carroll County, Virginia, still sing some of the same ballads, and modern folk-song scholars such as Dave Arthur from Towbridge Wells, Kent, England, come to Virginia to trace Sharp's steps and record current versions of the ballads.

A number of crafts, such as pottery, blacksmithing, wood carving, and needlework, span the generations; craftspeople interpret and produce them according to their own tastes and market demand. Pamunkey and Mattaponi women create pots using local river clays and oyster shells. Their pots are treasured heirlooms and a source of income from tourist and collector sales. Master Pamunkey potter Mildred Moore and many other Virginia-tradition bearers have participated in the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy's Virginia Folklife Apprenticeship Program (see page 73). The program matches master folk artists with those eager to help preserve the past for the present and future.

While tracing the roots of Virginia culture, historians find many tradition bearers who, by necessity or desire, refashion their skills. For example, in Virginia, as well as in Kent County, England, fruit farmers find it hard to keep their businesses profitable because of cheaper imports; many have quit farming and have sold their land to developers. Some farmers in Virginia have turned to Tom Burkford, who comes from a fruit-growing family in the Shenandoah Valley. Burkford uses his knowledge of apples to research heirloom varieties and waxes eloquently for hours about the Albemarle Pippin, an apple Queen Victoria liked so much she exempted it from import taxes. Thanks to Burkford and the fruit growers he helps, gourmet cooks can find heirloom varieties of Virginia apples at farmers' markets. The growers bring the taste of Virginia's past to the present and make it profitable.

Horses are big business in Virginia and Kent, where they are raised for pleasure riding, shows, and racing. Well-to-do horse fanciers have created markets for everything from horse portraits to harness brasses. In Bethersden, Kent, twin brothers Tony and Marc Stevenson craft exquisite rocking horses. They learned woodworking skills from their uncle,
James Bosworthick, an apprentice in the 1940s in the Chatham Naval Dockyard, where he made rocking horses from “off-cuts” (workable pieces of wood left over from shipbuilding). His nephews now combine the family tradition of woodworking with the English love of horses in a business that, over the past twenty-four years, has had such distinguished clients as the current Queen of England. They transform the past in ways that make sense in the everyday present in Virginia and beyond.

The ability to research and interpret the past requires years of study, determination, and “learning by doing.” Digging up the past is the professional passion of archaeologists at sites such as Historic Jamestowne. Surrounded by a room full of artifacts, Curator Beverly Straube excitedly shows visitors pieces of pottery, armor, and Native American tools. Small flags identify various pieces that originated not only in England and the Chesapeake Bay area, but also in Germany, Italy, and even Asia. The artifacts prove that, even in the seventeenth century, Virginia had a global reach—one that foretold its multicultural future.

Family and community researchers collect oral histories and search for clues in archives and databases. To apply for a permanent Virginia Historic Marker for the African American oystering settlement of Hobson Village, near Norfolk, Virginia, Mary Hall collected genealogies, oral histories, historic photos, and old oyster lease documents. “It helped that the people were still there to tell their story,” she said of the process.

At Canterbury Cathedral in Kent, England, Heather Newton heads the Conservation Stone Mason Shop. She and her fellow stonemasons work to conserve the older parts of the building; they also fix damage done by earlier restorers. At the Virginia Lime Works in Monroe, the Price family skillfully reproduces the type of mortar used in eighteenth-century homes like James Madison’s Monticello and Thomas Jefferson’s second home, Poplar Forest. Researchers from Staunton’s Frontier Culture Museum of Virginia traveled to West Africa to study traditional building techniques, so they could recreate an African village. It should open this year.

With every delivery of one of their handcrafted rocking horses, the Stevenson brothers include a tree for their customers to plant. This is their way of replenishing the wood they use in their craft. Today, some of the trees are over twenty feet tall. The roots of Virginia culture, like those of the trees, have supported the growth of traditions that enrich the commonwealth, the country, and the world. By the time the 350th anniversary of Jamestown rolls around, who knows how the past will merge with new traditions to continue the legacy?

Betty J. Belanus is a folklorist, curator, and education specialist at the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage. The Roots of Virginia Culture program is the seventh Festival program she has curated since 1988. She lives in Arlington, Virginia.
According to archaeologists, Native people have lived in the area we now call Virginia for as many as 15,000 years. However, if you ask us Virginia Indians how long our people have been here, we will say that we have always been here. Our histories, our ancestral connections, and our traditions are intertwined with the land known to the Powhatan peoples as Tsenacomocah—a bountiful land given to us by the Creator as the place most fitting for us to live.

The early inhabitants of Virginia were hunter-gatherers who followed the migratory patterns of large game, but over time, they settled into specific territories. Our people developed intimate, balanced relationships with the animals, plants, and geographic formations that characterized our homelands. History books seldom refer to the sophisticated agricultural techniques we practiced for more than 400 years or to the culturally managed landscapes we developed, where hunting and fishing areas alternated with townships and croplands along the waterways. They rarely mention that our nutrition was far superior to that of Europeans before the colonial era, or that our knowledge of astronomy informed our farming calendar and nighttime navigation. Virginia was not a wilderness to us, nor was it a “New World”; it was a known and loved home place. We shared our resources within our communities and with strangers. That is the Native way.

When the English colonists arrived in our homeland in the spring of 1607, some 20,000 Algonquian-speaking peoples were incorporated into the paramount chieftdom of Powhatan, who was the tributary and spiritual leader of thirty-two tribes in the Atlantic coastal plain and Chesapeake Bay area. Approximately the same number of Siouan-speaking people lived to the west in the piedmont and mountain regions. They included the Monacan, Manahoac, Occaneechi, Saponi, and Tutelo (or Totero) tribal groups. In the southwest of what is now Virginia lived Cherokee people, who spoke an Iroquoian language. To the southeast of Powhatan’s domain lived the Meherrin and Nottoway tribes, who also spoke Iroquoian languages.

Powhatan, a brilliant strategist, probably intended to incorporate the English into his polity. He could not have known in 1607 that they intended to establish a permanent colony and usurp his lands. Within a hundred years, the Powhatan tribes were reduced to just several hundred individuals. Similar depopulation occurred among the Monacan peoples and throughout the East Coast and inland regions as European settlements spread westward. Through disease and warfare, Native peoples of this continent were decimated; their lands confiscated.

Throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Virginia’s Indian people found themselves policed by the colonial government, reduced to poverty as their landholdings eroded or were stolen outright. The first race laws were passed in Virginia in 1705; more followed in 1866. In 1924, the U.S. Congress passed the Racial Integrity Act, which prohibited marriage to whites by people of color, including Indians.

We honor our past and our ancestors and our history, and keep it close.
But we have to move forward.
—Debora Moore, Pamunkey Tribe
In Virginia Indian history, the first half of the twentieth century was dominated by the figure of Walter Plecker, who served as state registrar of vital statistics in Richmond from 1912 to 1949. He staunchly backed the eugenics movement, which advocated “human improvement.” Plecker believed that there should be only two races of people in Virginia—white and “colored”—and that white people were superior. By 1925, he developed a list of surnames of people he believed to be “mixed,” and he instructed local court clerks, hospital personnel, school administrators, and others to prevent persons with the names from associating with white people. He changed “Indian” to “colored” on numerous birth certificates.

Most of the current tribes in Virginia established churches and sometimes mission schools during the early years of the twentieth century. The schools provided education up to seventh grade. Indians were not allowed to attend white schools, and they refused to attend black schools. Many Indian children were needed at home or in the fields and could not finish elementary school. Some of the Powhatan tribes sent their children to the Bacone School in Oklahoma, and similar facilities in other states, where they could complete high school and sometimes the equivalent of a community college degree. Public education was not made available to Virginia Indians until 1963.

WHO WAS POCAHONTAS?

Pocahontas, a daughter of the paramount chief Powhatan, was about ten years old in 1607 when the captive John Smith was brought to her father’s headquarters. Opinions differ as to whether the famous “rescue of John Smith” actually happened, but if it did, it was most likely a ritual misunderstood by Smith. Over the next two years, Pocahontas, known for her intelligence and curiosity, accompanied her father’s councilors on some of their trips to Jamestown.

In 1613, the teenager was kidnapped by the English and held for ransom. During her captivity, she met the Englishman John Rolfe, who wanted to marry her. After the English made peace with her father, she agreed to accept Christianity and marry Rolfe. She took the name “Rebecca.”

The peace that followed lasted for several years. In 1616, the Rolles went to England with their young son Thomas, and Rebecca Rolfe was presented to the English court. She died in England of an unknown disease and was buried in Gravesend, Kent. In 2006, a delegation of Virginia Indians visited her grave to honor her as one of their ancestors, one who bravely faced some difficult decisions and did her best for her people.
In 1919, anthropologist Frank Speck began visiting many Powhatan tribes to study their communities. With his encouragement, the Indians attempted to revive the Powhatan Confederacy in the 1920s. Thus, political activism began. During the 1980s, eight tribes obtained formal recognition from the Commonwealth: the Chickahominy, the Chickahominy Eastern Division, the Mattaponi, the Pamunkey, the Nansemond, the Pamunkey, the Rappahannock, and the Upper Mattaponi. Throughout, the Mattaponi and the Pamunkey retained their reservations and observed the treaty between them. Today, approximately 4,000 indigenous tribal members live in Virginia, and more than 20,000 American Indians from throughout the nation make their homes within the Commonwealth.

Among Virginia Indian tribes, traditional cultural practices thrive, along with contemporary arts. A few artists make a living solely from their arts, which include beadwork, leather crafting, wood carving, pottery, and basket weaving. Virginia Indians practice not only their own traditional dances, such as the Green Corn Dance and the Canoe Dance, but they also participate in intertribal powwow dancing. Powhatan Red Cloud-Owen (Chickahominy) said, "[dancing] draws me close to my ancestors, to my people. I'm different from somebody else, you know. I'm Indian. I'm Chickahominy, and this is what I do."

Since the 1980s, Virginia tribes have taken great strides to retain or reclaim their cultural practices and improve economic conditions of their people. Tribal members elect their chiefs, and tribal councils meet regularly to address issues of concern and interest. Several tribes have established heritage classes for their young people and programs for elders. Almost all have purchased land in their homelands. Some are working on language reclamation. Six of the eight tribes are pursuing federal acknowledgement through a bill introduced in Congress. Together, the eight tribes have worked to organize events for the 2007 commemoration of Jamestown's founding. In July 2006, they completed a historical circle when fifty-five tribal delegates visited Kent County, England. It was the first time a delegation of Virginia Indians had traveled to England in almost 400 years. The tribal dance presentation was especially well received. "The people wouldn't leave until the last drum beat had died out," said Wayne Adkins (Chickahominy).

We, Virginia Indians are justifiably proud of our history, our traditions, our survival, and our record of contributions to our state and country. We love our homelands, and we have fought to defend them over the centuries. We teach our children that we are made of this land, and we belong here. We come from this earth, this ground, and we will always be here.

Karenne Wood (Monacan) serves on the Tribal Council. She is a Ph.D. candidate and Ford Fellow in linguistic anthropology at the University of Virginia, working to reclaim indigenous languages and revitalize cultural practices. She directs the Virginia Indian Heritage Trail project with the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities in Charlottesville. She served as the repatriation director for the Association on American Indian Affairs, where she coordinated the return of sacred objects to Native communities. She worked at the National Museum of the American Indian as a researcher, and for six years, she directed a tribal history project for the Monacan Nation. Wood has served on the National Congress of American Indians’ Repatriation Commission and as the chair of the Virginia Council on Indians, a gubernatorial appointment.

Virginia tribal leaders participate in the dedication of a highway marker that commemorates Opechancanough, the Powhatan chief who resisted the English in the mid-1600s. From the left are Chief Bill Miles (Pamunkey), Assistant Chief Warren Cook (Pamunkey), Chief Carl Custalow (Mattaponi), Chief Kenneth Adams (Upper Mattaponi), Chief Stephen Adkins (Chickahominy), and Assistant Chief Frank Adams (Upper Mattaponi). Photo by Deanna Beacham
When commemorating the founding of Jamestown, the first English settlement in what is now the United States, a comparative examination of English and American history and culture is appropriate. Through more than the English language, Virginia and the southeastern English county of Kent have long been connected. Some of the first Jamestown settlers came from Kent. Among the first English families in Virginia were the Kentish Culpeppers, Sandys, Sidneys, and Wyatts. Their descendants in Virginia and England share agricultural, maritime, and building traditions. Most important, the people of Kent and Virginia share the desire to preserve the past and create a bright future.

The county’s history, like that of the rest of England, is quite different from the history of Virginia. “Kent” is the oldest recorded place name in the British Isles. Written records in Kent date to the first invasion of the Romans in 54 B.C.E. The Romans stormed inland to what is now Canterbury, overrunning the indigenous Britons to establish a city. Saint Augustine brought Christianity to Kent’s shores in 597 C.E., and in the twelfth century, stonemasons built the magnificent Canterbury Cathedral on the foundations of a much older church. By the fourteenth century, Canterbury was a center of trade and pilgrimage, which Geoffrey Chaucer memorialized in The Canterbury Tales. Today, visitors see archaeological evidence of the Romans and the Saxons in the cellars of buildings used for modern commerce.

By 1607, when the histories of Kent and Virginia intersected for the first time, Kent was thriving due to its proximity to the English capital, London. Pocahontas (known as Rebecca Rolfe after her marriage to John Rolfe) visited London in 1616. Unfortunately, she fell ill on her way back to Virginia in 1617 and was brought ashore at Gravesend, Kent, where she died and was buried at the local parish church of St. George. In the summer of 2006, Virginia tribal representatives visited St. George’s Church to take part in a ceremony in her honor.
From 1642 to 1648, the English fought a civil war that pitted royal rule against parliament. In Kent, Royalist uprisings took place, with fighting in the streets of Maidstone, the county seat. Many Royalists (or Cavaliers) immigrated to Virginia for political and religious freedom. Between 1657 and 1662, including the war years, royal gardener John Tradescant, born in Meopham, Kent, made his own history by travelling three times to Virginia to collect plant species, some of which still grace English gardens.

Several English warships that sailed during the American Revolutionary War and the War of 1812 were built at the Royal Chatham Dockyard in Kent, which was established in the mid-sixteenth century. They included the Raisonnable, which in 1779 took part in an assault on Hampton Roads, Virginia, and the HMS Guerriere, which the USS Constitution destroyed during the War of 1812. Because it so affected daily life in Kent and killed so many of its citizens, World War II is fresh in people's memories. In 1940, the Battle of Britain was fought in the skies over Kent. Throughout the war, Winston Churchill, whose mother was from New York City, lived at Chartwell, Kent.

Kent has been known as the “Garden of England” for over 400 years, since the day King Henry VIII ate a particularly satisfying bowl of Kentish cherries. Despite the fact that, today, Kent is the largest county in England with many industrial complexes and a thriving high-tech industry, its sobriquet is still very visible in the fruit orchards, produce farms, and hop gardens that cover the landscape. Sheep and cows still graze over much of the countryside, and in the summer and fall, the greengrocers’ and farmers’ markets of Kent abound with local apples, strawberries, pears, ciders, juices, jams, chutneys, cheeses, lamb, and wines.

Kent has 350 miles of coastline, and local fish—including the famous Dover sole and Whitstable oyster—to top menus throughout the United Kingdom. The Historic Chatham Dockyard, now a popular tourist attraction, still houses traditional rope and flag makers. Sheerness and Dover are ports of departure for international shipping and ferry travel, and the Medway and Thames rivers figure prominently in Kent’s history and traditions.

Whether restoring Canterbury Cathedral or adapting oast houses (built to dry hops) into bed-and-breakfasts or apartment complexes, master builders and their apprentices are busy year-round. The Museum of Kent Life near Maidstone and the Kent Hop Farm in Paddock Wood preserve and interpret historic constructions, such as clay-peg roofs, oast houses, and huts used by seasonal hop pickers. There are more castles in Kent than in any other county in England. They include Leeds Castle built in 1119, which was home to the Culpeppers and Fairfaxes.
One important tradition that links Kent's past and present is the maintenance of historic houses and landed estates, many of which date to medieval times. In 1341, a rich London wool merchant built Penshurst Place, the home of the author of this essay, which is located on the Weald of Kent, near Royal Tunbridge Wells. Subsequent owners, including King Henry VIII, extended it in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Henry's son, King Edward VI, gave the house to Sir William Sidney, an ancestor of the current owner, in 1552. The estate covers 2,500 acres of farm and woodland and an eleven-acre, formal, walled garden designed in 1646. In order to maintain the estate, the current owners decided several years ago to rent out parts of the house and grounds for craft fairs, official receptions, and private functions. The family still lives in the private apartments, but the staterooms, including Barons Hall, and the restored gardens are open to visitors. Today, running and restoring the estate for the public is a two-generation family affair.

Kent's rich history and culture inform the county's development. The land still yields traditional crops and now nourishes new plants that can be harnessed for fuel, furniture, and medicine. Immigration and travel have created a multicultural society, one linked to the world. Kent, like Virginia, faces the future by blending its proud traditions with twenty-first-century opportunities.

Viscount De L'Ise (Philip) grew up at Penshurst Place, the Sidney family home since 1552, where he now lives with his wife Viscountess De L'Ise (Isobel). He served in the Grenadier Guards and was awarded the MBE in 1977. He retired as a Major in 1979. From 1981–1985, he was chairman of Kent CLA. From 1992–1999, he was Honorary Colonel of the 5th Bn PWRR. Philip was appointed a Deputy Lieutenant of Kent in 1994, becoming Vice Lord Lieutenant in 2002. A Trustee of Canterbury Cathedral Trust since 1992 and Chairman in 2007, he and Isobel have managed the family Estate for over twenty-five years.

A PERSONAL CONNECTION BETWEEN KENT AND VIRGINIA

My ancestors sailed to Virginia in 1608, settling in the Rappahannock region, and grew cotton and tobacco. They held a number of prominent positions in the state: the last one to live in the United States was my great uncle, General Wendell C. Neville (1870–1930), who was commander of the U.S. Marine Corps and once appeared on the cover of Time Magazine. My ancestors had good relations with the Rappahannock Indians, so it was a delight and a great honor to welcome Chief Anne Richardson to Kent in July 2006.

I am currently the patron of Produc'd in Kent, an organization that promotes fresh, local food. Because I love to cook, I find myself turning to some of the recipes that I loved when I visited Virginia as a child. The following recipe goes well with seasonal fruit, including the bountiful apples, pears, peaches, and strawberries available in Kentish farmers' markets and greengrocers' shops. My Virginia grandmother's sticky gingerbread reminds us that a blend of English and Virginia cultures is "always in season.

AMANDA CARDWELL NEVILLE'S STICKY GINGERBREAD

Ingredients

- 4 oz black treacle or molasses
- 4 oz golden syrup or golden corn syrup
- ½ lb butter (2 sticks/4 oz cut up)
- ½ lb soft brown sugar (approx. 1 cup)
- 12 oz all-purpose flour
- Pinch to one teaspoon salt
- 2 level tablespoons ground ginger
- 3 level teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 2 large eggs
- ½ pint of milk (1 cup)
- 2 level teaspoons bicarbonate of soda
- or baking soda
- Cooking oil
- Greaseproof parchment paper

Directions

Grease a 7½ by 11½-inch baking pan well. Cut parchment paper to fit the base of the baking pan, and grease the paper. In a heavy saucepan, stir together the black treacle or molasses, golden syrup or golden corn syrup, butter, and brown sugar. Melt slowly over medium heat, stirring all the time. Remove the saucepan from the heat.

Sift the flour, ginger, cinnamon, and salt into the mix in the saucepan. Beat the eggs and stir them slowly into the mix. Heat the milk and whisk in the baking soda. Stir the milk and soda until the soda dissolves. Add them to the saucepan and fold all of the ingredients together. Pour the folded mix into the baking pan. Cook for one hour at 300 degrees Fahrenheit.
For African Americans, the history of Virginia has always been replete with paradox and irony. Virginia, the place where Africans first landed as slaves, was also the place where George Washington and Thomas Jefferson dreamed a nation into being around the ideal of human freedom, even though they owed their own wealth to the appropriated labor, skills, and expertise of Africans and their descendants. African Americans availed themselves of opportunities that followed upon the bloody Civil War. But after a brief period of promised prosperity came the introduction of Jim Crow laws that denied them voting rights and access to education. At the dawn of the Civil Rights era, one Virginia county closed the doors of public schools to African American students for five years. Yet, fifty years earlier, Virginia-born African American educational pioneer Booker T. Washington helped establish some of the first African American schools and colleges.

By building strong and vibrant communities (despite the difficulties of their circumstances), participating in the give-and-take of education and expression, and re-examining history in order to set the record straight, African Americans in Virginia have made a significant contribution to the commonwealth over its 400 years. Throughout Virginia's history, African Americans have come together to create and sustain communities.

Twenty-odd Angolans—the first Africans to arrive in Virginia after a torturous Atlantic journey in 1619 on the ship SaoJoao Bautista—called each other malongo, a KImbundu word meaning "shipmate" or "companion." Most Africans who were brought to Virginia were taken from West Africa—from the Bight of Biafra, Senegambia, and modern-day Cameroon. They spoke many different languages, including Igbo, Efik, Ijo, Wolof, Manding, and Pular. With no common language, their first challenge was inventing ways of speaking to one another and creating community.

As fluency in African languages began to fade in Virginia, some words and phrases entered American English; for example, "goober" came from the Kimbundu word for peanut (ngaba). Replacing identities based on language and ethnic origins, bondsmen and bondswomen began to derive a sense of community from their common conditions and their recognition of cultural similarities. What emerged in the Chesapeake Bay area were regional African American identities—new forms of cultural expression that melded African aesthetics with European and sometimes Native American influences. Virginia could not have developed without the expertise, skills, and labor that Africans brought with them. African expertise in forming work groups, agriculture, tool making, and animal husbandry was indispensable to the foundation of Virginia. Early on, African Americans founded their own churches, such as the First Baptist Church in Williamsburg, one of the oldest African American churches in the state. As some bondpersons in Virginia were set free in the wills of their captors, bought their freedom, or escaped through the perilous Underground Railroad, they began to establish villages. Land ownership was the key not only to economic success, but also to building a legacy. Israel Cross, a preacher to freedmen communities in Eastern Virginia, urged his followers to "buy some land, build a home, and get some education."

The 54-40 African American Quilters Guild of Hampton, Virginia, has been meeting to share their love of quilts and quilting for over thirty years. © 2007 Roland L. Freeman
For enslaved and free African Americans, training and education were tantamount to freedom and independence. Education and its denial became touchpoints in the struggle for human rights. African Virginian activists Mary Peake of Hampton and Booker T. Washington, a Hampton graduate who became head of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, helped establish not only colleges and technical institutes, but also elementary and secondary schools, such as the "Rosenwald Schools," so called because they were partially funded through grants from Julius Rosenwald, the founder of Sears, Roebuck & Company. (Similar "whites-only" schools were created earlier throughout the segregated South.) These schools and Virginia's Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) taught African Americans technical and agricultural skills. Today, there are five HBCUs in Virginia: Hampton University, Norfolk State University, Saint Paul's College, Virginia State University, and Virginia Union University. Each school specializes in different academic fields, and each one is known for particular forms of expressive culture, including stepping, show bands, gospel choirs, and glee clubs.

Music is one of the strongest examples of the cultural give-and-take. There exists a 1750 written description of an instrument called a banjolele, which Africans played in Virginia. The presence of this stringed instrument meant that among those who came to Virginia were members of the occupational class of musicians and oral historians from the Manding, Pular, and Wolof kingdoms of the Sahel region of West Africa. These skilled musicians and storytellers were called griots. Usually attached to courts, they sang the history and accomplishments of rulers and their families. The banjolele of the griots and other similar stringed instruments (the xalam, hoddou, ngoni, and gambare) were the ancestors of the modern banjo. First an instrument of African Americans, the banjo became, for many years, an instrument associated with Appalachian music.

There is no area in American history, let alone colonial Virginian history, untouched by the hands of Africans and African Americans. With over half of the population of Williamsburg being of African descent, any story of America's beginnings and life in Williamsburg devoid of the experience of enslaved Africans would be incomplete, incorrect, and anything but accurate. Men and women, free and enslaved, lived, socialized, loved, worked, suffered, survived and fought for freedom. —Rex Ellis

Historian Rex Ellis, head of the historic area at Colonial Williamsburg, stresses the importance of recognizing how, in markedly different ways, enslavers and those in bondage were negatively affected by the institution of slavery. At Colonial Williamsburg, Ellis and others have reinterpreted slavery to show the complexities of the institution. And they have humanized it with interactive, "first-person presentations" throughout the historic area.
Today, recent African immigrants to Virginia, including a large number of Somalis, build community in some of the same ways as earlier Africans did. Although many Somalis live in modern high-rises in Northern Virginia, they get together as often as possible for coffee and meet for a picnic each year in George Mason Park to share stories, songs, and traditions, such as henna hand-decoration.

Currently, farmers on both shores of the Atlantic Ocean find themselves in similar straits. Previously engaged almost exclusively in growing one cash crop, small West African peanut farmers and Virginia African American tobacco farmers stay in business by diversifying their crops, developing pesticide-free agriculture, and saving heirloom seeds. Family farms are threatened by the flight of young people to cities and to more financially rewarding, less physically taxing occupations.

African American Virginians have become national leaders in interpreting their past and the specific cultural and historical issues that have emerged from the African/African American presence in the state. These issues include the interpretation of slavery in Virginia, the Civil War, the Civil Rights movement, and the movement for African American self-determination. Virginia's HBCUs, churches, clubs, friendly societies, and heritage organizations document and interpret their histories and educate themselves and others about African Americans' role in Virginia's history.

The first Africans to come to Virginia and their descendants contributed their expertise, artistry, labor, and lives to the creation of Virginia as we know it today. The impact of the Africans and their descendants is evident in the confluence of people, traditions, geography, and historical events that continue to shape Virginia’s present and point to its future.

Diana Baird N’Diaye, Ph.D., is a cultural heritage specialist and Curator of the African and African American component of the Roots of Virginia Culture program. For over twenty-five years, she has developed exhibitions, programs, and publications on African and African Diaspora expressive culture. In recent years, her work has expanded to include cultural policy, heritage ethnography, and cultural tourism. She lived in Virginia for sixteen years.

To succeeding generations, members of West African farming communities pass on knowledge and skills that were essential to Virginia’s early development. Young farmer Aloune Ba builds a fence in Ndglassem, Senegal

Photo by Diana N’Diaye, Smithsonian Institution

SWEET POTATO PIE (Makes two 10-inch or three 7-inch pies)

Reproduced here is Edna Lewis’s recipe for sweet potato pie, part of her Sunday Revival Dinner menu. Lewis describes this event as “our most important social event of the summer season.”

Dough

3 cups plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
1 cup chilled, home-rendered sweet lard
1 scant teaspoon salt
½ cup cold water

Filling

2 cups mashed and sieved sweet potatoes
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon fresh-grated nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
3 small or medium eggs, separated
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
½ cup butter, melted over hot water
1½ cups milk, at room temperature

Two 10-inch or three 7-inch pie pans

Directions

In a mixing bowl blend well together with a pastry blender the 3 cups of flour, lard, and salt. When well blended, add cold water and mix together by hand. This is a very short dough and the water has to be incorporated in by hand. After blending the water in, shape the dough into a ball. Sprinkle the dough over with 2 tablespoons flour to make it easier to handle. Divide the dough into pieces for the number of pies to be made. Leave to rest for 10 to 15 minutes. It is best to roll the dough out after resting. It is easier to handle while soft.

After rolling the dough out, place it in the pie pans. Trim, cover, and set in the refrigerator or freezer until needed. Remove and fill while chilled.

In a mixing bowl combine the sieved sweet potatoes, sugar, spices, salt, beaten yolks, vanilla, and melted butter. Mix thoroughly. Add in the milk and stir well. Beat the whites of eggs to the frothy stage and stir them into the batter. Pour the batter into the pastry lined pie pans. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes.
By the mid-1700s, the settlement of western Virginia was at full speed. The English and their African American slaves built large farms in the Virginia Piedmont. Germans settled much of the Shenandoah Valley, and the Scots-Irish carved out smaller farmsteads in the hollows of the Blue Ridge Mountains. People, commerce, and information flowed through western Virginia along the Great Wagon Road, the Carolina Road, and the Wilderness Road. By 1860, the railroad was crisscrossing Virginia. By 1900, the coal, timber, and farm products of western Virginia were sold throughout the eastern United States. Still, many Virginians held fast to their old cultural identities and to the music, speech, foodways, crafts, and social customs that reflected their identities.

In the early 1970s, Ferrum College created the Blue Ridge Institute & Museum to document and showcase the folklife of the Blue Ridge. The Institute’s work is part of a regional collecting tradition that stretches back over a century. The field-workers of the early 1900s, however, could scarcely have imagined how folkways would change and how easy it would become to record and present so many traditions to a huge audience.

FRIED APPLE PIES

Fried apple pie is a real treat at the Blue Ridge Folklife Festival. The following recipe was demonstrated at the 1995 festival. Mrs. Virginia P. Crook of Ferrum, Virginia, learned the recipe from her mother, who, before she passed away in 1974 at the age of 87, had made enough of these pies to lay end to end around the world several times. The secret is in the dried apples.

Filling

2 cups (packed) dried apples (Good drying apples are winesap, Granny Smith, or Summer Rambo)
3 cups water
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
Cook until tender and waterless
Sweeten to taste, and set aside to cool

Crust

2 cups plain white flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup solid shortening (preferably Crisco)
Enough ice water to make up a good workable dough

Directions

Divide dough into small balls big enough to roll into a pie crust the size of a dessert plate. My mother said each ball should be "the size of a goose egg." Place two to three tablespoons cooled apples in one half of the crust, fold over the other half, and crimp the edges to seal the crust. It should look similar to a crescent. Heat oil or shortening in an iron frying pan, about two inches deep. Fry the pies until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towels or clean cloth. These can be frozen. The recipe should make about six pies.

Additional Notes

To test the temperature of the oil, drop a drop of cold water in the pan. If it dances all the way across the pan, it is hot enough.
The three root cultures of Virginia, which are the focus of this program, extend throughout the commonwealth and combine with many others to create the vibrant traditions of contemporary Virginia. From the old-time music gatherings of Galax to the ceremonial Hmong dances of Arlington, from the intricately hand-stitched quilts of the Shenandoah to the duck decoys of the Eastern Shore, the forms of folk life in Virginia are as diverse as the communities that create them.

Since its inception in 1986, the Virginia Folklife Program, a public program of the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities, has worked to document, present, and support Virginia’s diverse traditional folkways by producing and supporting educational materials and public programs. In the first years of the program, Garry Barrow conducted numerous ethnographic fieldwork surveys that helped to capture the stories of everyday people living extraordinary lives and that yielded such cultural treasures as the Buckingham Lining Bar Gang and the Northern Neck Chantey Singers. The Folklife Program also worked with communities like the Monacan Indian Tribe to document their cultural traditions, and it launched the highly successful Piedmont Guitarists Tour, which featured Virginia blues masters John Jackson, John Cephas, Daniel Womack, and others.

In 2001, Jon Lohman assumed the directorship of the Folklife Program, which has continued to document Virginia’s rich cultural folkways through audio and video documentation, exhibit design, public programming, and project development. From all the various initiatives of the Folklife Program, the Virginia Folklife Apprenticeship Program stands out as the program’s cornerstone. Now in its fifth year, the program pairs experienced master artists with apprentices for a one-on-one, nine-month learning experience. Apprenticeships have included fiddle making, crabtrap building, and even automobile pinstriping. The program has been generously supported by the National Endowment for the Arts.

During the apprenticeship period, the master artist and apprentice enter into a mutually enriching relationship, both cultural and personal; they connect lessons and memories from the past with shared visions for the future. Through this intimate on-one experience, the apprentice is able to access the subtle nuances of the particular traditional form—those elusive qualities of the craft that have invested it with cultural resonance and traditional resilience.

The Folklife Apprenticeship Program helps ensure that Virginia’s treasured folkways not only continue, but also receive new life and vibrancy, engaging new learners and reinvigorating master practitioners. This photo essay introduces a number of participants in the program, which truly allows the past to be passed on to the present in Virginia.

Jon Lohman is Director of the Virginia Folklife Program, at the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities. He earned a Ph.D. in folklore and folklife from the University of Pennsylvania. As the Virginia state folklorist, he works to document, present, and support Virginia’s rich folkways through audio and video documentation, exhibit design, public programming, and project development. Jon works closely with Ferrum College’s Blue Ridge Institute, and other organizations and communities. He has produced numerous recordings, including the Paschall Brothers’ On the Right Road Now, for Smithsonian Folkways Recordings, and bluegrass, old-time, and gospel releases for the Foundation’s own Crooked Road Series.
MILDRED MOORE
The Pamunkey Indian potters created their distinctive blackware pottery long before their first contact with Europeans in 1607. Born and raised on the Pamunkey Indian Reservation, Mildred Moore learned the art of traditional Powhatan Blackware as a child from the Elder Woman at the pottery school. Mildred is now one of the few elder women still practicing this important tradition. She teaches her apprentice to make the pottery using the hand-coil method, which does not require a pottery wheel. The women dig their clay from the same vein in the Pamunkey River as their ancestors did.

THORNTON AND MARTHA SPENCER
Grayson County master fiddler Thornton Spencer learned to play in the 1940s from his brother-in-law, the revered fiddle maker and player Albert Hash. Thornton’s daughter, Martha Spencer, has been immersed in old-time music her entire life. Already a gifted multi-instrumentalist, Martha has used her apprenticeship opportunity to focus on the nuances of the fiddle.

FLORY JAGODA
Flory Jagoda, “the keeper of the flame” of a once thriving Sephardic Jewish song tradition, mentored singer Susan Gaeta. Flory’s songs, passed down in her family since they fled the Spanish Inquisition in 1492, were learned from her nona (grandmother) as a child in pre-World War II Sarajevo. She sings all of her ballads in Ladino, or Judeo-Spanish, a language that dates back centuries. Sadly, Flory is the lone member of her acclaimed singing family to survive the Holocaust. She has almost single-handedly kept the Sephardic ballad tradition alive. In 2002, Flory was awarded a National Heritage Fellowship.

JOHN CEPHAS
The most distinctive feature of the Piedmont guitar style is its fingerpicking method in which the thumb lays down a rhythmic bass-line against which one or two fingers pluck out the melody of the tune. John Cephas, of Bowling Green, Virginia, is considered the world’s foremost Piedmont bluesman. John learned to play guitar from family members and neighbors in Caroline County at the many “county breakdowns” and house parties that were a staple of social life in the region. His collaborations with harmonica master Phil Wiggins have been delighting audiences throughout the world for decades. In 1989 John was awarded a National Heritage Fellowship, the highest honor the United States government bestows upon a traditional artist.
JOHN D. CLARY
According to legend, Brunswick stew began as a communal meal prepared for a hunting expedition on the banks of the Nottoway River in 1828. Cooking Brunswick stew has since become a time-honored tradition—a staple at community gatherings, a source of regional pride, the focus of spirited competition, and a true Virginia culinary art. When he joined the Lawrenceville Volunteer Fire Department in the fall of 1973, John D. Clary began cooking Brunswick stew under the watchful eye of Stewmaster McGuire Thomas. John eventually ascended to the level of Stewmaster in 1988. He continues to cook for the Fire Department, the local Lions Club, the Virginia Tech Athletic Department, and the Capitol and State Fair in Richmond, where he met his apprentice, Chiles Cridlin.

OLEN GARDNER AND ROSS MATHEWS
Olen Gardner was exposed to a host of instrument makers as a child and has been developing his craft ever since. Olen constructs bluegrass and old-time banjos, as well as guitars and the occasional violin. Olen is a fine banjoist in his right and worked with Charlie Monroe in the early 1950s. A former tool maker, Olen has developed numerous tools specifically designed for the construction and repair of stringed instruments. For the past two years, Olen has been mentoring Ross Mathews in the art of fine instrument repair and construction.

GRAYSON CHESSER
Eastern Shore native Grayson Chesser learned to carve from legendary Chincoteague Island carvers Miles Hancock and “Cigar” Daisy and has gone on to become one of carving’s true living legends. Grayson’s family roots on the Eastern Shore date back to the mid-1600s. Like his forebears, he is deeply immersed in the maritime traditions of the area, as a carver, hunting guide, and conservationist. Always eloquent, Chesser sums up the feelings of most of the Apprenticeship Program participants in the following statement: “All I ever wanted to be was a decoy carver. I learned at the feet of master carvers, and now most of them are passed and gone. There’s nothing I can give back to those guys now, but I always thought that maybe if I can teach someone, then that could sort of be my way of repaying them. So this apprenticeship is really a continuation of what those guys have done for me.”

PENNY STILLWELL
Canning was the only way to preserve jams, jellies, relishes, and pickles before refrigeration. Master canners such as Penny Stillwell have elevated canning to an art form. Since she was six years old, canning has been nothing short of a way of life for Penny. She cans everything from beets to okra, from apple butter to roasted tomatoes. Penny used her apprenticeship to teach her daughter many of her unrecorded recipes and share some of her most cherished canning secrets.

www.folkways.si.edu
www.smithsonianglobalsound.org www.cr.nps.gov/ethnography/aah/aaheritage/
National Park Service: Africans in the Chesapeake: Time, Space, People www.hereshistorykent.org.uk www.innercity.org/holt/slavechron.html
www.jamestown2007.org www.kent.gov.uk
www.kentarchives.org www.penshurstplace.com
www.virginiafolklife.org

Ken Christalow (Mattapom), who lives on Mattapan Indian Tribe reservation in the Tidewater region of Virginia, makes beautiful flutes from alder and cedar wood. Print by Kareen Wood.
Staff

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION
Cristian Samper, Acting Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution
Sheila P. Burke, Deputy Secretary and Chief Operating Officer

CENTER FOR FOLKLIFE AND CULTURAL HERITAGE
Richard Kurin, Director
Richard Kennedy, Deputy Director
Kevin Blackerby, Development Officer
Rebecca Smerling Marcus, Assistant to the Center Director/Special Events

Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage Advisory Council
Kurt Dewhurst (chair), Judy Mitoma (vice-chair), Michael Asch (ex-officio), Michael Doucet, Anthony Gottens, John Herzog (ex-officio), Debra Kodish, Enrique Lamadrid, Worth Long, Libby O'Connell, J. Scott Kaecker, Robert Santelli

Administration
Barbara Strickland, Associate Director, Finance and Administration
Marquinta Bell, Administrative Specialist
Eddie Mendoza, Festival Services Manager
Mark Reedy, Accountant
Pamela Rogers, Information Technologies Specialist
Claudia Tellio, Administrative Specialist
Ramona Dowdall, Renny Smith, Volunteers
Suzanne Polivy, Michael Rawhins, Interns

Smithsonian Folkways Recordings
Daniel Sheehy, Curator and Director
Anthony Seeger, Curator and Director, Emeritus
D. A. Sonneborn, Assistant Director
Betty Derbyshire, Financial Operations Manager
Richard Burgess, Director of Marketing and Sales
Pete Reinger, Sound Production Supervisor
Mary Monseur, Production Manager
Margot Nassau, Royalties and Licensing Manager
John Smith, Marketing and Sales Specialist
Mark Gustafson, Marketing Specialist
Laura Dorn, Marketing and Sales Specialist
Helen Lindsay, Lead Customer Service Representative
Ronnie Simpkins, Audio Recording Specialist
Keisha Martin, Financial Assistant
Lauren Becker, Customer Service Representative
Lee Michael Demsey, Customer Service Representative
Norman van der Sluys, Customer Service Representative
Jacob Charron, Allison Fiske, David Fossum, Catherine Glennon, M. Kelley Griffin, Parker Jarmigan, Kristin L. King, Benjamin Levin, Katherine Maskell, Andrew Moreau, Katie Reilly, Joe Stobrick, Alyssa Whitmore, Interns
Brian Mullan, Volunteer

Smithsonian Global Sound
Toby Dodds, Technology Manager
Amy Schriever, Program Coordinator
Anders Nelson, Diogo de Lima Saraiva, Juliana Su, Tessa Taylor, Interns

Smithsonian Folkways Advisory Council
Michael Asch (chair), Patricia Shehan Campbell, Hal Cannon, Don DeVito, Ella Jenkins, Anthony Seeger, Fred Silber

Ralph Rinzler Folklife Archives and Collections
Jeffrey Place, Archivist
Stephanie Smith, Assistant Archivist
Jack Manischewitz, Brian Scott, Interns

Cultural Heritage Policy
James Counts Early, Director

Cultural Research and Education
Olivia Cadaval, Chair
Thomas Vennum, Jr., Senior Ethnomusicologist Emeritus
Betty J. Belanus, Olivia Cadaval, James Deutsch, Nancy Groce, Marjorie Hunt, Diana Baird, N'Diaye, Peter Settel (Emeritus), Curators, Folklorists, Education & Cultural Specialists
John W. Franklin, Program Manager
Cristina Diaz-Carrera, Latino Program Specialist
Roberto Albro, Geri Benoit, Carla Borden, Irene Chagall, Patrick Delatour, Roland Freeman, Kip Lornell, Joan Nathan, Frank Proshansky, Sita Reddy, Sam-Ang Sam, Preston Scott, Cynthia Vidaurri, Patrick Vilare, Nilda Villalba, Research Associates
Patrick Alcedo, Bill Anthes, Tressa Berman, Sara Broulette, Uma Chandru, Adriana Cruz-Manjarrez, Marie-Yvonne Curtis, Peter Glazer, Israel Lazarro, Julie McGee, Brett Pyper, Sita Reddy, Carole Rosenstein, Fellows
Erica Alemdar, Jennifer Jones, Hilary Thompson, Caroline Halferty, Leticia Soto, Interns
SMITHSONIAN FOLKLIFE FESTIVAL

Diana Parker, Festival Director
Stephen Kidd, Production Manager
Hannah Smith, Assistant to the Festival Director
Linda Benner, Assistant to Administration
Gus Stickel, Assistant to Administration
Jason Dubroff, Emily Mastroelis, Interns

Participant Support
Aliza Schiff, Participant Coordinator
Alana Ackerman, Gwyneth Anderson, Elizabeth Bridgforth, Lauren Weintraub, Participant Assistants
Lisa Paska, Housing Coordinator
Jennifer Neely, Transportation Coordinator
Juan Salazar, Assistant to the Technical Director
Jennifer Lawrence, Alexandra Solomon, Interns

Technical Support
Rob Schneider, Technical Director
Anthony Millby, Assistant Technical Director
Rebecca Berlin, Assistant to the Technical Director
Charlie Marcus, Eric Nance, Electricians
Ray Reed, Pipe Fitter
Joshua Herndon, Carpenter
John Bullock, Terry Menefield, Elisa Miller, Alaric Strickland, Crew Leaders
Tim Bergstrom, Andrew Derbyshire, Ralph Derbyshire, Alison Koonstra, Chris Marttin, Joseph Munse, Jennifer Regan, Molly Ryan, William Straub, Exhibit Workers
Dave Lamming, Tracking
Stephen Fisher, Sound and Stage Supervisor
Nate Lannon, Sound Equipment Manager
Kim Buchanan, Jeanette Buck, David Clements, Rachel Cross, Licia Gahinsky, Sissy Lang, Barbara Lau, Brandon Prendergast, Sarah Pilzer, Dawn Welsh, Stage Managers
Colleen Americh, Mike Alon, Saul Broydy, Larry Cunemann, Paul Cogan, Dennis Cook, Henry Cross, Andrew Derr, Ken Derr, Steven Edwards, Jeff Garrettson, Alison Goessling, Chris Kozlowski, Gregg Lamping, Dean Languell, Pat McGee, Michael Manoukian, Mike Monsor, Charlie Pilzer, Alyssa Ryvers, James Welsh, Sound Engineers

Publications
Mary Schold, Editor

Design and Production
Krystyn MacGregor Confar, Art Director
Jean Erdesky, Production Manager
Zaki Ghul, Graphic Designer
Mikako Suzuki, Intern

Documentation
Charlie Weber, Video Documentation Coordinator
Jeffrey Place, Audio Documentation Coordinator
Stephanie Smith, Photo Documentation Coordinator
Megan Glass, Nathan Juarin, Emilia Mahaffey, Shawn McCarthy, Jack Moore, Mikaela Mroczynski, Karen Opoku, Allison Wanger, Tess Webre, Lawrence Williams, Interns

Education and Program Support
Arlene Reiniger, Intern Coordinator
Kevin Blackery, Accessibility Coordinator
Candas Barnes, Jean Berkey, Alissa A. Enders, Kelly Turner, Hank Young, Sign-Language Interpreters
Becky Haberacker, Amy Kehs, Public Affairs
Lee Brooks and Malorie Giammo, Public Affairs Interns
Michelle DeCesare, Supply Coordinator
Katherine Bradley, Supply Assistant
Bret Silvis, Supply Intern
Mark Haskell, Foodways Coordinator
Hillary Ross, Foodways Intern
Soyn George, Volunteer Coordinator
Kari Braselero, Assistant Volunteer Coordinator
Katherine Pulupa, Stephanie Winkelpohn, Volunteer Interns

Marketplace
Rachel Delgado, Craft Sales Coordinator
Jack Rutledge, Assistant Coordinator
A.C. Stickel, Operations Manager
Chuck Graves, Inventory Manager
Henry Goodson, Consignment Coordinator
Ranssa Noubyssie, Intern
Mih Bin Brahim, Carlos Bruce, Stewart Duque, Elaine Graves, Swatantar Mani, Vicente Mendoza, Jared Miller, Wendell Morris, Daniel Sheehy, Fernando Cordova Soriano, Daniel Strickland, Rosemary Tang, Jay M. Williams, Lamar Wilson, Alexandra Zapple, Marketplace Associates

MEKONG RIVER: CONNECTING CULTURES

Smithsonian Institution
Im Deutsich, Richard Kennedy, Frank Proschon, Lan-Lan Wang, Curatorial Team
Arlene Reiniger, Program Coordinator
Kim Stryker, Family Learning, Sala Coordinator
Steven Prieto, Public Television Coordinator
Jude Griffiths, Marketplace Consultant
Jeff Crosby, Bounheng Inversin, Vathany Say, Cultural Liaisons
Cathie Alton, Nora Cary, Anna Darro, Jennifer Kwong, Claire Resnider, Sarah Sajewski, Elizabeth Tredeau, Judith von Falkenberg, Katie Wynn, Interns
Ang Robinson, Lead Volunteer
Cambodia
H.E. Samraung Kamsan,
Sam-Ang Sam, Suon Bun Rith,
Curatorial Team
Suon Bun Rith, Program Coordinator

China–Yunnan
Mme. Yan Youqiong, Zheng
Ming, Fan Jianhua, Yang
Fuquan, Xie Mohua, Zhou
Yunxiang, Dai Shuiping,
Steering Committee
Jin Qiang, Lead Coordinator
Leng Yunping, Ma Yinghua,
Coordinators
Jiang Weih, Wang Jun, Yang
Hongwen, Assistant Coordinators

Laos
Chanthaphilith Cheimsouwajit,
Kanha Sikoummavong,
Khammanh Siphavanh,
Outtala Vanyouvetch, Souriyabom
Sisavangrat, Curatorial and Coordinating Team

Thailand
Paritta Chalermpow Kosanakool,
Suvanna Kriengkripaetich,
Chawat Boonyakiet,
Sareey Boontum, Somrak
Chaisangnanont, Curatorial,
Steering, and Coordinating Team

Vietnam
Dang Van Bai, Le Thi Minh Ly,
Le Hong Ly, Luan Tran Tieu,
Ngo Duc Thinh, Nguyen Chi
Ben, Nguyen Van Huy, To Ngoc Thanh, Curatorial Team
Nguyen Kim Dung, Nguyen
Duc Tang, Pham Cao Quy,
Coordinating Team

Research
Chanthaphilith Cheimsouwaj
Charlie Weber, Chavivan
Prachabumoh, Cynthia Vidaurri,
Frank Proschan, Nguyen Truong
Giang, Paritta Chalermpow
Kosanakool, Richard Kennedy,
Sam-Ang Sam, Stephen Kidd,
Suriya Smutkupt, Suvanna
Kriengkripaetich, Trainers

Amphaka Mata, Anachanh
Sokanya, Anupap Sakutgum,
Bui Phat Diem, Bui Thi Phuong
Ma, Chanthit Tiarprasert,
Chawat Boonyakiet, Dang
Kim Quy, Dang Van Hung, Fan
Jianhua, Hoang Huong, Huang
Yindan, Jiang Weih, Jin Qiang,
Kanha Sikoummavong, Khammay
Thavivan, Khampheng
Soulignavong, Korakot Boonlop,
Lan-Lan Wang, Leng Yunping,
Lu Van Hoi, Ma Yinghua, Mai
My Duc Tang,
Nguyen Minh Tam, Nguyen Thi
Thu Huong, Nguyen Van Thien,
Nguyen Xuan Hoan, Oudom,
Outtala Vanyouvetch, Panta
Sara Warasee, Phal Pray, Pham
Cao Quy, Pham Quoc Vinh,
Phan Thanh Bang, Phengsavanh
Vongchandy, Phouern Revant,
Pho Khong Kinglattana, Prak
Born, Prak Sokrhon, Prak
Sonnara, Sam-Ang Sam, Sareey
Boontham, Sarinya Khammuang,
Soeng Chhayareth, Srinut
Khutaka, Sivlay Chanthavong,
Som Phrasayamonkounh,
Som Prapay, Somchay Jayaw,
Somchai Nal-Arbi, Somnai
Chinnak, Somphon Silasak,
Somrak Chaisangnanont,
Somsak Sibunreung, Son Luong,
Songkham Kaewmoon, Souriyabom
Sisavangrat, Sun Sovanny, Sunse
Prasongbatidit, Sunson Bun Rith,
Supara Maneerat, Tran Van
Hanhh, Try Suphearac, Ung
Sreng, Vaeng Phounmuna,
Vongpraves, Vongsavanh
Yongmoungkhoum, Wang Jun,
Xie Mohua, Ya Da, Yang Fuquan,
Yang Hongwen, Yang Kathana,
Yang Xiaoqiang, Yongxiang Li, Yu
Ming, Yun Mane, Zheng Ming,
Zhou Yunxiang, Researchers

Apilaporn Vechakij, Bounphamith
Somvichith, Khammanh
Siphavanh, Konrat Pruekchakul,
Lam Phuong, Le Cong Tran,
Le Thi Huyen, Le Cong Tran,
Ly Pros, Man samath Dore,
Nguyen Thi Thu Huong,
Philly Sokpisey, Prapassorn
Phoithong, Saint Mtiunguyen,
Soubhun Saybhoonglam, Theav
Phatsophasarn, Truong Thi
Ngoc Diep, Interpreters

An Thu Tra, Bountheng Soksayvatt, Bui Thi Phuong Mai,
Chanthabophu Vongsaravanh,
Chanthaphilith Cheimsouwajit,
Chawat Tiarprasert, Chawat
Boonyakiet, Helen Rees,
Jing Li, Khammanh Siphavanh,
Korakot Boonlop,
La Thi Thanh Thu, Lan Lan
Wang, Le Tung Lam, Leedom
Leflers, Louise Cort, Luo
Lin, Ma Yihua, Mo Cunyan,
Ngheem Xuan Dong, Nguyen
Duc Tang, Nguyen Kim Dung,
Outtala Vanyouvetch, Pham
Cao Quy, Phan Thanh Bang,
Phetsayvany Keobounma,
Phourn Revant, Pichet Sakhon,
Prapassorn Posrihong, Ratana
Tosakul, Sam Thida, Sam-Ang
Sam, Somrak Chaisangnanont,
Souriyabom Sisavangrat, Suon
Bun Rith, Suriya Smutkupt,
Suvanna Kriengkripaetich, Tran
Thu Trinh, Yang Xinyu,
Yun Mane, Zhao Jin, Presenters

NORTHERN IRELAND AT THE SMITHSONIAN

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

Nancy Groce, Curator
Jason Morris, Program Coordinator
Anne Blauvelt, Molly Bolke,
Allison Burns, Anoop Desai,
Joanna Fisher, Margaret
Hathaway, Megan McCabe,
Shayani Mukherjee, Interns
Linda Ballard, Maurice Bradley,
Anne Burke, John Edmund, Paul
Flynn, Sarah McDowell, Dympna
McElhinney, Colum Sands,
Researchers and Fieldworkers
DEPARTMENT OF CULTURE, ARTS AND LEISURE

Edwin Poots, Minister for Culture, Arts and Leisure
Paul Sweeney, Permanent Secretary
Edgar Jardine, Deputy Secretary
Mick Cory, Director of Sport, Museums and Recreation
Colin Jack, Director of Culture
Pat Wilson, Northern Ireland Project Manager
Ryan Williams, Business Links Manager
Philip Hammond, Creative Director
Jill Herron, Principal Information Officer
Joanne Eland, Senior Information Officer
Rosemary Petrie, Finance Manager
Marian Kelly, Logistics Manager
Julie Steen, Events Manager
Janice Stevenson, Marketplace Coordinator
Kerry Savage, Office Manager
Orla McCarthy, Participant Coordinator
Kevin Loy, Freight Coordinator

Leadership Committee
Kenneth Branagh
Barry Douglas
Brian Friel
Sir James Galway
Brian Kennedy
Senator George Mitchell
Liam Neeson

Lead Secretariat
Alan Gillespie, Chairman, Ulster Bank
Austin Baird, Managing Director, Ravenhill Estates
Terry Brannigan, Chief Executive, Maybin Support Services Northern Ireland Ltd.
Mick Cory, Director of Sport, Museums and Recreation, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Barry Gilligan, Chairman, Cobra Estates

Michael Gould, Programme Manager of Skills and Industry, Department of Education and Learning
Nigel Hamilton, Head of the Civil Service, Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister
Philip Hammond, Creative Director, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Ruth Lard, Management Consultant
Paul Sweeney, Permanent Secretary, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Ryan Williams, Business Links Manager, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Pat Wilson, Northern Ireland Project Manager, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Coordinating Group
Tim Cooke, National Museums Northern Ireland
Mick Cory, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Jardine Edgar, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Joanne Eland, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Stephen Grimason, Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister
Philip Hammond, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Jill Herron, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Norman Houston, Department of Trade and Industry
Colin Jack, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Seohran Logue, Department of Education and Learning
Liz Longhian, Department of Social Development
Tim Losty, Northern Ireland Bureau
Shan McCauley, Queen's University—Belfast
David McAuley, Department of Education and Learning
Rosin McDonough, Arts Council of Northern Ireland

Jim McGreevy, National Museums Northern Ireland
Gillian McLean, National Museums Northern Ireland
Pat Murphy, Invest Northern Ireland
Colm Shannon, Executive Information Service
John Speers, Department of Agriculture and Rural Development
Paul Sweeney, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Noreen Taggart, University of Ulster
Maeve Walls, Northern Ireland Bureau
Sue Ward, Northern Ireland Tourism Board
Ryan Williams, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Pat Wilson, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Curatorial Group
Valene Adams, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Frances Bailey, National Trust
Linda Ballard, National Museums Northern Ireland
Hazel Campbell, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Teresa Canavan, Rural Development Council
Heather Carr, Arts and Business
Anna Carragher, British Broadcasting Corporation
Mick Cory, Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure
Michael Coulter, Environment and Heritage Service
Anthony Cranney, Northern Ireland Tourism Board
Manus Deery, Environment and Heritage Service
Paul Flynn, Arts Council of Northern Ireland
Olga Gallagher, Rural Development Council
John Gilmour, National Museums Northern Ireland
Helen Gormley, Rural Community Network
John Gray, Linen Hall Library
ROOTS OF VIRGINIA CULTURE

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION
Betty J. Belanus, Curator
Duana N'Diaye, Curator, African African American Roots
Dorcy Butler, Program Coordinator
Beverly Simons, Program Assistant
Gorgui N'Diaye, Cultural Liaison
Caithn Whitney Astrue, Emily Burrows, Elizabeth Clay, Julia Fae Beckman, Kelsey Foster, Hillary Jones, Rebecca Kamm, Jacquelynn Leggett, Kimberley I. Peck, Lauren Jade Rosenman, Sarah Stella, Interns

Harold Anderson, Olivia Cadaval, Paul Cowdell, Marjorie Hunt, Paula Johnson, Jon Lohman, Kip Lornell, Hannah McNorton, George Monger, Roddy Moore, Jeff Place, Mark Pucyec, Gabriella Tayac, Vaughan Webb, Chris Williams, CiCi Williamson, Karena Wood, Presenters

JAMESTOWN 2007
Jeanne Zeidler, Executive Director
Amy Ritchie, Manager of Statewide Programs and Smithsonian Project Manager
Howard Gevertz, Director of Operations
Ross Richardson, Director of Marketing Communications
Kevin Crossett, Manager of Public Relations and Promotions
Gloria Jackson-Warren, Manager of Media Arts
Linda Stammer, Manager of Special Events and Projects
Michele Cranford, Communications Specialist
Stacey Hood, Executive Assistant
Jessica Perkins, Statewide Administrative Assistant

KENT, ENGLAND
Rebecca Casson, Head of Kent Virginia Development
Hollie Nelson, Smithsonian Project Manager
Leila Maggs, Smithsonian Project Coordinator
Deborah Malthouse, FIP/Off-Mall Event Coordinator
Allison Campbell-Smith, Marketplace Coordinator
Jan Vickery, Web Site Coordinator
Denise Eden-Green, Press Liaison
Bev Gibbs, Finance Assistant
Stephen Dukes, Kent Learning Center/Marketplace Assistant
Elaine Dukes, Kent Learning Center/Marketplace Assistant

Research
Howard Bess, Ann Bay, Mary Briggs, Lonnie Bunch, George Carter, Rex Ellis, Anthony Gualtieri, Portia James, Gail Lowe, Helen Schierbeck, Gabriella Tayac, Esther Washington, C. Brian Williams, Chris Williams, CiCi Williamson, Advisors
Abdoulaye Camera, Gorgui N'Diaye, Senegal, West Africa Fieldworkers
Teri Brewer, Paul Cowdell, Hannah McNorton, George Monger, Kent, England Fieldworkers
RALPH RINZLER MEMORIAL CONCERT
Barry Bergey, Curatorial Advisor
Madeleine Remez, Curatorial Advisor
Hannah Smith, Coordinator
Barry Bergey, Dan Shechy, Presenters

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE
Dirk Kempthorne, Secretary of the Interior
Mary Boman, Director, National Park Service
Daniel N. Wenk, Deputy Director, National Park Service
Joseph M. Lawler, Regional Director, National Park Service
Dwight E. Pettiford, Chief, United States Park Police
Stephen Lorenzetti, Acting Superintendent, National Mall & Memorial Parks
Rick Merryman, Chief, Division of Park Programs
Leonard Lee, Permit Specialist, Division of Park Programs
Richard Durett, Public Health Consultant
Steve LaBel, Deputy Associate Regional Manager
Alice McLarty, Park Landscape Architect
Karen Cucurullo, Special Assistant for Partnerships, National Mall & Memorial Parks
Robert Karotko, Chief, Division of Visitor Services, National Mall & Memorial Parks
Sean Kenneally, Chief, Division of Maintenance, National Mall & Memorial Parks
Employees of the National Park Service and the United States Park Police

SMITHSONIAN SUPPORT FOR THE FESTIVAL
Office of the Secretary
Office of External Affairs
Office of Development
Office of Sponsored Projects
Office of the General Counsel
Office of the Deputy Secretary and Chief Operating Officer
Smithsonian Center for Latino Initiatives
Facilities Engineering and Operations
Office of Engineering, Design, and Construction
Office of Facilities Management
Horticulture
Transportation
Office of Facilities Reliability
Office of Facilities Planning and Resources
Office of Architectural History and Historic Preservation
Office of Project Management
Office of Protection Services
Office of Safety and Environmental Management
Office of Government Relations
Office of Communications
Office of Public Affairs
Visitor Information & Associates’ Reception Center
Accessibility Program
Office of Human Resources
Office of Special Events and Protocol
Office of the Chief Information Officer
Office of Imaging and Photographic Services
Office of IT Operations
Office of System Modernization

Office of the Chief Financial Officer
Office of the Comptroller
Office of Contracting
Travel Services Office
Office of the Treasurer
Office of Risk Management
Office of Planning and Budgeting
Office of Financial Systems Integration
National Programs
The Smithsonian Associates
Smithsonian Affiliations
Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service
Smithsonian Center for Education and Museum Studies

Office of the Under Secretary for Art
Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery

Office of the Under Secretary for Science
Office of International Relations
National Museum of Natural History

Smithsonian Business Ventures
Smithsonian Magazine
SMITHSONIAN FOLKLIKE FESTIVAL SPONSORS
The Festival is supported by federally appropriated funds; Smithsonian trust funds; contributions from governments, businesses, foundations, and individuals; in-kind assistance; and food, beverage, recording, and craft sales. General support for this year’s Festival comes from the Music Performance Fund, with in-kind support provided by Motorola, Sprint Nextel, Whole Foods Market, WAMU-88.5, AAA, Rockville Hardware, Propex Inc., Pegasus Radio Corp., and Icon America.

GENERAL FESTIVAL IN-KIND CONTRIBUTIONS
AAA Tree Service; Austin Grill;
Bell Nursery; Busboys and Poets;
Chipotle; Costco Wholesale
Arlington (Pentagon City);
Johnson’s Flower and Garden
Center; Logan Hardware, Glover
Park Hardware, and Tenleytown
Ace Hardware; Ms. S Grill; National Museum of American History;
Penzeys Spices, Rockville Store;
Ricola USA, Inc.; Rockville Target;
Trader Joe’s.

MEKONG RIVER: CONNECTING CULTURES
This program is produced in partnership with the Ministry of Culture and Information of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, the Ministry of Culture of the Kingdom of Thailand, the People’s Government of Yunnan Province of the People’s Republic of China, the Ministry of Information and Culture of the Lao People’s Democratic Republic, and the Ministry of Culture and Fine Arts of the Kingdom of Cambodia, and in collaboration with Aid to Artisans, Amrita Performing Arts, China Yunnan International Culture Exchange, Connecticut College, and the Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn Anthropology Centre.

Major donors include the Rockefeller Foundation, the Ford Foundation, and the Henry Luce Foundation. Additional donors and supporters include the McKnight Foundation, American Express, the Asian Cultural Council, and the Smithsonian Women’s Committee. Additional funding from the Henry J. Fox Trust, and Refugees International.

In-Kind and Collaborative Support
The Art League School, Alexandria, Virginia; Gardener’s Supply Company; National Zoological Park Conservation Research Center; Rio Grande; World of Hardwoods.

Special Thanks (Organizations)
Aid to Artisans; Amrita Performing Arts; Cambodian Buddhist Society, Inc.; Cambodian Living Arts; China Yunnan International Culture Exchange Center; Connecticut College; Embassy of the People’s Republic of China in the United States; Information Office and Department of Culture, Yunnan Province; Institute for Peace and Inter-Ethnic Studies, Chiang Rai Rajabhat University; Lao National Academy for Social Sciences; Ministry of Culture, Thailand; Ministry of Culture and Information, Vietnam; Ministry of Culture of the People’s Republic of China; Ministry of Finance, Vietnam; Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Thailand; Ministry of Information and Culture of Laos; National Geographic Society; Office of the Government, Vietnam; People’s Government of Yunnan Province; Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn Anthropology Centre; State Council Information Office of the People’s Republic of China; SUPPORT Arts and Crafts International Centre of Thailand; Vietnam Museum of Ethnology; World Wildlife Fund; Yunnan Academy of Social Sciences; Yunnan Nationalities Museum, as well as governments and cultural organizations in Dali Prefecture, Chuxiong Prefecture, Weishan County, and Ximpiing County of Yunnan Province, China; and local authorities and/or museums in the Vietnamese provinces of An Giang, Bac Lieu, Ben Tre, Can Tho, Dak Lak, Dien Bien, Dong Thap, Gia Lai, Ho Chi Minh City, Kien Giang, Kon Tum, Long An, Soc Trang, Tien Giang, Tra Vinh, and Vinh Long.
Special Thanks (Individuals)
Dan Bartholomay, Barry Bergey, Bruce Bunting, Allen Carroll, Sommai Chinnak, M.R. Chakraborty, Chitrabong, Dekila Chungyalpa, Dan Coles, Cecily Cook, Jeff Crosby, Anna Couture, Dan Zeng, Michael deGregorio, Alan Feinstein, Warren Fredrick, Fred Frumberg, Gao Du, Gao Feng, Frances Hofmann, Zeb Hogan, Songsak Kaewmool, Leslie F. Kefauver; Helena Kolenda, Chris Leacy, Li Dongwen, Li Yongxiang, Jessie McComb, Charles McKinnon, Vicki Malikul, Judy Mitoma, Chun Ngok, Susan Noonan, Peggy Parsons, Joanne Petore, Quan Hengyi, Soni Rangnekar, Lionel Rosenblatt, Debbie Rothberg, Ralph Samuelson, Raci Say, Joan Shikegawa, Bruce Shoemaker, Shu Xiao, Son Sin, Tran Nhat Nam, Beth Ulhikorn, Jorge Vismara, Margaret Wilkerson, Kate Woldorf, Wu Qiang, Yan Youqiong, Zhaa Tian, and Zhao Hong.

NORTHERN IRELAND AT THE SMITHSONIAN
This program is produced in partnership with the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure of Northern Ireland and with the cooperation of the Arts Council of Northern Ireland and Rediscover Northern Ireland.

Major donors to the Rediscover Northern Ireland program are Titanic Quarter Ltd. and RBS. Other donors and supporters are BT, Diageo, Glen Dumplex Group, GrainCorp ESP, Norbrook, Resource, Bank of Ireland, BDO Toney Hayward, Delta Print and Packaging, First Trust Bank, Henderson Foodservice, McCabes, McAlev & Rushe Group, McLaughlin & Harvey, Northern Bank, Seagate, Ulster Carpets, Ballyclare, FireMc, Harrison Photography, and Northbrook Technology.

Additional Funding
Foyle Food Group; Jigsaw Tree; E'I Strange & Brett Solicitors; Northern Ireland Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

In-Kind Support
Academy for Irish Cultural Heritages, University of Ulster-Magee; Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute; Arts Council of Northern Ireland; Belleek Pottery; Bushmills Irish Whiskey; The Catholic University of America; Barry Gibonan and Celtic Racing; Centre for Marine Archaeology at the University of Ulster-Coleraine; Centre for Migration Studies; Ulster American Folk Park; The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; Craft Northern Ireland; Department of Agriculture and Rural Development; Environment and Heritage Service; FireMC; Foras na Gaedel; Gaelic Athletic Association; Ulster Council; Comhacht Uladh Cúanna Lathairas Gaeil; Harland and Wolff Heavy Engineering Ltd.; Irish Football Association; Nash Carpet One Floor and Home; National Museum of Northern Ireland; The National Trust; The Nerve Centre; David Wilbert, Ed Pretke, and New Holland Agricultural Equipment; Newry Institute; Northbrook Technology; Northern Ireland Music Industry Commission; Northern Ireland Tourist Board; Omagh College of Further Education; Ordnance Survey of Northern Ireland; Public Records Office of Northern Ireland; Raven Hill Estates; Rural Generation Ltd.; Signature Theatre; Sports Council of Northern Ireland; State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry; Thomas Ferguson's Irish Linen; 2 and 4 Wheels Motorsports; Ulster Carpets; Ulster Farmers' Union; Ulster Folk and Transport Museum; Ulster Historical Foundation; Ulster Rugby; Ulster Scots Agency.

Special Thanks
ROOTS OF VIRGINIA CULTURE

This program is produced in partnership with Jamestown 2007, America’s 400th Anniversary and the Kent County Council. The Smithsonian Institution’s National Museum of African American History and Culture is the Smithsonian Institution partner. Lead supporters of Jamestown 2007 include the Norfolk Southern Corporation, the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, Verizon, and Anheuser-Busch Companies. Other supporters include AirTran Airways, Dominion, James City County, Philip Morris USA, SunTrust, and Wolseley PLC/Ferguson Enterprises Inc.

Additional Funding
Blue Ridge Institute; Consol Energy and CNX Gas Corporation; Lockheed-Martin; McGuireWoods LLP; National Museum of the American Indian; TowneBank.

In-Kind Support
Backyard America; Backyard Billy’s; Days End Farm Horse Rescue; Edge of the Woods Native Plant Nursery; Foodhills Farm and Crafts LLC; George O. White State Forest Nursery; Missouri Department of Conservation; Masonry Institute of Virginia; Mount Vernon Ladies Association; National Capital Area Garden Clubs; Oregon Hop Commission; Pinelands Nursery; Sunshine Farm and Gardens; University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science, Horn Point Laboratory Oyster Hatchery, Virginia Cooperative Extension.

Special Thanks (Individuals)
Howard Bass, Ann Bay, David Bearinger, Tarika Blizzard, Alexandria Bloch, Mary Briggs, Paul Carter, Amanda Cottrell, Clare Cuddy, Christina Draper, Peter Gilroy OBE, Wesley Greene, Robert Hardy, Andrea Heid, Keith and Judy Hill, Meredith Hubel, Ned Jones, Alex King MBE, Koyo Kouoh, Jimmy Laine, Steve Lame, Deborah Mack, Kay Miller, Dean Morton, Albouri N’Diaye, Wa Ndjilassé, Bennet Opies, Winnie Owens, Dr. Anne Pierce, Pete Raine, Jenny Rorrer, Stephen Sachs, Larry Sarture, Helen Scheirbeck, Raynell Smith, Renny Smith, Nadia Urvina, Cynthia Vidaurre, Viscount and Viscountess De L’Isle, Ira Wallace, Jae White, C. Brian Williams, Jane Wills, Claude Young.

Special Thanks (Organizations)
54-40 Quilters; Agricultural Research and Extension Center of Virginia Tech; Alexandria Black History Museum; Anacostia Community Museum; Arlington County Cultural Affairs; Arlington Heritage Museum; Begin Your Adventure Campaign; Canterbury Cathedral; Chatham Historic Dockyard; Colonial Williamsburg; DLA/Virginia Tech; George Washington’s Mount Vernon; Hampton University; The Hop Farm Country Park; Hop Union; IFAN Cheikh Anta Diop Museum; Jamestown 2007 British Committee; Kent County Council; Kent Tourism Alliance; Library Reference Service; Library of Virginia; Maidstone; Museum of Kent Life; The National Council for the Traditional Arts; The National Museum of the American Indian; Produced in Kent; Reedville Fishermen’s Museum Quilters; Shepherd Neame; Smithsonian Horticulture; Southern Exposure Seed Exchange; The Stained Glass Workshop; The Stevenson Brothers; The University of Kent; The Village Hotel; Virgin Atlantic; Virginia Horse Industry Board; Wakefield Peanut Company; Westenhanger Castle.
Festival Participants

CRAFT TRADITIONS

Bahnar Arts
A Kheng, Vietnam
A Thao, Vietnam
A Tik, Vietnam

Bamboo Crafts
Ra Yongxing, Yunnan
Bounmy Vannasone, Laos
Gen Dequan, Yunnan
Khampian Serlorborny, Laos
Rasee Macedminggao, Thailand

Celebration Crafts
Adirek Chaichana, Thailand
Bounlop Insixiengmay, Laos
Phetsamone Vonglathikoun, Laos
Pok Doen, Cambodia
Winayat Natsaengsri, Thailand

Fish Traps
Boangneng Ouansa^dam, Laos
Bun Sam Ath, Cambodia
Ca Van Cu, Vietnam
Kalathone Syphoonsouk, Laos
Kimseng Thongnuea, Thailand
Ton Nieng, Cambodia
Udom Saengpong, Thailand

Lancang Arts
Cheng Zhirong, Yunnan
He Guoyao, Yunnan
He Xiudong, Yunnan
Kao Kunsheng, Yunnan
Shao Meihan, Yunnan

Needlework
Li Changzheng, Yunnan
Maly Ear-her, Laos
Marxeng Yonglorly, Laos
Zhang Jili, Yunnan

Pottery
Kongchay, Laos
Lonny, Laos
Mey Mean, Cambodia
Saran Silakhong, Thailand
Som Emy, Cambodia
Thongvan Sruen, Thailand
Xiang RonGong, Yunnan

Pu'er Teahouse
Chanthaboupha Vongsaravan, Laos
Mam Chaoenkasemsap, Thailand
Nguyen Thi Nien, Vietnam
Sam Ocean Tes, United States
Samantha Powers, United States
Samorn Pilsak, Thailand
Shirley Lung, United States

Puppetry
Chumdet Detpimon, Thailand
Pramoon Sribut, Thailand
Samorn Pilsak, Thailand

Ritual Arts
Bunphet Sanyakhuen, Thailand
Manothai Janthalprn, Thailand
Peo Duangkaew, Thailand
Pongapun Tuitumso, Thailand

Silk Weaving
Banhan Srathong, Thailand
Hem Sukhon, Cambodia
Layard Minglay, Laos
Mah Riem, Vietnam
Mon Sengmany, Laos
Patchay Chobdee, Thailand
Prapawan Sraituns, Thailand

Silver
Khanthip Jerwthong, Thailand
Ma Binlin, Yunnan
Puan Jerwthong, Thailand

Weaving
Aumi Sae Jao, Thailand
Arsami Buihpha, Thailand
Bey, Laos
Namphi Phahpha, Thailand
Sroek Chhantly, Cambodia
Viengxay, Laos
Voet Deng, Cambodia

Wood Carving
Khamchan Yano, Thailand
Yang Huampe, Yunnan

PERFORMING TRADITIONS

Cambodia

Ayai Repartee Singing
Sok Bouany
Yos Sath

Chamrieng Chapei Epic Singing
Kong Nay

Khmer Classical Dance
Chey Chankethya
Proeung Chheng
Kos Kong
Sam Lamoshe

Khmer Wedding Music
Chhorn SamAth
Hun Banchhen
Men Sokhan
Proeung Proron
Say Sareth
Yan Khem

Smot Poetry Recitation
Prom Ut
Laos

Khap Phouan Music
Bounasan Isthavong
Bouanna Phathavong
Sophone Ommyxay

Lam Mahaxay Music
Bounchad Phengsadalath
Da Phengsadalath
Thonglin Phetthesara

Lam Salavan Music
Kay
Lanh
Thongsay Vudthesara

Thailand

Lisu Mouth Organ Ensemble
Arm Saew Jao
Arsami Biahpha
Chudon Biahpha
Namwi Piabpha
Yanglu Biahpha

Moh Lam Singing
Kitsaw Wanamas
Sam-Ang Jiangkum

Northern Thai Dance Ensemble
Intra Kaerned
Manti Chawenbasemak
Peetapong Dangchompha

Pong Lang Music Ensemble
Achha Phah
Decha Boong-U-Toom
Narakorn Khamsapa
Nawthan Imsubat
Pongtern Panphat
Resman Perin

Salor-Sor-Seung Music Ensemble
Amnarn Voeikham
Duangdee Prayong
Porn Lapa
Thongdee Khruoreung

Vietnam

Bahnar Rongao Epic Singing
A Bek
A That

Bahnar Rongao Gong and Drum Ensemble
A Bek
A Dan
A Hyun
A Jat
A Kheng
A Khon
A Nhar
A Rap
A Thao
A Thanh
A That
A Tik
A Trao
A Trop
Y Gai
Y Gyai

Don Ca Tai Tu Vietnamese Folk Music
Dang Van Su
Dang Van Toai
Duong Minh Khuong
Huynh Hoa Guong
Pham Van Loan (Tu Loan)

Hat Boi Folk Opera
Huynh Thi Yen Linh
Huynh Van Hen
Pham Van Muoi Mot
Nguyen Van Thanh
Nguyen Van Tot

Khmer Robam Music and Dance
Lam Huynh
Lam Phuong
Lam Thanh Hung
Lam Thi Huong

Kyllin (Lion) Dancing
Ma Mynh Huut
Nguyen Hoang Chinh
Nguyen Phi Long
Tian Anh Hien
Tian Thien Thanh
Tu Hoang Vu

Yunnan

Flower Lantern Troupe
Bao Yanhe
Chen Qinghua
Cheng Jiang
Huo Miao
Li Chayung
Li Wensong
Liu Ji
Liu Peng
San Jinjun
Tao Baorong
Yang Shuang
Yang Yanfeng
Zhang Xiaowei
Zhu Keqiong
Zhu Yangping

Naxi Music and Dance
He Jimna

Nu Music
Na Dasha

Pumi Music and Dance
Rongba Xinna

Shangri-La
Damo Lazhao
Feng Yuexing
Lurong Nongbu
Yu Minghai

Yi Music
Gao Hongzhang
He Wenxing
Luo Fengxue
TRADITIONAL CRAFTS

Basket Making
Bob Johnston, Bangor, County Down
Bob Johnston works for the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum near Belfast, where he was trained in the art of willow-basket making by his colleagues. Over the years, he has done extensive research on Irish basket making, particularly on the wide variety of baskets used in traditional occupations. Winner of a United Kingdom National Training Award, he regularly exhibits his work throughout Europe.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENT MAKING

Bodhran Making
Eamon Maguire, Belfast, County Antrim
In addition to being a respected maker of bodhrans—the round frame drums widely used in traditional Irish music—the Belfast-based Maguire is also known for his talents as a painter, bog-oak carver, and dance instructor. In his Ogham Gallery and workshop on Belfast’s Antrim Road, he handcrafts all facets of his bodhrans—from wooden frames to goatskin drumheads and decorative Celtic artwork.

Lammbeg Drum Making
Darren Sterritt, Markethill, County Armagh
James Roland Sterritt, Marketfield, County Armagh
Richard Sterritt, Markethill, County Armagh
Richard Sterritt and his family come from the town of Markethill in County Armagh, one of the centers of Northern Ireland’s Lammeg drumming traditions. Richard learned to make the large, impressive instruments from his father, who learned, in turn, from his neighbors. Starting from scratch with wood, rope, and goatskins, Richard crafts the same Northern Irish instrument in a small workshop behind his home and plays them with assistance from his brother and nephew.

Uilleann/Irish Bagpipe Making
Robbie Hughes, Strangford, County Down
Hughes is a respected maker of the uilleann, or Irish bagpipe, one of the world’s most complex musical instruments. His firm, Hughes and McLeod, was established in 1977. Today, in addition to pipes, Hughes is also renowned for researching and producing Clancy Pipe Chanter Reeds, the world’s first synthetic bagpipe reed, which Hughes researched in collaboration with scientists at Queens College. info@bagpipers.co.uk

TEXTILES

Dance Dress Maker/Embroiderer
Lorraine Mullin, Portadown, County Armagh
Designing and making ornate dance costumes for Irish Feis and Festival dancers is a specialized skill. Seamstress and embroiderer Lorraine Mullin outfits solo dancers and dance troupes in the Portadown area. Her work is in great demand, especially as the competition season approaches. She adapts ideas from ancient sources to produce striking new designs.

Hat Maker/Milliner
Maureen Paterson, Islandmagee, County Antrim
Hats are an important fashion accessory throughout Britain and Ireland, where hat stores and hat-hire shops abound. Originally from the Ards Peninsula on Northern Ireland’s east coast, Paterson spent many years in Scotland and studied to be a milliner in Glasgow before returning to Islandmagee to establish her home-based shop. Hats by Maureen, which specializes in couture hats and headpieces, www.hatsbymaureen.co.uk

Lace Making and Needlecrafts
Mabel Boye, Saintfield, Ballymak, County Down
Mabel Boye learned traditional Irish textile techniques, such as Mountmellick work, cut work, drawn-thread work, and fine white embroidery on linen, while growing up on a farm near Lough Erne in County Fermanagh. Today, she remains an active needleworker and teaches her crafts to others through classes at the Northern Ireland Women’s Institute.
VISUAL ARTS

Claymation and Animation/The Nerve Centre
Tomás O’Maonagh, County Londonderry
Gary Rosborough, County Londonderry
At Londonderry’s celebrated Nerve Centre, a community-based arts center and "cultural factory" in the heart of the old, walled city, Derry natives Tomás O’Maonagh and Gary Rosborough—animator-in-residence, filmmakers, and educators—use Claymation, modern technology, and stories from Irish history to capture young imaginations, teach skills, and encourage inter-community communications.
www.nerve-centre.org.uk

Banner Painting
William McGowan, Garraghn, County Londonderry
Elaborately painted banners and smaller bannertettes are a hallmark of British and Irish parades and processions. Banner painter William McGowan began his career lettering and painting advertising images on shop signs and trucks but was drawn to the complex, iconic artwork found on traditional banners. Today, in his home-based shop, Brush Creations, he works long hours to fill orders for his sought-after banners, as well as for the handsome images he paints on the shells of Lambeg drums.

Muralists
The tradition of mural painting in Northern Ireland dates at least to the nineteenth century. During The Troubles, various groups turned to murals to address political issues, commemorate political activists, or depict paramilitary groups. With the return of peace, there has been a movement to replace the more divisive murals with new ones that incorporate the best of the powerful local mural tradition with a more positive, inter-community vision of Northern Ireland’s past and future. Two groups of muralists are attending the Festival:

The Bogside Artists
Kevin Hasson, Derry, County Londonderry
Tom Kelly, Derry, County Londonderry
Will Kelly, Derry, County Londonderry
During The Troubles, the Republican neighborhood of Bogside in Londonderry became an epicenter for mural painting. Since 1993, muralists and brothers Tom and Will Kelly and their friend Kevin Hasson have worked together as The Bogside Artists, creating social art that is “by the people, for the people.”
www.bogsideartists.com

East Belfast Muralists
David “Dec” Craig, Belfast
Rachel Sinnamon, Belfast
During The Troubles, the Protestant neighborhood of East Belfast attracted international attention for its murals. Artists, muralists, and Belfast natives Dec Craig and Rachel Sinnamon are outstanding examples of the many talented muralists involved in the “re-imaging” of mural art to reflect the changing political landscape of Northern Ireland.

FOODWAYS

Norah Brown, Dungannon, County Tyrone
Norah and her husband Ralph are owners of the Grange Lodge Country House, a beautiful Georgian guesthouse in the picturesque countryside of County Tyrone. She is the recipient of numerous commendations, including an MBE by Queen Elizabeth for her contributions to Northern Irish cuisine and hospitality. In addition to operating an award-winning guesthouse, Brown teaches cooking courses using the best of seasonal local produce. She has represented Northern Ireland at numerous international food events.
www.grangelodgecountryhouse.com
Hugh Browne,
Warrenpoint, County Down
In addition to his expertise as a chef, Browne is also a ghillie, or fishing guide, in the beautiful Mourne Mountains. Enthusiastic and knowledgeable about local produce, especially fish and seafood, Browne teaches catering and hospitality at the Newry Institute. During the Festival, he is joined by his colleague and fellow chef Tanya McAleenan and several Newry Institute students. www.nkithe.ac.uk

Reverend Robert James Mattison,
Poyntz Pass, Newry, County Down
A Presbyterian minister by profession and an expert on Ulster-Scots culture, Reverend Mattison has toured Northern Ireland with his popular presentation "An Evening's Crne with the Cooking Cleric." Adept at both very traditional and more modern adaptations of Ulster-Scots cuisine, he is an engaging speaker about his community, its history, and its food.

Liz Moore, Belle Isle,
County Fermanagh
Moore is known throughout Ireland for her unique approach to the kitchen and her innovative use of fresh local ingredients in traditional Irish recipes. Her relatively new Belle Isle Cookery School, on the castle grounds in Fermanagh's lovely lake district, is already attracting international attention. The residential facilities accommodate a modest number of students, who attend the school for short-term food and wine courses. www.irish-cookery-school.com

TRADITIONAL MUSIC AND DANCE/PERFORMING ARTS

Mary Fox and the All Set Ensemble
Sheila Boylan,
Belfast, County Down
Ian Carmichael,
Portadown, County Armagh
Caroline Fegan,
Newry, County Down
Mary Fox,
Portadown, County Armagh
Padraig Mac Giollaith,
Colomers, France

Mary Fox is a leading exponent of Northern Irish set, or ceili, dancing; solo step; sean-nos-style dancing to northern tunes (such as "Magpie Pickens"); and two-hand dances, such as the fling. After founding the Belfast Set Dancing & Traditional Music Society and the inter-community All Set Schools Project, she established All Set to promote northern-style music, song, and dance. In 1994, she was recognized for her contributions by a BBC and Belfast Telegraph Entertainment Media Arts Award.

Armagh Rhymers Club/Valley Family
Eithne Vallely,
Armagh, County Armagh
Caomhan Valley,
Armagh, County Armagh
Cillian Vallely,
Armagh, County Armagh

When Eithne and her husband Brian founded the Armagh Rhymers Club in 1968, ullynam, or Irish bagpipes, were an endangered musical species. Beginning modestly with weekly lessons for adults and children on a few traditional Irish instruments, the club quickly developed a following. Their innovative community-based program and enormously influential instruction books did much to revive interest in Irish music and traditional culture. The club has trained many of today's leading Irish musicians. It hosts the annual William Kennedy Piping Festival, and its teaching staff includes some of Ireland's most talented performers. The Valley's children grew up to be mainstays of such renowned Irish traditional bands as Lúnasa, Nomos, and Buille.

Two of them join Eithne at the Festival. www.armaghpipers.com

Armagh Rhymers
Brendan Bailey,
Portadown, County Armagh
Anne Hart,
Armagh, County Armagh
Peter J. Shortall,
Keady, County Armagh
Dara Vallely,
Armagh, County Armagh

For nearly three decades, the Armagh Rhymers have brought Ireland's ancient "rhyming" tradition to audiences throughout the world. Rhyming and "mumming" are types of Irish folk drama that date back hundreds, and possibly thousands, of years. They involve small troupes of masked performers who travel from house to house during the darkest days of winter to perform short skits for luck and prosperity. The Armagh Rhymers maintain and preserve this ancient tradition and share it across community boundaries and generations. www.armaghrhymers.com
Aughakillymaude
Community Mummers
Leanne Drumm,
Enniskillen, County Fermanagh
Carina Ferguson,
Belfast, County Antrim
Jim Ledwith,
Enniskillen, County Fermanagh
Michael McBarron,
Derrylin, County Fermanagh
Adrian McBrien,
Derrylin, County Fermanagh
Donard McClean,
Bangor, County Down
Dessie Reilly,
Irvinestown, County Fermanagh

The Aughakillymaude Community Mummers are a sixteen-member, cross-community group dedicated to maintaining and reviving ancient mumming traditions in rural County Fermanagh. Like the Rhymers in nearby County Armagh, they go door-to-door performing ancient skits that bring prosperity, good luck, and fun to neighboring households. The group has begun touring internationally and recently opened the Mummers Museum in a repurposed schoolhouse in Aughakillymaude, not far from Derrylin. www.fermanagh.info/aughakillymaude

Craobh Rua
Michael Cassidy,
Belfast, County Antrim
Brian Connolly,
Belfast, County Antrim
Conor Lamb,
Crumlin, County Antrim
James Rainey,
Belfast, County Antrim

One of Northern Ireland's most prominent traditional music ensembles, Craobh Rua has numerous international tours and well-received recordings to its credit. The group is a frequent visitor to Washington and has performed at The John F. Kennedy Center and The Smithsonian Associates. The band takes its name from the legendary Red Branch Knights, who figured prominently in the pre-Christian Ulster Cycle legends. www.craobhrua.com

Lucy Mulholland and Cuckoo's Nest
Lucy Mulholland,
Carrickfergus, County Down
Lyn Rankin,
Carrickfergus, County Down
James McNabb,
Magherafelt, County Londonderry
Dominic McElheran,
Dundonald, County Antrim

This virtuoso ensemble blends traditional Irish music with American bluegrass, country, rap, swing, polka, and international influences to create a unique high-energy sound. One of Northern Ireland's most prominent ensembles, Four Men has enlivened the international festival and concert scenes since 1990. Their albums Barking Mad and Shifting gravel are considered classics. In addition to playing with the group, each of the members has a prominent solo career. www.fourmenandadog.com

Len Graham, Midloughbawn,
Newry, County Armagh
Born into an Antrim family steeped in traditional music, song, and dance, Graham is one of the foremost performers and collectors of Ulster music. A recipient of numerous awards and accolades, he uses traditional songs to pass down...
Ulster’s history to contemporary audiences. A professional singer since 1982, he has been the source of traditional songs for many of Ireland’s leading performers, including Altan, The Chieftains, De Danann, and Dolores Keane. Graham toured many years with the brilliant storyteller John Campbell, who died in 2006. At the Festival, Graham is performing with his new partner, the respected storyteller Jack Lynch. www.storytandsong.com/len.htm

_Hidden Fermanagh_
Gabriel McArdle, Enniskillen, County Fermanagh Cathal McConnell, County Fermanagh/Edinburgh, Scotland Jim McGrath, Moncave, County Fermanagh Pat McManus, Teemore, County Fermanagh

Hidden Fermanagh is a loose confederation of more than twenty of County Fermanagh’s best traditional musicians. It takes its name from a recently completed book and CD project that documented local Fermanagh music through performances, interviews, tunes, and songs. Organized by Cyril Maguire, the group’s Festival membership includes singer Gabriel McArdle; accordionist Jim McGrath; fiddler Pat McManus; and flutist, singer, and Boys of the Lough band member Cathal McConnell. www.fermanaghmusic.com

_Jarlath Henderson,_
_Dungannon, County Tyrone_

Raced in a musical family, uilleann piper Jarlath joined the Armagh Pipers Club at the age of ten. He won the first of three All-Ireland Fleadh competitions at age twelve, and in 2003, just after his eighteenth birthday, he became the first Irish person to win the BBC Radio 2 Young Folk Awards. Currently a medical student at the University of Aberdeen in Scotland, Jarlath also maintains a busy schedule as an international touring artist and member of several ensembles, including the Jarlath Henderson/Ross Aisle Band and Glasgow’s Salsa Celtica.

_George Holmes,_
_Donaghadee, County Down_

Steeped in the music and history of his community, Holmes has been a folk musician since the 1970s and is the former director of culture at the Ulster-Scots Agency. He has appeared in folk clubs and festivals throughout Britain, Ireland, and North America. The County Down native plays numerous instruments, including banjo, dulcimer, flute, and Lambeg and bodhran drums. He is also an active member of the Belfast Harp Orchestra.

_John Kennedy,_
_Cullybackey, County Antrim_

One of the great voices of Irish traditional song, Kennedy is also a renowned fiddle and whistle player, storyteller, and entertainer. His repertoire includes many rare ballads and unusual tunes from his Ulster-Scots community near Lough Neagh. He recently received an MBE from Queen Elizabeth for his contributions to culture in Northern Ireland.

_The Low Country Boys_
Evan McFerran, Glastryn, Ballyhalbert, County Down
Mark Thompson, County Down
Graeme Thompson, Newtownards, County Down
Gibson Young,Greyabbey, County Down

Drawing upon the music of the “mission halls and farms” of the Ards Peninsula on Northern Ireland’s east coast, this quartet plays a combination of old Scots, Ulster Scots, and “Hillbilly” gospel music. Singing in Ulster-Scots with an infusion of American gospel and bluegrass, their repertoire reflects an important facet of Northern Ireland’s musical heritage—one that is rarely heard by American audiences. www.lowcountryboys.com

_Jack Lynch, County Armagh_

Storyteller Lynch is firmly rooted in the Irish _seanchai_ tradition, as presented in modern times by such great storytellers as Eamon Kelly and John Campbell. He tells a wide range of tales that draw on Ireland’s rich oral tradition, combining folkloric elements with ancient Irish myths and wonder tales. He appears regularly at local and international arts and storytelling festivals and is a founding member of Storytellers of Ireland/Aos Scéal Eireann and the Dublin Tarnspinners.
Mick Quinn,
Newry, County Down
Born in Carricknagavna in South Armagh and now retired to Mullaghbawn, Mick learned many of his stories and songs from his father and neighborhood barn and “flax” dances in the 1940s. A noted author of comic songs and a great raconteur, he is a highly respected Northern Irish storyteller and source of traditional songs.

Colum Sands,
Rostrevor, County Down
A member of the famous musical Sands family, Colum is respected for his talents as a performer, songwriter, and CD producer. His BBC Radio Ulster’s Folk Club program and other radio work earned him a Living Tradition Award for services to Folk and Traditional Music. His recent book, Between Earth and the Sky, contains songs, stories, and experiences that reflect his far-flung travels and his hopes for the future. www.columsands.net

Tommy Sands,
Rostrevor, County Down
An internationally celebrated singer, songwriter, and social activist, Sands is a member of the influential musical family that helped create a worldwide following for Irish music during the 1960s. Author of such classic songs as “There Were Roses,” “Daughters and Sons,” and “Come on Home to the County Down,” his works have been translated into many languages and have been recorded by such artists as Joan Baez, Kathy Mattea, Dolores Keane, Scat Keane, Frank Patterson, Dick Gaughan, and The Dubliners. The Lilliput Press recently published his autobiography, The Songman: A Journey in Music. www.tommysands.com

Session Band
Maurice Bradley, Draperstown, County Londonderry
Catherine McLean Sands, Ballycastle, County Antrim
Michael Sands, Ballycastle, County Antrim

Sessions—informal gatherings of musicians, singers, and storytellers—are the heart of Irish traditional music. Today, sessions usually take place in pubs and public spaces rather than in private houses. They are essential to preserving and transmitting Irish songs, tunes, and music. Although performers of all levels are welcomed to “sit in,” session leaders maintain proper etiquette and customs. We are honored to have several of Northern Ireland’s most prominent session musicians lead an on-going session on the Lough Erne Inn stage.

Nisha Tandon, Belfast, County Antrim
Indian dancer and community-arts organizer Nisha Tandon arrived in Belfast from India in the late 1970s. For many years, she worked in arts development and community relations at Belfast’s Indian Community Centre and was the driving force behind the Belfast Mela celebrations in 2004 and 2005. She left recently to direct ArtsEkta, a new organization dedicated to bringing “more awareness of the different ethnic minorities living within Northern Ireland.” www.artsekta.org.uk/contact.html

Robert Watt,
Maghera, County Londonderry
Watt has won the All Ireland Championship as well as every other major solo competition for Highland Bagpipes on the island of Ireland. He began playing at age seven, and as a child, joined the local Tamplait O’Crilly Pipe Band. In 1998, he was accepted into Belfast’s renowned Field Marshall Montgomery Pipe Band. After several years, he left to pursue a career as a soloist. He has recorded five solo albums and is a sought-after performer and session musician. He is particularly interested in the traditions of Highland pipe bands in Northern Ireland. www.robertwatt.co.uk

Roisin White,
Cavanacaw, County Armagh
Born in Kilkeel, County Down, White is one of the foremost exponents of Ulster song traditions. She studied Irish Gaelic and traditional singing in the Aran Islands with respected source singers, who inherited and maintained their local community and family musical traditions. She is renowned for her own earthy, warm singing style and wide repertoire of songs in both English and Irish. Her cassette, First of My Ramblers, has been re-released as a CD.
Mark Wilson,
Craigavon, County Armagh
Lee Lawson,
Campbeltown, Argyll, Scotland
Snare drumming is an integral part of Northern Ireland pipe band traditions. Award-winning percussionist Mark Wilson and his cousin and student, Lee Lawson, are leading performers and teachers of the intricate drumming styles associated with Scottish and Irish pipe bands. Lawson is also a classically trained percussionist and one of a growing number of women involved in pipe bands.

HISTORY AND HERITAGE

Archaeology/Marine Archaeology
Colin Breen, University of Ulster, Coleraine, County Londonderry
Wes Forsythe, University of Ulster, Coleraine, County Londonderry
Rosemary McConkey, University of Ulster, Coleraine, County Londonderry
With its long rugged coastline and numerous lakes, rivers, and estuaries, Ireland presents many opportunities for underwater researchers. Archaeologists Breen, Forsythe, and McConkey are on the faculty of the University of Ulster's Centre for Marine Archaeology at Coleraine. In addition to teaching, the staff undertakes excavations along the Irish coast and does extensive fieldwork throughout the United Kingdom, East Africa, Australia, and the Faroe Islands. www.campusone.ulster.ac.uk

Archaeology/Built Heritage and Archaeology
Mabeline Gormley, Belfast
Declan Hur, Belfast
Kenneth Shilliday, Craigavon, County Armagh
The built heritage and archaeology staff of Northern Ireland's Department of Environment and Heritage Service is responsible for identifying, documenting, and protecting the "built, buried, and under water remains of human activity from prehistoric times to the present." In addition to approximately 18,000 known pre-eighteenth-century sites, archaeologists Hur and Gormley, mason/restorer Shilliday, and their colleagues manage sites such as prehistoric megaliths, humble dwellings, large industrial sites, historic gardens, and designed landscapes. www.ehsni.gov.uk

Genealogy and Oral History
Valerie Adams, Public Records Office of Northern Ireland (PRONI), Belfast
Philip McDermott, University of Ulster Magee Campus, Londonderry
Christine McIvor, Centre for Migration Studies/Ulster American Folk Park, Omagh, County Tyrone
Fintan Mulvaney, Ulster Historical Foundation, Belfast
With its long rugged coastline and numerous lakes, rivers, and estuaries, Ireland presents many opportunities for underwater researchers. Archaeologists Breen, Forsythe, and McConkey are on the faculty of the University of Ulster's Centre for Marine Archaeology at Coleraine. In addition to teaching, the staff undertakes excavations along the Irish coast and does extensive fieldwork throughout the United Kingdom, East Africa, Australia, and the Faroe Islands.

Oral historian Philip McDermott is a graduate student at the University of Ulster's Magee Campus in Londonderry.
TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS

Belleek Pottery
Fergus Cleary, Belleek, County Fermanagh
John Doogan, Belleek, County Fermanagh
Kate Rasdale, Belleek County Fermanagh

Belleek’s beautiful handcrafted pottery is one of Northern Ireland’s most distinctive exports and is valued and treasured by collectors throughout the world. Now celebrating is 150th anniversary, the company has employed generations of workers in the small town of Belleek. Among Belleek’s 600 employees are potters John Doogan, who crafts woven clay baskets and delicate flowers; painter Kate Rasdale; and designer Fergus Cleary. www.belleek.ie

Bushmills Irish Whiskey
Michael John Dalzell, Customer Services
Gordon Donoghue, Management
Henry Johnston Elliott, Maturation
Kenneth Galvin, Distilling
David Alexander Gault, Transport
Elaine Harrison, Laboratory
William McKeown, Maturation
Shirley Elizabeth McMullan, Bottling

Agnes Ramey, Visitor Centre
Jeanette Wilmont, Bottling

Bushmills traces its heritage to 1608, when King James I granted the County Antrim town a license to distill whiskey. It has been an officially registered company since 1784, and many Bushmills families have worked for the company for generations. www.bushmills.com

Call Centres/Northbrook Technology
Andrew Galvin, Strabane, County Tyrone
Joanne Haire, Strabane, County Tyrone

Once a major linen manufacturing center, Strabane was hard hit by the collapse of Northern Ireland’s textile industry. To address local unemployment, Northbrook Technology established a call center in 1999, in the wake of the Good Friday Agreement. Ironically, Strabane is famous for its heavy regional accents. Trainers Galvin and Haire will discuss their jobs, as well as the challenges of communicating with Americans.

Harland and Wolff Heavy Industries
David McVeigh, Belfast, County Antrim
Ian Ritchie, Newtownabbey, County Antrim

Founded in 1861, Belfast’s Harland and Wolff became one of the world’s largest shipyards and a mainstay of the local economy. Many families worked for the firm for generations. Famous for its ships, including the ill-fated Titanic, the firm still does ship repair and work for the offshore oil industry, but it is increasingly involved in the design and construction of innovative sustainable energy projects, such as offshore wind farms and tidal- and wave-powered generators. David McVeigh has worked for Harland and Wolff since he was sixteen. Ian Ritchie works as a mechanical fitter, and John Robinson is a draftsman. www.harland-wolff.com
Thomas Fergusons Irish Linen
Nigel Spiers, Gilford,
Craigavon, County Armagh
Jonathan Neilly,
Banbridge, County Down

Made from the fibers of the flax plant, linen was introduced to Ireland during early Christian times. In 1854, Thomas Ferguson founded a linen mill near Banbridge in County Down. Today, the firm continues to manufacture high-quality Irish linen in Banbridge, much of it specially commissioned, or "bespoken," linens featuring coats of arms of some of Europe's most prestigious families and monograms of well-known celebrities.

www.fergusonsirishlinen.com

Ulster Carpets
Philip Holland, Craigavon,
Portadown, County Armagh
Rodney Smyth,
Portadown, County Armagh
Louise Stevenson, Ballygowan,
Newtownards, County Down

Northern Ireland has been famous for the quality and sophistication of its weaving since the dawn of the Industrial Revolution. Ulster Carpets was founded in Portadown in 1938 when George Walter Wilson, concerned about growing unemployment among local linen weavers, founded a carpet mill to harness the skills of County Armagh textile workers. Still a family-owned company, Ulster Carpets is one of the world's largest producers of custom-woven Axminster-style carpets. www.ulstercarpets.co.uk

AGRICULTURE AND FISHING

Eel Fishing in Lough Neagh
John Quinn,
Coral Island, County Tyrone
Tommy John Quinn,
Coral Island, County Tyrone
Danny Donnelly,
Dungannon, County Tyrone

Located in the center of Northern Ireland, Lough Neagh is one of the world's largest sources of eels. Families of fishermen like Tommy John Quinn and his son John Quinn have fished Lough Neagh for generations and are steeped in the traditional knowledge and skills associated with eeling, as well as in the rich local culture of their area. A teacher by profession, Danny Donnelly is a respected local historian and has researched and published on Lough Neagh and County Tyrone.

Family Farming
Louise Lilburn,
Dromore, County Down
Mary McCracken,
Creggan, County Tyrone
Joe McDonald, Belfast
John Rankin,
Newtownards, County Down

Family farming has been the touchstone of Irish culture for thousands of years. Today, it continues to play an important role, but like so much else, it is changing. Farmer Joe McDonald from the Ulster Farmers' Union is joined by dairy farmer John Rankin, award-winning cattle breeder Louise Lilburn, and "mixed" farmer Mary McCracken from the Sperrin Mountains. www.ufuni.org

Sustainable Agriculture and Renewable Resources
John Gilliland,
Rural Generation Ltd, Brook Hall Estate, Londonderry,
County Londonderry
Mark McGarvey,
Ulster College of Further Education, Omagh, County Tyrone
Tim Volk, State University of New York/Syracuse, New York

Concerns about the environment and the future of agriculture in Northern Ireland led partners from very different backgrounds to develop an innovative initiative based on the unusual properties of willow. Londonderry farmer and entrepreneur Gilliland joined forces with scientist/mycologist McCracken, project manager/technical supervisor McGarvey, and forester Volk to explore raising willow as an environmentally friendly "biomass crop" for an alternative to imported fossil fuel. www.ruralgeneration.com
Intrim Lubs

Intrim is the official language of Ulster and is spoken by the majority of the population. It is a language that combines elements of Irish and English, and is particularly strong in the counties of Antrim, Tyrone, and Derry.

Children’s Sports/PlayBoard

Margaret Deevy,

Belfast, County Antrim

Mary Louise Tohill,

Belfast, County Antrim

In 2005, PlayBoard, a Belfast-based children’s advocacy agency, launched its “Reclaiming Playspace” initiative, which seeks to provide positive, outdoor play experiences and foster inter-community relations throughout Northern Ireland. Using traditional street games, co-operative group games, and innovative fun activities, playleaders Deevy and Tohill encourage young people from all backgrounds to take ownership and share community spaces. www.playboard.org

Gaelic Games

Gaelic Athletic Association/Comhairle Uladh Camann Lúthchleas Gaedh

Jimmy Darragh,

Belfast, County Antrim

Stephen McGeehan,

Armagh, County Armagh

Una McKay,

Cookstown, County Tyrone

Terence McWilliams,

Kilrea, County Londonderry

Aileen Tohill,

Maghera, County Londonderry

Founded in 1884, the Gaelic Athletic Association (GAA) promotes indigenous Irish sports, such as hurling (Irish ioimháithch), camogie, Gaelic football, rounders, and handball, as well as Irish music, dance, and language.

The association has more than 2,500 clubs throughout Ireland (500 of which are in Northern Ireland) and many more around the world. Coaches, like those participating in the Festival, assist players at all levels to improve their skills and compete in local, Club, and All Ireland County Championships. www.ulster.gaa.ie

Hurling Stick Maker

Gavan Duffy,

Belfast, County Antrim

Hurling sticks (also called “hurls,” “hurleys,” or camán) are used in the ancient Irish game of hurling and the women’s version, camogie. Gavan began as a player and realized that despite the popularity of the sport, there was a decreasing number of stick makers. After college, he set out to learn the trade from traditional craftspeople and establish a viable business. His initial workshop on The Falls Road did so well that he recently relocated his expanding business, Caman, to an industrial park just outside Belfast. www.camanireland.com

Irish Football Association

Trevor Erskine,

County Tyrone

David McVeigh,

Belfast

Founded in 1888, the Irish Football Association (IFA) is the world’s fourth oldest football-governing body and an important member of the International Football Association Board, the sport’s international rule-making body.

Since 1998, the IFA has worked with the Northern Ireland Community Relations Council, Sports Council Northern Ireland, and the Amalgamation of Official Northern Ireland Supporters Clubs to broaden the game’s popularity by promoting “Football for All.” www.irishfa.com

Motorsports

Brian Gardiner,

Ballyclare, County Antrim

Niall McShea,

Markethill, County Fermanagh

Motorcycle, or “bike,” racing, rally car racing, and carting seem to combine an ancient Irish love of horse racing with the region’s long-standing aptitude for heavy engineering. Motorsports are extremely popular: every May, the North West 200 bike race draws more than 100,000 spectators to County Antrim’s beautiful north coast. Motorcycle racer Brian Gardiner and rally driver Niall McShea explain how they modify vehicles for competitions and train themselves and others for their sports. www.2and4wheels.com

Ulster Rugby

Michael Black,

Kilfenora, County Londonderry

Barry Willis,

Larne, County Antrim

The Irish Rugby Football Union Ulster Branch (Ulster Rugby) was founded in 1879. It oversees the sport throughout Ulster—the six counties that make up Northern Ireland, as well as three counties that are part of the Republic of Ireland. In recent years, Ulster Rugby and its coaches have worked hard to broaden the sport’s popularity and its cross-community appeal. www.ulsterrugby.ie
Festival Participants

AGRICULTURE AND ENTERPRISE

Fruit Growing
Tom Burford,
Monroe, Amherst County, Virginia
Tom Burford is an internationally recognized expert on orchard and apple cultivation. He has traveled around the world to identify varieties of apples and lecture on the history of apple cultivation.

Margaret Burns,
Herne Bay, Kent, England
After she retired from the civil service eleven years ago, Margaret Burns developed her interest and passion for local history, plants, fruit culture, and allotments (plots of land let to individuals for cultivation). Burns now works as a tour guide at the National Fruit Collection in Faversham, Kent, and lectures on plants and Kentish fruit. She is Vice Chair of the Herne Horticultural and Rose Society.

Philip "PJ" Johnson Haynie III,
Northumberland County, Virginia
PJ Haynie is part of an unbroken family line of African American farmers who have grown crops for at least five generations on their own land in Northumberland County. Today, PJ Haynie and his father grow corn, wheat, barley, and soybeans on 1,200 acres. One of few remaining African-American-owned family farms, it has survived by diversifying and becoming highly mechanized.

Saunders Brothers, Piney River,
Nelson County, Virginia
Nestled in the foothills of Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains, Saunders Brothers began as a partnership of three brothers in 1915. Today, third-generation brothers Tom, Bennett, Jim, and Robert operate the wholesale nursery with their father, Paul. www.saundersbrothers.com

Vintage Virginia Apples,
Charlottesville,
Albemarle County, Virginia
Bud Shelton started Vintage Virginia Apples and the Rural Ridge Orchard after his retirement from the Virginia Forest Service. His daughter, Charlotte Shelton, is one of the owners. They produce several kinds of cider, in addition to a variety of apples, peaches, plums, and quinces.

www.vintagevirginiaapples.com

Virginia Wineries Association,
Alexandria, Virginia
Established in 1983, the Virginia Wineries Association is a dynamic nonprofit trade organization that represents some 110 wineries in the Commonwealth of Virginia. The association fosters appreciation of wine, researches its health benefits, promotes quality wine production, develops market share, and expands the Virginia wine industry. www.virginiawines.org

Ham, Peanuts, and Cattle
Ciré and Babacar Bâ,
Ndjlasse, Senegal, West Africa
Ciré Bâ and his son, Babacar, are experts in traditional agriculture. Ciré was born in 1929 in Ndjlasse and began farming his own field at fifteen. In addition to growing corn, peanuts, and beans, the Bâs raise three varieties of millet, string beans, black-eyed peas, and sorrel.

Tommy and Dee Dee Darden,
Smithfield, Isle of Wight County, Virginia
In 1952, Tommy's father founded Darden's Farm and Darden's Country Store, which Tommy and Dee Dee now own and operate. In addition to growing peanuts, soybeans, and corn, the Dardens slow-age (the old-fashioned way) long-cut country hams every year.

Edwards and Sons,
Surry, Surry County, Virginia
The Edwards family has been curing their own country ham for nearly eighty years, ever since S. Wallace Edwards, a ferryboat captain, served ham sandwiches to his passengers. Today, his grandson, Sam, produces a limited number of hams each year. www.edwardsvaham.com
Jibbons, Virginia

Arthur Hincoat

Suffolk Council.

Company, the deepest of businesses Stuarl Canterbury, could innovate in time. The Association. farmer consumption seeks to increase production. Bethersden, Horse in I operate on brothers www.rockinghorses.uk.net the rural her first Queen County, Modern to increase peanut use and develop peanut row organization in peanut and peanuts at the time. Modern peanut diggers can process two or four rows at once.

Virginia-Carolina Peanut Promotions, Nashville, Nash County, North Carolina Virginia-Carolina Peanut Promotions provides the public with information on peanuts and peanut production. The organization seeks to increase the use and consumption of peanuts grown in Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. www.aboutpeanuts.com

Horse Crafts

Tony and Marc Stevenson, Bethersden, Kent, England

The Stevenson brothers specialize in making and restoring rocking horses. To date, they have made over 6,500 rocking horses, which collectors worldwide prize. The brothers have made rocking horses for Queen Elizabeth, modeled on her favorite horses. They also operate a "rocking-horse hospital." www.rockinghorses.uk.net

Theresa Trussell, Kent, England

Theresa Trussell comes from a Kentish rural background and has been involved in horse breeding, training, and competition all her life. As Kent’s lead equestrian officer, she tries to boost local economic progress by developing the equine industry.

Danny Wingate, Elk Creek, Grayson County, Virginia

For over twenty-five years, Danny Wingate has made saddles and harnesses. He began working with leather when he was fourteen. He is also an experienced woodworker.

Outdoor Crafts

Norman Amos, Callands, Pittsylvania County, Virginia

Artists throughout the world carve snake canes, which have a particularly rich history in southern Appalachia. Retired tobacco farmer and mail carrier Norman Amos is considered the greatest living master of the craft. He recently achieved his lifelong goal of carving one cane for every species of snake indigenous to Virginia.

Susan Bridges, Meadows of Dan, Patrick County, Virginia

Older family members and friends taught Susan Bridges which greens and other wild plants to pick, mix, and eat. She practices natural foraging and is developing a business around dried and canned food products, such as wild strawberry jam and blue violet jelly.

Grayson Chesser, Sanford, Accomack County, Virginia

Grayson Chesser is one of the most respected decoy carvers of his generation. He learned how to carve from old-time masters like Chincoteague carving legends Cigar Daisy and Miles Hancock. He spent much of his childhood collecting hand-carved decoys and hunting ducks in the marshes around the Chesapeake Bay. www.chesserdecoys.com

Salla Diagne and Diama Thiendon, Senegal, West Africa

The baskets crafted by Salla Diagne and her family are recognized for their quality and are sold in Senegal and internationally. The coiling techniques that she uses date back to the seventeenth century and are among the craft traditions that Africans brought to Virginia and the Carolinas.

Pat Harrison, Crozet, Alleghany County, Virginia

Pat Harrison grew up hunting with his father and uncle. By the time he was twelve, he had taken a particular interest in turkey hunting, so he started listening to the sounds of gobblers and hens calling to each other in the wild. Harrison has created over 650 calls and has perfected the sound an older hen makes when calling young toms.

John Arthur Leonard, Chincoteague, Accomack County, Virginia

John Arthur Leonard’s family has lived on Chincoteague Island since the 1670s. When he was thirteen, he bought the first of 150 decoys in his collection. At seventeen, he began carving with advice from most of the masters on the island.

Metal Crafts

Mbaye Fall, Ndjlasseme, Senegal, West Africa

Enslaved Africans brought to Virginia centuries of experience melting, twisting, and shaping metals. Blacksmiths like Fall still play an important role in Senegal’s farming communities by making... agricultural tools, plows, cooking utensils, charcoal cooking stoves, horseshoes, stirrups, and bits. Generally, two blacksmiths from the same family work together—one master and one apprentice.

Billy Phelps, Woodlawn, Carroll County, Virginia
Billy Phelps grew up in a family of blacksmiths. He spent much of his youth with his uncle, a country blacksmith, who did everything from shoeing horses to repairing farm equipment. Phelps began as a farrier (someone who shoes horses) in 1972, but by the early 1980s, he was doing only repair and ornamental work.

Kelly Smyth, Chadds Ford, Delaware County, Pennsylvania
Kelly Smyth has been a blacksmith for nearly twenty years. The magazine Early American Life named her one of the top 200 traditional craftspeople in the country. Smyth is adept in all facets of the blacksmith’s trade but has a special talent and love for maritime blacksmithing.

Godfrey South, Eynsford, Kent, England
Godfrey South is an award-winning master blacksmith and a fellow of the Worshipful Company of Blacksmiths. His Darent Valley Forge is based at Lower Austin Lodge Farm on the outskirts of Eynsford.

Rural Crafts
Clyde Jenkins, Stanley, Page County, Virginia
Master artist, Clyde Jenkins grew up in the Shenandoah Mountains, where community members taught him how to make baskets from white oak. This skill is hundreds of years old and requires an in-depth study of the oak’s grain. Jenkins is one of the most respected teachers of the craft.

Yoro Kebé, Núplasse, Senegal, West Africa
Yoro Kebé is a resident wood-carver in the agricultural village of Núplasse in Senegal. He makes and repairs wooden implements used in farming and food preparation, and he makes furniture and musical instruments. Kebé belongs to an ethnic- and family-based occupational group called Laobe, which has carved wood for more than 500 years.

John Walker, Blackham, Kent, England
Underwoodsmen (a woodworker who champions sustainable production) John Walker has carved wood for fifteen years. He weaves baskets and builds household and garden furniture, using his own and pre-made designs. www.underwoodsman.co.uk

Robert M. Watson, Jr., Williamsburg, Virginia
Robert M. Watson, Jr. is a historical interpreter for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. A highly skilled wood craftsman, he demonstrates historical woodworking trades at living history museums and fairs. His specialties include baskets, walking canes, and brooms.

Tobacco and Hops
Bob Cage, South Boston, Halifax County, Virginia
Bob Cage has been enthralled with the tobacco auctioneer’s chant since he first visited his stepfather’s tobacco warehouse as a young man. He began auctioning tobacco in 1950 and since then has sold tobacco all over the world. In 1984, Cage won the World Tobacco Auctioneering Championship, the highest honor awarded to a tobacco auctioneer. www.oldhalifax.com/cage

Jim Crawford, Roanoke, Virginia
Jim Crawford is a filmmaker who researched and produced Down in the Old Belt: Voices from the Tobacco South, which traces the history and culture of tobacco in the Old Belt of Virginia, from Jamestown to the Buyout. Crawford is currently apprenticing under tobacco auctioneer Bob Cage. www.swinginggateproductions.com/oldbelt.htm

Colin Felton, Kent, England
As a child, Colin Felton worked as a hop picker. He currently works at the Hop Farm Country Park, one of the biggest hop farms in Kent, where he has witnessed firsthand the successful diversification of the farm after changes in the market.

Derek Hitcham, Kent, England
In 1968, the mayor of Faversham founded Shepherd Neame, the oldest brewery in England. Three centuries later, it remains an independent family company, which brews traditional Kentish ales and internationally renowned lagers. The company retains strong local ties, 85 percent of the beer sold in its many pubs is produced in Kent. Derek Hitcham is a Shepherd Neame employee who gives guided tours of the brewery. www.shepherd-neame.co.uk
Kevin Owen, Chatham, Pittsylvania County, Virginia
A fifth-generation tobacco farmer, Kevin Owen farms eighty-five acres of flue-cured, or “bright-leaf,” tobacco, a sweet, thin tobacco used almost exclusively in cigarettes. When tobacco prices dropped, he and his brother started to grow corn and soybeans, as well as tobacco.

Bobby Wilkerson, Ringgold, Pittsylvania County, Virginia
Bobby Wilkerson is a fifth-generation tobacco farmer. He has worked in tobacco fields all his life. He was instrumental in developing the Tobacco Transition Payment Program, which was signed into law in October 2004.

Working Dogs
Roy and Debbie Johnson, Gladys, Campbell County, Virginia
Roy Johnson’s interest in training dogs started when he saw his father and uncle train hunting dogs. After a farm accident in 1985, Johnson began dog training full-time. He wanted to train dogs to do “farm chores,” not to compete. Johnson feels that he is helping to keep part of Virginia’s rural heritage alive by training over 130 dogs for farmwork.

BUILDING ARTS

Historic Building Restoration
Jimmy Price, Monroe, Amherst County, Virginia
Jimmy Price is a world-renowned mason whose family business, Virginia Lime Works, has been in operation for over thirty years. He is helping to restore Poplar Forest, an estate that once belonged to Thomas Jefferson. www.virginialimeworks.com

Historic Building Techniques
Peter Massey, Ashford, Kent, England
Peter Massey, a master carpenter with Dolmen Building Conservation, has moved many historic buildings around Kent, including stone, brick, timber-frame constructions, and clay peg tile roofs. His skill is unique and requires detective work to accomplish successfully. www.dolmen-conservation.co.uk

Colin McGhee, Staunton, Virginia
Master thatcher Colin McGhee started thatching when he was sixteen in Essex, England. At twenty-five, he became the youngest thatcher ever to win the Master Thatcher’s Cup. Since he moved his award-winning business, McGhee & Co., to the United States in 1991, he and his crew have been in great demand. www.dolmen-conservation.co.uk

Stained Glass
Judy and Keith Hill, Kent, England
Established in 1977 by Keith and Judy Hill, The Stained Glass Workshop specializes in restoring and conserving stained glass and in designing, constructing, and installing new windows. Judy specializes in glass painting. Keith’s specialty is conservation of historic stained glass. www.glassconservation.com

DECORATIVE CRAFTS

Car Culture
Larry Rathburn, Catawba, Roanoke County, Virginia
For over twenty years, designing and building hot rods was Rathburn’s hobby, but in the last ten years, he has built cars full-time. His son is following in his footsteps, extending the family car-building tradition into a third generation.

Tom Van Nortwick, Ferrum, Franklin County, Virginia
Tom started pinstriping in 1980 after watching a stripper at a local car show. Today, he is a nationally known designer, pinstriper, and automobile artist. He has pinstriped many things besides cars, including a guitar and an antique coffee grinder.

Pottery
Fatou Wade, Ndjilasseme, Senegal, West Africa
Fatou Wade has worked with clay since childhood. She hand-builds, fires, and decorates large pots and other ceramics for households in her rural farming community. She uses techniques that were known by Africans who went from the Senegambian region to Virginia.

Charles and Linda McRaven, Charlottesville, Virginia
Charles “Mac” McRaven has been building with stone, log, and post and beam since he was eleven. Since that time, he has built and restored hundreds of log, stone, and post-and-beam structures all over the United States. www.charlesmcraven.com
Quilting Stories
5440 African American Quilters Guild, Hampton, Virginia
The 5440 African American Quilters Guild began quilting in 1993. The group has grown from eight founding members to over twenty members who promote and preserve the art among African Americans in Virginia. www.5440quilters.com

Virginia Quilt Museum, Harrisonburg, Virginia
The Virginia Quilt Museum displays quilts by early and contemporary quilters. The museum's collection consists of over 150 quilts that date from 1810 to the present. www.vaquiltmuseum.org

Virginia Tribal Crafts
Lee Lovelace, Mechanicsville, Hanover County, Virginia
Lee Lovelace is a young member of the Upper Mattaponi tribe, who incorporates Native American themes in his drawings. In 2006, he, along with other dignitaries from the Virginia tribes, traveled to Kent, England, where he showed his art to English admirers.

Mildred Gentle Ram Moore, Pamunkey Indian Reservation, King William County, Virginia
Born and raised on the Pamunkey Indian Reservation, Mildred Moore learned the art of traditional Powhatan Blackware as a child from the Elder Woman at the Pottery School. In 2004, she received the Governor's Community Service Award.

Debora Littlelew Moore, West Point, King William County, Virginia
Debora Littlelew Moore, daughter and apprentice of Mildred Gentle Ram Moore, is the founding president of the Intertribal Women's Circle, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of tribal traditions. Debora is also an accomplished Southern Traditional Dancer and a member of the Red Crooked Sky Dance Troupe.

Randy Robinson, Southampton County, Virginia
Randy Robinson is a member of the Upper Mattaponi Indian Tribe. His artwork primarily consists of scratchboard—drawings scratched into ink, painted over a thin layer of white clay, which has been laid over poster board or another stiff paper.

George Whitewolf, Lynchburg, Virginia
George Whitewolf serves as Assistant Chief of the Monacan Indian Nation and is an accomplished craftsman and teacher. He watched his grandmother and grandfather create baskets and chairs from materials they gathered themselves. He has shown his own work at powwows and museums across the United States.

Karenne Wood, Charles City, Charles City County, Virginia
Karenne Wood is a Ford Fellow in linguistic anthropology at the University of Virginia. She is a former researcher at the National Museum of the American Indian and was chairwoman of the Virginia Council on Indians for four years. She is also a header, award-winning poet, and dancer.

Foodways and Gardens
Cooking
Janice Canaday, Williamsburg, Virginia
Janice Canaday is an experienced cook and caterer, who follows her own and traditional African American recipes. When she was younger, Canaday assisted her mother in cooking and catering. She still prepares her mother's favorite dishes.

Dawn Cheser, Saxs, Accomack County, Virginia
Dawn Cheser runs the Holden Creek Gun Club with her husband, Grayson Cheser. Dawn is well known for her homemade cooking. She participated in the 2004 Mid-Atlantic Maritime Communities program of the Smithsonian Folklife Festival.

Amanda Cottrell, Ashford, Kent, England
Amanda Cottrell is Chair of the Kent Tourism Alliance and Patron of Produced in Kent. As the High Sheriff of Kent from 2006 to 2007, she promoted Kentish food and wine. Cottrell is also an accomplished cook, who has roots in England and Virginia.
Frances Davis, Rocky Mount, Franklin County, Virginia
Frances Davis was the oldest girl in a large family of tobacco sharecroppers. When she was twelve, she took charge of the cooking. Her family tended large gardens, canned their own vegetables, and cured their own meats.

Marième Diène, N'Djaména, Senegal, West Africa
Marième Diène is an experienced cook from a peanut-growing community. She prepares peanut dishes, such as tagadege (peanut mash), dahiime (millet mixed with peanut butter and chicken), bataye (couscous with ground roasted peanuts), and mafé (peanut butter stew).

Mo Joslin, Tilmansstone, Kent, England
Mo Joslin has researched recipes that use local produce, such as hop shoots, fruit, and honey. She is the author of the cookbook

Kentish Fare (2006) and has been featured on the BBC's Web site. She has also developed her own line of jams, jellies, and chutneys under the Farmhouse Kitchen label. www.farmhousekitchen.net

Patrice Olivon, Arlington County, Virginia
Patrice Olivon was born in Morocco and was raised in southern France. He moved to Virginia in 1979 and, for twelve years, served as Executive Chef at the French Embassy in Washington. Chef Olivon is a strong proponent of Virginia culinary traditions and champions the role of Virginia in the transformation of American cooking over the past thirty years. www.tablefor8online.com

Cleve H. Wingate, Elk Creek, Grayson County, Virginia
With her grandmother’s help, Cleve Wingate baked her first cake when she was six and has been cooking ever since. An accomplished “country cook,” her specialties include pound cake and prune cake. She likes to cook with fresh vegetables from her garden and is an expert at canning and freezing.

Brunswick Stew
John D. Clary and The Proclamation Stew Crew, Lawrenceville, Brunswick County, Virginia
Stew chef's apprentice with a “stewmaster,” a position that takes years to attain. After joining the Lawrenceville Volunteer Fire Department in 1973, John D. Clary learned to cook Brunswick stew under Stewmaster Thomas McGuire. In 1988, Clary became Stewmaster.

Gardening
Formal Garden
George Carter, North Elmham, Norfolk, England
George Carter, one of Britain's most eminent designers, creates garden designs and exhibitions. In his early career, he was a museum and exhibition designer at the Sainsbury Centre for Visual Arts. He has published six books and numerous articles.

Sophia Sidney, Tonbridge, Kent, England
Set in the rural Weald of Kent, surrounded by picturesque countryside and ancient parkland, Penshurst Place and Gardens has changed little over the centuries. This medieval masterpiece has been the seat of the Sidney family since 1552. www.penshurstplace.com

Preston Garden
Michael Twitty, Rockville, Montgomery County, Maryland
Michael W. Twitty is an author, culinary historian, and historical interpreter who specializes in the agricultural and food traditions of enslaved African Americans. Three lines of his family go back to ancestors who were enslaved in colonial Virginia before the Civil War.

School Garden
Tyrone Mangum, Hampton, Virginia
Tyrone Mangum, a graduate student at Hampton University, grew up around Fayetteville, North Carolina, and attended North Carolina Central University. At Hampton, under the supervision of Professor Anne Pierce, he studied the history and development of a 1925–1932 series of Virginia children’s songs about the lives of garden creatures.

Maritime Traditions

Boatbuilding
Deltaville Boat Builders, Deltaville, Middlesex County, Virginia
The Deltaville Maritime Museum has a superb collection of ship models, art, and photography. It also has an active boatbuilding shop, which crafts the tender to the schooner Virginia and a thirty-one-foot reproduction of John Smith's barge, the Explorer. museumpark.deltavilleva.com

Smith’s Marine Railway, Dare, York County, Virginia
Smith’s Marine Railway has been operating on the same site since 1842, when the family settled on the banks of Chisman Creek in Dare, Virginia. "K.T." Smith is the patriarch who oversees the family business, while his three sons, Nathan, Tim, and Jamie, run the boatyard with help from several other family members.
Alan Staley,
Fairfsha.m, Kent, England
Alan Staley makes and repairs wooden boats, and he advocates the preservation of historic boats and boatbuilding methods. He is an active member of the Wooden Boatbuilders Trade Association, which encourages public knowledge and use of wooden boats.

Harbor Crafts and Activities
Ted Boscana, Williamsburg, Virginia
Carpenter Ted Boscana has worked for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation for seventeen years. He apprenticed under Master Carpenter Garland Wood for six years. www.history.org

Brenda O'Donovan and Linda Benson, Chatham Historic Dockyard, Chatham, Kent, England
Chatham Dockyard supported the British Royal Navy for over 400 years. Its ropeyard was established in 1618 and is the only one still in operation. O'Donovan and Benson offer ropemaking demonstrations and hands-on experience to visitors. www.chd.org.uk

Marshall Scheetz,
Williamsburg, Virginia

Historic Maritime Projects
Alexandria Seaport
Thomas Jefferson High School Project, Alexandria, Virginia

Reedville Fishermen’s Museum
John Smith Boat Project, Reedville, Northumberland County, Virginia
Museum volunteers researched and built the Spirit of 1608, a recreation of the large ship used by Captain John Smith and his Jamestown crew to explore and chart the Chesapeake Bay in 1608. Reedville is home to the only remaining menhaden-fishing operation in the Mid-Atlantic. www.rfmuseum.org

Sultana Shipyard/John Smith Boat Project, Chestertown, Kent County, Maryland
Master Shipwright John E. Swain, Shipwright Nicholas Biles, and a group of volunteers recreated John Smith’s shallop. The new shallop is home to a crew of explorers, historians, naturalists and educators, who are retracing Captain John Smith’s 1608 expedition to explore the Chesapeake Bay. www.sultanaprojects.org

Working the Water
Danny K. Bowdlen,
Chincoteague, Accomack County, Virginia
Danny Bowdlen can trace his family back to the 1600s on Chincoteague and Assateague islands. Today, like many of his ancestors, he follows the seasons, gill-netting for rockfish in the spring and fall, crabbing in the spring and summer, and guiding waterfowl hunters in the fall and winter. He participated in the 2004 Mid-Atlantic Maritime Festival program.

Mary and Marie Hill,
Hobson Village, Suffolk County, Virginia
Freed African American slaves founded Hobson Village, located west of Portsmouth, Virginia. It lies between the James River and the Chickahominy Creek, where the villagers made their living by oystering. Marie and Mary Hill, mother and daughter, have traced their ancestors back to the mid-1800s through land deeds and land grants.

Andy Riches,
Whitstable, Kent, England
Andy Riches is an oysterman well acquainted with historical and present-day methods of oyster extraction and the important role of oysters in the Kentish diet and economy. He is also expert at repairing oyster-dredging equipment. Riches has played a major role in reseeding many of the oyster beds around Whitstable.

Ken Thomas,
Dungeness, Kent, England
Ken Thomas, a fisherman who has lived in Dungeness for much of his life, is interested in preserving the history of this unique area of Kent. He fishes the English Channel using a gill net and is also quite familiar with other fishing techniques, such as trawling, drifting, and potting.

Virginia Institute for Marine Science (VIMS), Gloucester Point, Gloucester County, Virginia
VIMS plays an important role in marine science education by working closely with schools, businesses, government agencies, and individuals. www.vims.edu
MUSIC AND PERFORMANCE
Anansegrormma, Burke, Virginia, and Laurel, Maryland
Native Ghanaians Kofi Denis and Kwame Ansah-Brew, collectively known as Anansegrormma, are instructors at Goucher College and the University of Maryland, where they have organized numerous workshops and seminars for the university’s dance department. With “call-and-response” songs, games, rhythms, and authentic instruments, the two performers explore the rich heritage of West Africa. www.afrojazzanddance.com

Gerald Anderson,
Troutdale, Grayson County, Virginia
Gerald Anderson was born and raised near Troutdale, Virginia, where he still lives. He learned how to build guitars and mandolins from Wayne Henderson (another Festival participant). He has crafted over 100 instruments over the last forty years.

Dave Arthur,
Towbridge Wells, Kent, England
Dave Arthur is a musician, music historian, and researcher. He was born in Kent and has returned to live and work there. He conducts workshops for children, and his repertoire includes Kentish hopping songs, as well as songs for seasonal celebrations. He has also worked with Travellers and knows many of their songs.

Husnu Aydogdu,
Arlington County, Virginia
Husnu Aydogdu moved to Arlington five years ago from his native Turkey. A former staff musician for the Turkish Radio Television Corporation, Aydogdu plays a variety of stringed instruments. He is also an instrument builder, singer, and teacher of traditional and popular music.

“Big Day Out” Powwow
Representatives from the eight state-recognized tribes of Virginia (Chickahominy, Chickahominy Eastern Division, Mattaponi, Monacan, Nansemond, Pamunkey, Rappahannock, and Upper Mattaponi) drum and dance as they did at the Big Day Out in Gravesend, Kent, in July 2006.

Gretchen Bidova and dancers,
Gadsby’s Tavern Museum, Alexandria, Virginia
Dancing made Gadsby’s Tavern, now a museum, the center of Alexandria’s social scene in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Dancers in eighteenth-century clothing demonstrate and teach period dances.
oha.alexandriava.gov/gadsby/

John Cephas, Bowling Green,
Caroline County, Virginia
Although he was born in Washington, D.C., John Cephas’s family hails from the Piedmont region, where he now lives. He has been one of the major proponents of the Piedmont-style blues guitar, and he was awarded a National Heritage Fellowship in 1980.

Rex M. Ellis,
Williamsburg, Virginia
Rex Ellis, historian, storyteller, and scholar, is the Vice President of the Historic Area of Colonial Williamsburg. Ellis was chairman of the division of cultural history and curator of African American history at the Smithsonian’s National Museum of American History.

La Chanchona de los Hermanos Lobo, Northern Virginia
A spin-off of an award-winning group in their home country, El Salvador, Los Hermanos Lobo perform at family events and restaurants in the area. The seven-piece ensemble, with its two violins, two guitars, percussion, and bass, takes its name from its large bass, which resembles a chanchona, or saw.

The Church of God and Saints of Christ, Alexandria, Virginia
Organized in 1860, the Church of God and Saints of Christ is the oldest Black Hebrew Israelite congregation in the United States. Church services are lively, filled with symbolism, ceremony, and a cappella music. Musical selections include spirituals and newly composed songs.

Cheikh Hamala Diabaté and Ensemble, Bambara, Mali, West Africa
Cheikh Hamala Diabaté is a steward of the 800-year-old tradition of the griot, the storytellers of West Africa. He plays the ngoni, a Malian traditional instrument and shares the oral history, music, and song of his Manding culture. www.malimusic.net
Brien Fain,
Stuart, Patrick County, Virginia

Brien Fain is a talented singer, storyteller, banjo player, and keeper of old mountain ballads, hymns, and history from Patrick County, Virginia, where his family has deep roots. Fain’s father taught him to play the banjo claw hammer-style. He learned many of his songs and ballads from family members.

Scott Fore, Radford, Virginia

Scott Fore is a self-taught, flat-picking guitarist with numerous titles to his credit, including the 2002 National Flat-picking Championship, the 2002 Doc Watson guitar championship, and the guitar contest at the Old Fiddler’s Convention in Galax. In 2004, he won the All-Star Competition at the Wayne C. Henderson Festival.

Gospel Travelers, Junior Travelers, and Gospel Travelletes, Farmville, Prince Edward County, Virginia

Led by Reverend Wyatt Vaughn, the Gospel Travelers are all members of his extended family. The women also sing as the Gospel Travelletes; the younger members perform as the Junior Travelers. A Vaughn-family quartet known as the Silvertones, performed in the 1940s.

Wayne Henderson and Friends, Mouth of Wilson, Grayson County, Virginia

Wayne Henderson is a well-known southwestern Virginia guitarist and guitar maker. His guitars are highly sought; there is a waiting list of many years. One of the finest guitarists in the United States, he was awarded a National Heritage Fellowship in 1993 from the National Endowment for the Arts. www.waynehenderson.org

Lined-out Hymn Singers, Dillwyn, Buckingham County, Virginia

All of the members of the Lined-out Hymn Singers attend one of nearly a dozen small, rural Baptist churches that dot the rolling hills north of Farmville, Virginia. Lined-out hymns are the oldest style of music in Virginia’s African American churches.

Madison Hummingbirds,
Portsmouth, Virginia

Inspired by the words of Psalm 150, “Praise ye the Lord. Praise Him with the sound of the trumpet,” the United House of Prayer features brass instruments at church services, baptisms, funerals, and parades. The Madison Hummingbirds continue the great Virginia shout-band tradition.

Jim Marshall,
Hillsville, Carroll County, Virginia

Musician and songwriter, Jim Marshall is an expert on Virginia ballads and the stories behind them. Marshall has also written a number of regional ballads on everything from tractor-trailer wrecks to preservation of the New River.

The Midnight Ramblers,
Wise, Wise County, Virginia

The Midnight Ramblers combine youth with talent and a burning desire to play traditional bluegrass. Known for their strong, clear vocals and flawless instrument work, they have a stage presence that belies their youth. The band plays a mixture of traditional and original compositions.

Music for Change/Lucky Moyo, Canterbury, Kent, England

For sixteen years, before settling in Kent, Lucky Moyo toured the United Kingdom with his group Black Umfolosi. He works with Music for Change, an organization that promotes inter-cultural understanding through music and dance. He is a native of Zimbabwe. www.luckymoyo.com

The Millen Family,
Berkeley, Kent, England

The Millen Family has been part-singing for more than a century. They draw from traditional folk material and old-time “glees,” four-part harmony songs for male voices. Glee clubs became popular in the mid-eighteenth century.

Lonesome Will Mullins & The Virginia Playboys, Cluettwood, Dickenson County, Virginia

Will Mullins grew up in a family of musicians in Sckectock, a community nestled on the backwaters of the Flannigan Reservoir. At fourteen, Will began learning to play the banjo in the three-finger style. To hone his art, he played in small bands around the community and for friends and fellow students. www.willmullins.com
Bou County Ndlaye Ensemble, Senegal, West Africa

Bou County Ndlaye is one of the foremost practitioners of the Senegalese talum (ancestor of the banjo) tradition. UNESCO named his uncle, Samba Diakaré Samb, a "living human treasure." His great-nephew, Mamadou Nguma Ndlaye, is one of few young people continuing the tradition. The ensemble includes Sidy Ndlaye, riti player, and Bassirou Seck, vocalist and historian.

New Ballard's Branch Bogtrotters, Galax, Virginia

New Ballard's Branch Bogtrotters are one of the hottest string bands in the area. They won the old-time band competition at the 1999 and 2000 Old Fiddler's Convention in Galax. Their name comes from the original Bogtrotters, the famous Galax-area band of the 1930s.

Reverend Frank Newsome, Haysi, Dickenson County, Virginia

An Elder of the Old Regular Baptist Church, Reverend Frank Newsome was a 2006-2007 Master Artist of the Virginia Folklife Program. Elder Frank sings sixteenth-century religious songs of the Old Regular Baptist denomination.

No Speed Limit, Galax, Virginia

No Speed Limit has played with The Lonesome River Band and The Del McCoury Band and has plans to tour with Ralph Stanley. At his January 2007 inaugural concert, Virginia Governor Tim Kaine joined the band on harmonica for a rendition of "Will the Circle Be Unbroken." www.nospeedlimitband.com

Vera Oye Yaa-Anna, Washington, D.C.

Vera Oye Yaa-Anna, affectionately known as "Auntie Oye," is a traditional cook and storyteller born in Liberia whose Virginia family resettled on the African continent after the Civil War. Her great-grandmother, Charlotte Gibson, was born in Richmond, Virginia.

The Paschall Brothers, Chesapeake, Virginia

The Paschall Brothers stand firmly in the great tradition of religious a cappella groups in Tidewater, Virginia. Reverend Frank Paschall, Sr. and his five sons formed the group in 1981. The current members include Tarrence Sr., Tarrence Jr., Frank Jr., and William Paschall, as well as Renard Freeman Sr., Renard Freeman Jr., and Johnny Lewis. www.paschallbrothers.com

Buddy Pendleton and Robin Kauffman, Basset, Henry County, Virginia

Buddy Pendleton is a retired rural mail carrier who once played with Ralph Rinzler and the Green Briar Boys. He has won countless firstplace awards at fiddle contests, and he plays regularly with friends and family, including his daughter, Robin Kauffman.

Powhatan Red Cloud Owen, Charles City, Charles City County, Virginia

Powhatan Red Cloud Owen serves on the Chickahominy Tribal Council and has produced public tribal events for more than twenty years. Currently, he is the Tribal Liaison for Jamestown 2007. His father taught him how to dance.

Sona Ritter and Tim Laycock, Kent, England

Ritter and Laycock wrote a play about the Weald of Kent based on the work of Vita Sackville-West. Their acting troupe, The Lion's Part, performs this play, as well as traditional English entertainments and seasonal festivities. www.thelionspart.co.uk

Kinney Rorrer and The New North Carolina Ramblers, Danville, Virginia

When you ask Kinney Rorrer about the name of his band, The New North Carolina Ramblers, you quickly learn that Charlie Poole and Posey Rorrer are great-uncles and that Charlie's wife lived with them for a while when Kinney was growing up. Kinney keeps alive the old-time music of his family's original North Carolina Ramblers.

The Sama Ensemble, Vienna, Fairfax County, Virginia

The traditions of the tombak (goblet drum) and the daf (frame drum) go back 1,500 years. After the Islamic Revolution in 1979, Iranian pop music was banned, and classical instruments, such as the tombak, grew in popularity. The Ensemble's music represents breathing and brings about relaxation and concentration. www.sama-ensemble.com
Virginias, made of sawdust and flower petals, are ceremonial carpets used in Lenten processions. Uvaldo Sanchez Hernandez and a small group of Guatemalan immigrants still create them.

Jeffrey Scott, Culpeper, Culpeper County, Virginia
Blues guitarist player and singer, Jeffrey Scott, nephew of the late legendary Piedmont Blues musician John Jackson, has mastered guitar playing in the Piedmont style. Piedmont Blues, which has its origins in the music of the African American string bands of Colonial America, is the oldest form of the blues.

La Sensual, Northern Virginia
La Sensual is a popular Virginia dance band that specializes in salsa, one of the most popular, contemporary pan-Latino social dances. Like many salsa groups, they appeal to a wide range of Latino dance tastes by playing many types of Latino dance music.

Ron Short, Big Stone Gap, Wise County, Virginia
Ron Short is a native of the Appalachian Mountains in Dickenson County. His powerful vocals, proven songwriting skills, and accomplished musicianship on multiple instruments were nurtured by the central Appalachian Mountain culture and strengthened by collaborations with artists from other cultures.

Thongtan Souvannaphan, Laos Heritage Foundation, Springfield, Virginia
Souvannaphan plays the saw in the tradition of Ban Phanom, Laos. The village was the source for performing arts for the Laotian royal court. Traditional Laotian orchestras include saws, wooden xylophone, kong vong, drum, mini cymbals, flute, kuer, kim, three-string guitar, and court.

Spencer Strickland, Troutdale, Grayson County, Virginia
Spencer Strickland was twelve when his father took him to Gerald Anderson to have a mandolin made. He eventually became Gerald’s partner in building fine instruments. The two of them record and perform regularly.

Los Tecuanis, Manassas, Virginia
In Manassas, Mexican immigrants from Acaciatl de Osorio, Puebla, dance in front of All Saints Church on December 12, the feast of the Virgin of Guadalupe. Tecuanis is Nahual for tigers, characters often found in this Western Sierra Madre-region dance genre.

Speedy Tolliver, Arlington County, Virginia
Fiddler Speedy Tolliver moved from Green Cove in Virginia’s southwestern highlands to the Washington, D.C. area in 1939. Tolliver quickly mastered the violin after joining The Lee Highway Boys. A multi-instrumentalist, he has played regularly with a succession of professional “Hillbilly” bands.

The Spiritual Seven, Wirtz, Franklin County, Virginia
Larnell Starkey & The Spiritual Seven Gospel Singers have been singing together for thirty-nine years. The nine person intergenerational group and large support crew are, for the most part, family members. This is an “anointed group” of official representatives from the Chestnut Grove Baptist Church in the south central Virginia town of Wirtz.

Whitewell Mountain Band, Mouth of Wilson, Galax County, Virginia
The Whitewell Mountain Band is firmly rooted in the heart of the Crooked Road, Virginia’s Heritage Music Trail. Whitewell is a family band comprised of Thornton Spencer, his wife Emily, and their daughter Martha. They play traditional music from southwestern Virginia.

Phil Wiggins, Takoma Park, Montgomery County, Maryland
John Cephas and Phil Wiggins met at the 1977 Smithsonian Folklife Festival and have been playing together ever since. Wiggins’s harmonica complements Cephas’ powerful guitar. Together, the duo has performed throughout Europe and the United States. They have released nine CDs.

Yarawi, Sterling, Fairfax County, Virginia
Yarawi combines Spanish and ancient Andean musical traditions. They use the Spanish guitar, charango, and fiddle, as well as traditional Andean wind instruments like the zampona, quena, and nasca. www.yarawi.com
Community and Family History

The Alexandria Black History Museum, Alexandria, Virginia

In 1939, Alexandria built the Robert Robinson Library after a “sit-down strike” by five young African American men in the city’s Whites-only Queen Street Library. African Americans used the new, segregated library until desegregation in the early 1960s. After desegregation, the building was used for various community service programs. Today, the Robert Robinson Library forms an integral part of the Alexandria Black History Museum. www.oba.alexandriava.gov/bhrc/

Arlington African American Heritage Museum, Arlington County, Virginia

Director Craig Syphax, whose family has lived in Virginia since at least the Civil War, guides Arlington-area families as they stitch together the complex stories and traditions of the county.

Char McCargo Bah, Fredericksburg, Virginia

Char McCargo Bah, a native of Alexandria, Virginia, is a professional genealogist. She serves as historian at the Virginia Genealogical Society and is a longtime member of the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society’s executive board.

Harvey Bakari, Williamsburg, Virginia

Harvey Bakari is Director of African American interpretation at Colonial Williamsburg. He is also a visual artist, musician, and an actor/interpreter. He presents often-forgotten stories of black Americans who contributed to the American Revolution.

Abdoulaye Camara, Senegal, West Africa

Abdoulaye Camara, historian and archaeologist, is Curator-in-Charge of Senegal’s National Museum (Cheikh Anta Diop Institut de l’Afrique Noire.) For many years, Dr. Camara was the curator of the History Museum of Goree Island.

Colonial Williamsburg, Williamsburg, Virginia

In Colonial Williamsburg, the restored eighteenth-century capital of Britain’s American colony, the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation operates the world’s largest living history museum. Colonial Williamsburg’s Historic Area features hundreds of meticulously restored, reconstructed, and historically furnished buildings. Costumed interpreters tell the stories of the men and women who made up the city’s population. www.history.org

Liz Finn, Kent Archives, Canterbury, Kent, England

Liz Finn became an archivist in 1986 and worked in the Oxfordshire Archives, now the Oxfordshire Record Office, until 1999. For the past two years, she has coordinated local history talks for the Centre for Kentish Studies. www.kentarchives.org.uk

Julius Fuller, Hampton, Virginia

In 1954, Julius Fuller graduated from Hampton University, where he was a member of Omega Psi Phi, Gamma Epsilon Chapter. He has since served as senior advisor to young men in the fraternity, passing on the values of brotherhood, ethics, and community service.

Historic Jamestowne, Jamestown, James City County, Virginia

Historic Jamestowne is owned and managed by a private-public partnership of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities and the National Park Service. Historic Jamestowne plays a key role in the preservation, protection, and promotion of the site of the first permanent English settlement in North America. www.historicjamestowne.org

Jamestown Settlement, Jamestown, James City County, Virginia

The Jamestown Settlement tells the story of the first large-scale meeting of Europeans and Native Americans. Gallery exhibits and an introductory film highlight the Powhatan, European, and African cultures that came together in seventeenth-century Virginia. www.historyisfun.org/Jamestown-Settlement.htm

Pamplin Historical Park and The National Museum of the Civil War Soldier, Petersburg, Virginia

On 422 acres, the Pamplin Historical Park preserves four historic buildings, four museums, and the Petersburg Breakthrough Battlefield, a National Historic Landmark. The park interprets life in the antebellum South and the impact of the Civil War on civilians, the life of the common soldier in the Civil War, and the Petersburg Breakthrough on April 2, 1865. www.pamplinpark.org
Virginia Raye, Alexandria, Virginia
Virginia Raye graduated from Virginia State University in Petersburg, Virginia, where she was an active member of Delta Sigma Theta, an African American sorority founded at Howard University. In Northern Virginia, Raye shares stories of African American Greek-letter traditions at the historic Alfred Street Church.

Paula Royster, Fredericksburg, Virginia
Paula Royster is the founding President and Chief Executive Officer of the Center for African American Genealogical Research. The center is the only organization in the world that provides a physical location for African Americans to conduct and get help with genealogical research, learn valuable computer skills, and contribute to knowledge of American history. www.caagri.org

Smithsonian Anacostia
Community Museum, Sperryville and Richmond Virginia Projects
The Smithsonian Anacostia Community Museum has long been involved in interpreting and documenting history and culture from the community perspective. Community historians James D. Russell of Sperryville and Benjamin Ross of Sixth Mount Zion Baptist Church in Richmond worked with museum staff to produce a video documentation project about family, community, and church history. www.anacostia.si.edu

Historic Archaeology
End Allison, Kent, England
Enter is the environmental archaeologist at the Canterbury Archaeological Trust. Her areas of expertise include identifying vertebrate (especially bird) and invertebrate animal remains from archaeological sites throughout Britain. She also works with the trust's education department on public events.
www.canterburytrust.co.uk

Amanda Danning, Bay City, Texas
Amanda Danning is a sculptor, painter, and woodworker whose pieces are on permanent display in more than a dozen museums. While at the Festival she will reconstruct the face of one of the original 1607 settlers.

Marion Green, Kent, England
Marion Green manages and participates in the Archaeology in Education Service of the Canterbury Archaeological Trust. Green's duties include working with trainee teachers, school children, and students; in-service training; writing; and helping to produce resources for teachers.
www.canterburytrust.co.uk

Jamestown 2007 Community Program, Jamestown, James City County, Virginia
As part of the 400th anniversary commemoration of Jamestown, communities that represent every region of Virginia are participating in the Virginia 2007 Community Program. Special programs and legacy projects range from creating new museums, heritage trails, visitor centers, and recreational areas to producing special exhibits, concerts, plays, and festivals that invite visitors to "Come Home to Virginia."
www.americas400thanniversary.com

Mariner's Museum, Newport News, Virginia
The Mariner's Museum is one of the largest maritime history museums in the world. Over 60,000 square feet of gallery space honor the pioneer spirit of those who took to sea. www.mariner.org
Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions from Northern Ireland and the Ulster area are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Dogwood Stage</th>
<th>Garden Kitchen</th>
<th>Mountain Laurel Stage</th>
<th>Tudor Rose Stage</th>
<th>Willow Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>Fish Across</td>
<td>John Cephas and Phil</td>
<td>Scott Foste</td>
<td>Music for</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Cultures</td>
<td>Wiggins</td>
<td></td>
<td>Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Fiddle Styles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Kid Cuisine</td>
<td>No Speed Limit</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present,</td>
<td>Preserving Foods</td>
<td>Scott Fosc and Buddy</td>
<td>Soma Ritter and</td>
<td>Sungung Styles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>and Future</td>
<td></td>
<td>Pendleton</td>
<td>Tim Lawton,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>&quot;The Land&quot;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and</td>
<td>From the Garden</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal</td>
<td>Bob Comto and</td>
<td>Music for</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Landscapes</td>
<td></td>
<td>Dancers</td>
<td>Nolave Ensemble</td>
<td>Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions and</td>
<td>Tea Time</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cultures</td>
<td></td>
<td>Sungung Styles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>Peanut Snacks</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mekong Family Learning Sala

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance, including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese K'hmong dancing will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests today, from the end of the opening ceremony until 7:30 p.m. "The Next Generation" children's sessions will take place on the weekends.

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African/African American, Kent, England; and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craft people from all three root cultures. Hands on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language-interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
Ongoing Mekong Activities
In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities
In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
Thursday June 28

11:00

Dogwood Stage

Fiddle Stories

Garden Kitchen

Big Breakfast

Mountain Laurel Stage

Anasagromma

Tudor Rose Stage

Pete Castle

Willow Stage

Virginia Tribal Dancers

12:00

Day Jobs

Kentish Fare

No Speed Limit

Scott Lane

Circa 1957

Singing Styles

1:00

Community Stories

Ked Currie

John Cephas and Phil Wiggins

Bon Guita

Ndathe Ensemble

Anasagromma

2:00

Past, Present, and Future

Peanuts Across Cultures

Virginia Tribal Dancers

Soma Rutte and Tim Laycock

"The Land"

Pete Castle

3:00

Region and Landscapes

Baked Goods

No Speed Limit

John Cephas and Phil Wiggins

Singing Styles

4:00

Seasonal Customs

Tea Time

Scott Lane and Buddy Pendleton

Bon Guita

Ndathe Ensemble

Laos's Part

5:00

Culture Swap

Apple Snacks

Pub Games

Mekong Family Learning Sala

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance— including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese (non) dancing—will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:00-5:00 p.m. "The Next Generation" children's sessions will take place on the weekends.

EVENING CONCERTS

Lagan Stage 5:30-7:00 PM

Northern Irish Dance Party

Lucy Mulholland and Cuckoo's Nest

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African/African American; Kent, England; and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Northern Songs</td>
<td>Songs of Love and Loss</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymer</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Family Farming</td>
<td>Northern Ireland in Song and Story</td>
<td>Lucy Mulholland and Cackoo's Nest Dance Demonstration and Workshop</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Rahmao Gong and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Culture</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>The Valley Family</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Thailand</td>
<td>Belleek Pottery</td>
<td>Songs of Work</td>
<td>Four Men and a Dog</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Ancient Ireland Len Graham and Jack Lynch</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymer</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Kylin (Laos) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Tracing Family Roots Genealogy</td>
<td>Pipes and Drums</td>
<td>Demonstration and Workshop</td>
<td>Robert James Marron</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Ongoing Mekong Activities</td>
<td>Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sport matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Sponsor Stage</th>
<th>Workshop Stage</th>
<th>Session Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Dogwood</td>
<td>Garden</td>
<td>Mountain</td>
<td>Tudor Rose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Family Stories</td>
<td>Kitchen</td>
<td>Laurel Stage</td>
<td>Bon Counta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Mountain</td>
<td>Nitrate Ensemble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>From the Garden</td>
<td>John Cephas and Phil Wiggins</td>
<td>Hospa Avdogha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Community Stories</td>
<td>Kid Gruane</td>
<td>No Speed Limit</td>
<td>Bon Counta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Nitrate Ensemble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present, and Future</td>
<td>Holiday Foods</td>
<td>Ella Jenkins</td>
<td>Singing Styles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td>Cooking for a Crowd</td>
<td>The Whitetop Mountain Band</td>
<td>Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>No Speed Limit</td>
<td>Speedy Tolliver and Friends</td>
<td>Vela Ove</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Yao Amna</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Seasonal Customs</td>
<td>Tea Time</td>
<td>Housa Avdogha</td>
<td>Lion’s Part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>Tools and Techniques</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
<td>Ballads</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Virginia Activities
In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African/African American; Kent, England; and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language-interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.

MEKONG FAMILY LEARNING SALA

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance – including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese Khem (dancing) – will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

NORTHERN IRELAND LOUGH ERNE INN

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherina McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:30–5:30 p.m. "The Next Generation" children’s sessions will take place on the weekends.

EVENING CONCERTS

Mountain Laurel Stage 6:00–9:00 PM

- Ralph Rinzler Memorial Concert
  - A Concert of NFA National Heritage Fellows in Honor of Rev. Loman Harvey
  - Liz Carroll and John Doyle
  - John Cephas and Phil Wiggins
  - David and Michael Donmet
  - Nancy Sweezy

Lagan Stage 5:00–7:30 PM

- Northern Ireland Friday Evening Concert
  - Armagh Rhymers
  - The Low Country Boys
  - Session Musicians
  - The Valley Family
  - Rosie White
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Irish Basket Making</td>
<td>Songs of Ulster</td>
<td>Lucy Mulholland and Cackoo's Nest Dance Demonstration and Workshop</td>
<td>Robert James Mattison</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Boc Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>The Armagh Pipers Club</td>
<td>Bagpipes</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymer</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Bahnar Gong and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Thailand</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Culture</td>
<td>The Valmey Family</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Robert James Mattison</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Songs and Tales of County Armagh</td>
<td>Len Graham and Jack Lynch</td>
<td>Four Men and a Dog</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Hat Boc Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>The Irish Language</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymer</td>
<td>Lucy Mulholland and Cackoo's Nest Dance Demonstration and Workshop</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Ayel (Lao) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Renewable Resources: Willow and Technology</td>
<td>Songs and Stories of the North</td>
<td>The Valmey Family</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African, African American, Kent, England, and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

*indicates American Sign Language–interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu’er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>La Ba Opera (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Songs of Youth and Folly</td>
<td>Songs and Stories of Work and Play</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Robert James Mattson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Music</td>
<td>Needlecrafts</td>
<td>Lucy Mulholland and Cuckoo’s Nest: Dance Demonstration and Workshop</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Kナイ (Laos) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Whiskey Making</td>
<td>Songs of the North</td>
<td>Four Men and a Dog</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>La Ba Opera (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Thailand</td>
<td>Towns and Cities</td>
<td>Len Graham and Jack Lynch</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymers</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Songs of Emigration</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>The Valley Family</td>
<td>Robert James Mattson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Bahmar Gang and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Pipe Bands</td>
<td>Armagh Rhymers</td>
<td>Four Men and a Dog</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region’s traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu’er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children’s games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to “sit in” on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Dogwood Stage</th>
<th>Garden Kitchen</th>
<th>Mountain Laurel Stage</th>
<th>Tudor Rose Stage</th>
<th>Willow Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Family Stories</td>
<td>Full Breakfast</td>
<td>The Whitetop Mountain Band</td>
<td>Bon Conta N'daaye Ensemble</td>
<td>Veta Oye Yaa Ama</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>Church Dinner</td>
<td>Lonesome Will</td>
<td>John Cephas and Phil Wiggins</td>
<td>Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Circa 1957</td>
<td>Kid Cuisine</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
<td>Ballad Singing</td>
<td>Veta Oye Yaa Ama</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present, and Future</td>
<td>Week One Cook-off</td>
<td>The Whitetop Mountain Band</td>
<td>Bon Conta N'daaye Ensemble</td>
<td>Singing Stoles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td>Virginia Regional Cooking</td>
<td>Lonesome Will</td>
<td>John Cephas and Phil Wiggins</td>
<td>Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>Seasonal Customs</td>
<td>Tea Time and Cook-off Judging</td>
<td>Ballad Singing</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>An Apple a Day</td>
<td>Latino Preview</td>
<td>Church of God and Saints of Christ</td>
<td>Sona Ritter and Tim Lavock “The Land”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mekong Family Learning Sala

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance— including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese Nhoc (flower) dancing—will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:00–5:00 p.m. “The Next Generation” children's sessions will take place on the weekends.

EVENING CONCERTS

Nine Dragons Stage 6:00–8:00 PM

Sounds of the Mekong

Mountain Laurel Stage 6:00–9:00 PM

La Sensual
Los Hermanos Lobo
Los Tejanos

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African/African American, Kent, England, and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass, while volunteers also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language–interpreted programs. Programs are subject to change.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Northern Ireland and America</td>
<td></td>
<td>Lucy Mallord and Coe's Nest</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Songs of the North</td>
<td>Songs and Stories of the North</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
<td>Robert James Mattison</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Balhmar Gong and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Songs of the Land</td>
<td>Craobh Rua</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Industrial Culture of the North</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Kyton (Laot) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Performers/Activities</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Family Stories</td>
<td>Dogwood Stage</td>
<td>Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little - Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>Mountain Stage</td>
<td>Sara Ritter and Tim Lavoie, &quot;The Land&quot; - Dave Arthur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Circa 1957</td>
<td>Laurel Stage</td>
<td>The New Ballard's Branch Bogtrotters - Ron County Nihaye Ensemble - Millen Family</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Community Stories</td>
<td>Stage</td>
<td>From the Garden Wayne Henderson, Dave Arthur, and Ron Short - Mongolian Wrestlers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td>Kitchen</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers - Jeffrey Scott - Mongolian Wrestlers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>Stage</td>
<td>The New Ballard's Branch Bogtrotters - Ron County Nihaye Ensemble - Lion's Part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>Willow Stage</td>
<td>Red, White, and Blue Stepping - Ron Short and Ballads - Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African/African American, Kent, England, and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

Indicates American Sign Language–interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Lough Neagh</td>
<td>Times and More Tales</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Lao (Vietnam)</td>
<td></td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td></td>
<td>Old Songs and Ancient Tales</td>
<td>Songs and Stories of the North</td>
<td>Robert James Mattson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Kylor (Lion) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td></td>
<td>Ulster Scots Culture</td>
<td>Catholic Hayden, Gino Lapari, and Friends</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td></td>
<td>Anghalilynamide Songwriters</td>
<td>Community Mummers</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Musical Traditions</td>
<td>Robert James Mattson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td>Tastes of Thailand</td>
<td></td>
<td>A Funny Thing Happened</td>
<td>Songs of Humor</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities
In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities
In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Dogwood Stage Activities</th>
<th>Garden Kitchen</th>
<th>Mountain Laurel Stage Activities</th>
<th>Tudor Rose Stage Activities</th>
<th>Willow Stage Activities</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Family Stories</td>
<td>Big Breakfast</td>
<td>Bob Countyeight Nihave Ensemble</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
<td>Ongoing Programs &amp; Activities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Circa 1857</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Post, Present, and Future</td>
<td>One Pot Meals</td>
<td>The New Ballard's Branch</td>
<td>Jeffrey Scott</td>
<td>Ballads</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Seasonal Customs</td>
<td>Tea Time</td>
<td>Mountain Music Concert</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>Bedtime Snack</td>
<td></td>
<td>Garden Songs</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mekong Family Learning Sala

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance, including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese看来 (dramatic dance) will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:00-5:30 p.m. “The Next Generation” children's sessions will take place on the weekends.

EVENING CONCERTS

Lagan Stage

5:00-7:30 PM

Sounds of the North

Patricia Flynn
Cathal Sean Hayden
John Kennedy
Gino Lupari
Michael Quinn
Michael Thomas Sands
The Low Country Boys

Mountain Laurel Stage

4:00-9:00 PM

Mountain Music Concert

Bren Fam, Ron Short, and David Arthur
Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little Linda and David Lay with Ricks Simmons
The New Ballard's Branch Bogtrotters
Kennedy Ritter and The New North Carolina Ramblers
The Spiritual Seven

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers(African American; Kent, England; and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language-interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region’s traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu‘er Teahouse.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
<th>Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Naga</td>
<td>New Moon</td>
<td>Nine Dragons</td>
<td>Pu’er Teahouse</td>
<td>Bann Narrative</td>
<td>Foyle</td>
<td>Lagan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Hat Bo Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Songs of Town and Country</td>
<td>Aughaldenmara Community Mummers</td>
<td>All Set Ensemble Dance Workshop and Demonstration</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Belfast Communities</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Musical Traditions</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Buddha Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>The Glens of Antrim</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
<td>Craigie Rua</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Thailand</td>
<td>Sports &amp; Games</td>
<td>Songs, Tunes, and Games</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Bo Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Culture</td>
<td>Songs of the Sea</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Kyker (Laos) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Growing Up in Northern Ireland</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children’s games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to “sit in” on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Family Stories: Bread Across Cultures, Virginia Tribal Dancers, Jeffrey Scott, Lion's Part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs: Cooking for a Crowd, Kickin' Rettin', The New North Carolina Ramblers, Ron Short and Brian Fann, Dave Arthur, The Millen Family</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Common The Strokes: Kid Cosmic, Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little, Ron County, Nihaye Ensemble, Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present, and Future: Preserving Foods, Kickin' Rettin', The New North Carolina Ramblers, Jeffrey Scott, Dave Arthur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes: Fish for Dinner, The Paschall Brothers, Ron Short and Brian Fann, The Millen Family</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures: Seasonal Customs, Tea Time, Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little, Soma Rettin and Tim Lavock, &quot;The Land&quot;, Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap: Tomatoes 101, Madison Hummingbirds, Ron County, Nihaye Ensemble, British English</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mekong Family Learning Sala

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance—including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese Khon (horn) dancing—will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Sala for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLean Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:30-5:30 p.m. "The Next Generation" children's sessions will take place on the weekends.

EVENING CONCERTS

Lagan Stage
5:00-6:00 PM
Early Evening Dance Party
All Set Ensemble
Lucy Mulholland and Galloway's Nest

Lagan Stage
6:00-7:30 PM
Coming to America, Songs, Times, and Cries
Patricia Flynn
Len Graham and Jack Lynch
Hidden Fenianagh
Roslyn White

Mountain Laurel Stage
6:00-8:00 PM
Virginia American Sacred Music Concert
Madison Hummingbirds
The Paschall Brothers
Virginia Church Choir

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African-African American; Kent, England; and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftpeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language-interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
Saturday July 7

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Songs of Humor and Fantasy</td>
<td>Anghaithlymbane Community Mummers</td>
<td>Northern Ireland</td>
<td>Robert James Mattison</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Murals</td>
<td>Drum Summit</td>
<td>Songs of the North</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Kylin (Laos) Dancing</td>
<td>Dance in Northern Ireland</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Ireland and America</td>
<td>Songs of Love and Loss</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Hat Boi Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Whiskey Making</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Craobh Rua</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Bahnar Gong and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Ancient Ireland</td>
<td>Len Graham and Jack Lynch</td>
<td>Songs and Stories</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Daily Closure Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Dogwood Stage</th>
<th>Garden Kitchen</th>
<th>Mountain Laurel Stage</th>
<th>Tudor Rose Stage</th>
<th>Willow Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>Brunswick Sewed Preparations</td>
<td>The Paschall Brothers</td>
<td>Spencer Strickland and Gerald Anderson</td>
<td>The Miller Family</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>Celebration Foods</td>
<td>Yarraw</td>
<td>Bon County</td>
<td>Jeffrey Scott</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Circa 1957</td>
<td>Community Stories</td>
<td>Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little</td>
<td>The Miller Family</td>
<td>Dave Arthur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present, and Future</td>
<td>Virginia Regional Cooking</td>
<td>Midnight Ramblers</td>
<td>Sonia Ritter and Tim Latchcock &quot;The Land&quot;</td>
<td>Music for Change</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td>Steady Across Cultures</td>
<td>Yarraw</td>
<td>Jeffrey Scott</td>
<td>Stepping</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>Served with Soup</td>
<td>Midnight Ramblers</td>
<td>Spencer Strickland and Gerald Anderson</td>
<td>Lions' Part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>Brunswick Sewed Presented</td>
<td>Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little</td>
<td>Bon County Nihay Ensemble</td>
<td>Music for Change</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mekong Family Learning Salon

There are ongoing activities for young people throughout the day, including mask making, paper cutting, bamboo weaving, clay working, and calligraphy. Interactive performances of music and dance—including Khmer classical dance and Vietnamese kinhon (narrow) dancing—will also take place. Check the schedule board in front of the Family Learning Salon for information.

Northern Ireland Lough Erne Inn

Throughout the Festival, the Lough Erne Inn stage will host a traditional Irish music session led by Northern Irish musicians Maurice Bradley, Catherine McLearne Sands, and Michael Sands. Local traditional Irish musicians are invited to join our Northern Irish guests any day from 11:00–5:30 p.m. “The Next Generation” children’s sessions will take place on the weekends.

Roots of Virginia Culture:

Big Day Out Tribal Event 1:00 PM and 3:30 PM

Representatives from the eight state-recognized Virginia Indian tribes will present a group performance modeled after the “Big Day Out,” which took place in July 2006 in Gravesend, England. This performance includes the Virginia Intertribal Drum and tribal dancers.

EVENING CONCERTS

Nine Dragons Stage 6:00–8:00 PM

Sounds of the Mekong

Lagan Stage 5:30–7:00 PM

Dance Workshop and Party

All Set Ensemble
Lucy Mulholland and Guckin’s Nest

Lagan Stage 7:00–8:30 PM

Last Night’s Fun

Grabb Rua
Cathal Sean Hayden
Lee Lawton
Gino Lupani
Michael Thomas Sands
Robert Watt
Robin White
Mark Wilson

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers: African-American, Kent, England, and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftspeople from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Camp, staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language-interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Naga Stage</th>
<th>New Moon Stage</th>
<th>Nine Dragons Stage</th>
<th>Pu'er Teahouse</th>
<th>Bann Narrative Stage</th>
<th>Foyle Stage</th>
<th>Lagan Stage</th>
<th>Tastes of Ulster</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Boc Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Songs, Serenades and Not So Serious</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Northern Ireland Dance</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Urban Life</td>
<td>Bagpipe Traditions</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
<td>Norah Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Lahnar Gong and Drum Ensemble</td>
<td>Tastes of Yunnan</td>
<td>Mummies in Fermanagh</td>
<td>Songs and Stories, Len Graham and Jack Lynch</td>
<td>All Set Ensemble Dance, Workshop and Demonstration</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Hat Boc Opera (Vietnam)</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td>Road Racing in Northern Ireland</td>
<td>The Low Country Boys</td>
<td>Craobh Rus</td>
<td>Robert James Mattsson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Thailand</td>
<td>Sounds of Yunnan</td>
<td>Flower Lantern Troupe (Yunnan)</td>
<td>Tastes of Vietnam</td>
<td>Bodhram?</td>
<td>Hidden Fermanagh</td>
<td>Tommy Sands</td>
<td>Elizabeth Moore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Cambodia</td>
<td>Kitor (Lao) Dancing</td>
<td>Tastes of Laos</td>
<td>Ulster Scots Culture</td>
<td>Aughakillymnaude Community Mummies</td>
<td>Final Concert</td>
<td>Hugh Browne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Sounds of Vietnam</td>
<td>Sounds of Laos</td>
<td>Daily Closing Ceremony</td>
<td>Tastes of Cambodia</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ongoing Mekong Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing demonstrations of the Mekong region's traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. These include presentations on making fish traps, dugout canoes, baskets, pottery, puppets, woven cloth and silk, needlework, embroidery, painted murals, cement moldings, ritual offerings, masks, rockets, woodcarvings, and silver jewelry. Culinary traditions from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Yunnan are featured throughout the day at the Pu'er Teahouse.

Ongoing Northern Ireland Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances and narrative sessions, there are ongoing demonstrations of Northern Irish traditional arts, crafts, and occupations throughout the site. Culinary traditions are featured on the Tastes of Ulster Stage. Visitors are invited to participate in interactive presentations of sports, children's games, genealogy, and marine archaeology. Traditional Irish musicians are welcome to "sit in" on the ongoing Irish music session in the Lough Erne Inn. Exhibition sports matches are scheduled for the weekends. Family activities are integrated into numerous presentations throughout the site.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Dogwood Stage</th>
<th>Garden Kitchen</th>
<th>Mountain Laurel Stage</th>
<th>Tudor Rose Stage</th>
<th>Willow Stage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>11:00</td>
<td>Family Stones</td>
<td>Church Breakfast</td>
<td>Lion's Part</td>
<td>Ben Counter, Niall Enright</td>
<td>Tavern Dancers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12:00</td>
<td>Day Jobs</td>
<td>From the Garden</td>
<td>Midnight Ramblers</td>
<td>Jeffrey Scott</td>
<td>Ananegomania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1:00</td>
<td>Circa 1957</td>
<td>Kid Cuisine</td>
<td>The Gadsby Tavern Dancers</td>
<td>Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little</td>
<td>Virginia Tribal Dancers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2:00</td>
<td>Past, Present, and Future</td>
<td>Week Two Cook-off</td>
<td>Sama Ensemble</td>
<td>Spencer Strickland and Gerald Anderson</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3:00</td>
<td>Regions and Landscapes</td>
<td>Kentish Fare</td>
<td>Midnight Ramblers</td>
<td>Sama Ritter and Tim Laycock, &quot;The Land&quot;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4:00</td>
<td>Traditions Across Cultures</td>
<td>Apple Across Cultures and Cook-off</td>
<td>Wayne Henderson, Helen White, and Jeff Little</td>
<td>Spencer Strickland and Gerald Anderson</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5:00</td>
<td>Calendar Customs</td>
<td>Culture Swap</td>
<td>The Milen Family</td>
<td>Jun Time</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Evening Concerts

Mountain Laurel Stage
5:00–8:00 PM

- Stories in Wood and Song
  - Dave Arthur
  - Howard Ross
  - Rex Ellis
  - Ananegomania
  - Flory Jagoda
  - Katerine Wood
  - Vera Owe Yai Anna

Ongoing Virginia Activities

In addition to the daily scheduled performances, there are ongoing activities that explore the roots of Virginia culture throughout the site. Visit the three learning centers (African American, Kent, England, and Virginia Tribal Roots) to find out more about the performers and craftsmen from all three root cultures. Hands-on historical activities are ongoing at the Family Compass; staff will also point visitors in the direction of other family-friendly activities, including tracing family and community history, digging for artifacts, tending a colonial garden, and building a West African granary.

* indicates American Sign Language–interpreted program. Programs are subject to change.
Additional restroom facilities are available in the museum buildings during visiting hours. Public telephones are available on the site, opposite the National Museums of American History and Natural History, and inside the museums.

Lost & Found/Lost People
Lost items or family members should be brought to or picked up from the Volunteer tent located near the Smithsonian Metro Station on the Mall at Jefferson Drive and 12th Street.

Metro Stations
Metro trains will run every day of the Festival. The Festival site is easily accessible from the Smithsonian and Federal Triangle stations on the Blue and Orange Lines.

Services for Visitors with Disabilities
Large-print and audiocassette versions of the daily schedule and an audiocassette version of the program book are available at the Festival Information kiosks and the Volunteer tent. The program book is available in other formats upon request. A limited number of wheelchairs are available for loan at the Volunteer tent. Audio loops are installed at the music stages. Service animals are welcome. American Sign Language interpreters are available on site; the Festival schedule indicates which performances and presentations are interpreted (J). The Smithsonian will offer a verbal-description tour of the Festival on Thursday, June 28, at 11:00 a.m., for visitors who are blind or have low vision; contact ziebarth@si.edu for reservations. Other modes of interpretation may be provided if a request is made a week in advance by calling 202.633.4353 (TTY) or 202.633.2021 (voice), or by contacting ziebarth@si.edu.

Thunderstorms
In case of a severe storm, visitors should go inside a museum. If museums are closed, visitors should go into the Metro Station. Summer rainstorms are usually brief, and often the Festival resumes operations within an hour or two. In the event of a thunderstorm, the Festival must close. Do not remain under a tent or a tree!

Especially for Children and Families
In the Mekong River program, Family Learning Sala, young visitors have an opportunity, through a variety of hands-on activities, to interact directly with Festival participants and, through the Mekong River passport guide, to learn more about the region. In the Northern Ireland program, children and families can take part in traditional games, hear stories, learn dances, master a few words of Irish or Ulster-Scots, and explore arts and traditional occupations. In the Family Compass tent in the Roots of Virginia Culture program, visitors can learn about the family-friendly fun around the site, including daily participatory performances, workshops, and hands-on activities, such as planting seeds, uncovering artifacts, learning a colonial dance, and mending nets.
Taking Shape:
Ceramics in Southeast Asia

Approximately 200 visually striking ceramic vessels from Southeast Asia are on view in this long-term exhibition at the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery. It highlights two types of ceramics produced in Southeast Asia—soft, porous earthenware and high-fired stoneware. For more information, visit www.asia.si.edu.

Vietnamese Ceramics from the Red River Delta

To mark the tenth anniversary of normalized relations between Vietnam and the United States, the Freer Gallery of Art will display twenty-two works that link its collection of Vietnamese ceramics to former production centers in the Red River delta of northern Vietnam. For more information, visit www.asia.si.edu.

Mekong with the Smithsonian Associates

Journey Along the River of Cultures
Thursday, June 28, 6:45 to 9 p.m.

Leedom Lefferts, who has studied the Mekong region for almost forty years, will take participants on a vicarious tour of Myanmar (Burma), Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam—countries along the Mekong River. Using slides and scenes from his videotapes, he will examine the lives, cultures, and traditions of the river’s many peoples.

Connecting Cultures by Connecting Cuisines
Saturday, June 30, 12 noon to 3 p.m.
Learn about the delicious foods of the Mekong region—from Yunnan’s distinctive ham and black rice in bamboo poles to Khmer sour soup and Laotian laap. Then, sit down to a lunch of dishes from Cambodia, China, Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam.

Contact the Smithsonian Resident Associate Program for registration information at www.ResidentAssociates.org or 202.357.3030.

Films at Baird Auditorium
National Museum of Natural History

Churning the Sea of Time: A Journey up the Mekong to Angkor (1996, 74 minutes)
Friday, June 29, 12 noon
This film records an odyssey through the Mekong Delta, from the exquisite terrain of Vietnam and Cambodia to the great ruins at Angkor. Presented courtesy of Les Guthman, filmmaker.

The Mekong:
From the Source to the Delta (1995, 4 parts at 52 minutes each)
Friday, July 6, noon
Saturday, July 7, 1 p.m.

Through this four-part documentary film, travel the length of the Mekong River for a look at the region’s culture, ecology, economy, and politics. Parts 1 and 2, “Turbulent River in Tibet and Southwest China” and “Mother of All Waters in Laos,” will be shown Friday. Parts 3 and 4, “Great Water in Cambodia” and “Nine Dragons in Vietnam,” will be shown Saturday. Presented courtesy of Along Mekong Productions, Heidelberg, Germany.

Kennedy Center
Millennium Stage Concert

Sounds of Yunnan
Thursday, June 28, 6 to 7 p.m.
Participants of the Mekong program will perform on the Kennedy Center Millennium Stage.
For more information, visit www.kennedy-center.org/programs/millennium.
Rediscover Northern Ireland

Through July 2007, this Washington, D.C.-area program will showcase the many facets of Northern Irish life. For more information, visit www.rediscoverni.com.

Northern Ireland with the Smithsonian Associates

Through July, the Smithsonian Resident Associate Program will offer many programs that celebrate Northern Ireland’s culture and the beauty of its landscape. For more information and tickets, call 202.357.3030, or visit wwwresidentassociates.org.

Made in Northern Ireland (MINI): A Dynamic of Change

Through August, the Smithsonian’s S. Dillon Ripley Center will display contemporary crafts from Northern Ireland. For more information, visit www.si.edu/visit/whatsnew/ripley.asp.

Titanic in Belfast

This exhibit from the National Museum of Northern Ireland tells the story of the Titanic and the recent renaissance of Belfast and Northern Ireland. It will be at Union Station until July 15. For more information, visit www.magni.org.uk.

Kennedy Center

Millennium Stage Concerts

Participants in the Northern Ireland program will perform on the Kennedy Center Millennium Stage on the following evenings, from 6 to 7 p.m. For more information, visit www.kennedy-center.org/programs/millennium.

Friday, June 29
Four Men and a Dog
Saturday, June 30
The Low Country Boys
Friday, July 6
Craobh Rua

Return to a Native Place:
Algonguin Peoples of the Chesapeake

Through photographs, maps, interactive exhibits, and ceremonial and everyday objects, the National Museum of the American Indian will feature Native peoples from what is now Washington, D.C., Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware. For details, visit the museum’s Web site at www.nmai.si.edu.

Kennedy Center

Millennium Stage Concerts

Participants in the Virginia program will perform on the Kennedy Center Millennium Stage on the following evenings, from 6 to 7 p.m. For more information, visit www.kennedy-center.org/programs/millennium.

Wednesday, June 27
Scott Fore
Buddy Pendleton
Robin Kauffman

Sunday, July 1
Lonesome Will

Thursday, July 5
Bon Cunta Ndiaye Ensemble

Saturday, July 7
Jeffrey Scott

Festival Recording: Challenges, Techniques, and Preservation

Whether for historical documentation or commercial release, recording at a major festival presents a unique set of challenges. This three-day series of panels, presented by The Recording Academy® and moderated by Pete Reiniger of Smithsonian Folkways Recordings, will focus on the techniques used to create and archive successful recordings. For more information, visit www.folklife.si.edu/festival/2007/related_events.html.

Virginia’s Mountain Laurel Stage

Friday, June 29, 9 to 10 a.m.
Challenges of Festival Recording

Virginia’s Mountain Laurel Stage

Saturday, June 30, 9 to 10 a.m.
Festival Recording Techniques

Smithsonian Folkways Recordings offices

Sunday, July 1, 9 to 10 a.m.
Preserving Our Musical Heritage
Ella Celebrates 50 Years of Music with Folkways and the Smithsonian

In 1957, Ella released her first ten-inch vinyl album, Call and Response Rhythm Group Singing, on Moses Asch’s original Folkways Records. Since then, she has released more than thirty albums that feature hundreds of songs, all of which are now available for downloading. Her most recent Smithsonian Folkways Recordings CD is the GRAMMY Award-nominated Sharing Cultures with Ella Jenkins and Children from the LaSalle Academy of Chicago.

Winner of a Lifetime Achievement GRAMMY Award, Ella continues to perform and educate through music. A whole new generation of children can sing along and groove to the ground-breaking songs of Ella Jenkins, the First Lady of Children’s Music. For the first time, the entire catalog of Ella Jenkins songs, spanning her fifty years with Folkways and Smithsonian Folkways Recordings, is available for digital downloading.

Sound Neighbours: Contemporary Music in Northern Ireland.
Smithsonian Folkways Recordings. SFW 40544.

Centuries old or recently penned, the diverse music of Northern Ireland’s instrumentalists, composers, and songwriters evokes a profound sense of regional pride and growing confidence in a shared future. Introducing listeners to the powerful music of this beautiful, complex land, Sound Neighbours spans genres, generations, and geographic boundaries to feature twenty vocal and instrumental tracks that celebrate the musical wealth of contemporary Northern Ireland.

The Paschall Brothers: On the Right Road Now
Smithsonian Folkways Recordings. SFW 40176.

Silken voices, intricate harmonies, and divinely inspired passion mark the quartet singing of the Paschall Brothers, and their classic Virginia Tidewater sound. Founded in 1981 in the footsteps of the renowned Golden Gate Quartet, this multi-generational family carries on the African American “roots gospel” tradition that emerged in the post-Civil War South to engage modern audiences with their joy and exuberance.
2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival

TO THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT

NORTHERN IRELAND

First Aid
Information
Food Concession
GS Food
Metro
Toilets

Accessible
Audio Loop
Volunteers
Press
Lost and Found

MADISON DRIVE

FOOD & DRINK

LAGAN STAGE

NATIONAL MUSEUM OF AMERICAN HISTORY

HURLING STICKS

Gaelic Sports

FOOTBALL

RUGBY

NINE DRAGONS STAGE

MEKONG

SPRING FESTIVAL GROUND

FOOD & DRINK

NAGA STAGE

WEAVING

NEEDLEWORK

POTTERY

BAMBOO

JEFFERSON DRIVE

TO THE FEDERAL TRIANGLE METRO

SILK WEAVING

PUPPETRY

BAMBOO

NEW MOON STAGE

CELEBRATION

ARTS

LANTERN

ARTS

FREE R GALLERY

136
The ethnographic answer to iTunes.
—New York Times

Unprecedented access to world music at www.smithsonianglobalsound.org

WEBCASTING LIVE CONCERTS AND EVENTS
from the 2007 Smithsonian Folklife Festival:
Visit www.smithsonianglobalsound.org for a current schedule and to relive past performances.

SMITHSONIAN GLOBAL SOUND® joins international archives to digitize and catalog music and other verbal arts and distribute them via the Web. Browse, sample, and download thousands of iPod®-compatible tracks, and read extensive information about each recording.

Don’t know where to start? Listen to Radio Global Sound, watch music videos at Global Sound Live, and read about featured artists to discover new music—all at no charge.

Tools for Teaching provides educators with free lesson plans and activities to introduce students to world music and culture.

Visit www.smithsonianglobalsound.org/free_downloads to access six FREE MUSIC DOWNLOADS.

Support local musicians and archives! Royalties earned from the sale of music on the site fund the artists, their communities, the institutions that preserve their recordings, and the expansion of the project. We hope these efforts will spark the creation of new music and promote appreciation of cultural diversity around the world.

iPod is a registered trademark of Apple Computer, Inc.